Rose Bound Over To Circuit Court

James "Monkey" Rose, 25, of Sikeston, was bound over to Circuit Court this morning after Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery refused a motion in a preliminary hearing to set aside a felonious charge of burglary and larceny.

He is charged with burglarizing the Wright's Jewelry Store April 29. Sikeston Policeman Robert Atkinson testified in this morning's preliminary hearing that he caught Rose in front of the store at 11:30 p.m. with a sack of jewelry and a crowbar in his hand.

Rose, after he was bound over to Circuit Court, called Atkinson an "s.o.b."

His bond was set at $1,000.

Todd also waived a preliminary hearing on a felonious charge of stealing $51 from the Trigg Shell Service Station.

Both defendents posted $500 bond and were bound over to appear in Circuit Court.

Willis Dement, 201 North West Street, was fined $25 and costs for speeding.

Betty Hopper, Highway 60, was fined $10 and costs for failure to have an operator's license.

Stephen Stricker, Charleston, was fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Ernie Merrick, route one, was fined $4 and costs for not having his vehicle properly registered.

Margaret Lynn, 123 Baker, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Rose Barker, Benton, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Harold Basinger, 212 Murray Lane, and Jerry Davis, Morley, were each fined $40 and costs for being in possession of liquor while both were under the age of 21. They were placed on one year's probation.

Charges of abiding and cohabiting without being married that were lodged against Robert Davis, 220 Smith, and Virginia Gentry, 220 Smith, were dismissed upon payment of costs. The charges were brought against the two by Virginia Gentry's husband, Billy Gentry.

Report Munger In Satisfactory Condition

The accident happened in eight feet of water.

Drownings at Clearwater, Wappapello

In the Wappapello incident, Carl James Krallman Jr., 24, of St. Louis, drowned when he jumped off a moving speedboat, according to witnesses. The Highway Patrol said the witnesses told them Krallman had jumped from the boat several times and then would be picked up again after the boat circled. In his final leap, when the boat circled, Krallman had submerged. The body had not been recovered early Monday.

The incident occurred about 3:30 p.m. Sunday near the mouth of Peoples Creek, several hundred yards off the boat dock at Clay's Cabins. The boat was owned and driven by James Meehan, 26, according to the Patrol. Two other passengers in the boat were Gary Laycob, 32, and Sylvester Jurczyk, all from St. Louis. The four men had been staying at a cabin owned by Bob Pruitt, St. Louis, and located in the Lakeland Estates development.

The man's body is believed to be in about 20 feet of water.

Searchers from both Wayne and Butler counties began looking for Krallman yesterday afternoon and called off the operation at dusk. The search was resumed this morning.

Divers from the Poplar Bluff Fire Department, Missouri Highway Patrol, the Missouri Conservation Commission and other volunteers including Loren Lewis, Boat Commission patrolman, joined in the operation.

Three other persons have drowned in Missouri during the Memorial Day holiday.

Two of the victims were Jimmy Lewis, 12, and Jerry Lewis, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis of Moberly.

Experienced campers, the boys left home Friday afternoon for an overnight stay at Rothwell Park. A search was started when they failed to return home Saturday night. The bodies were found in the lake at the park. Police said one boy

State Budget For Oncoming Year

by LARRY HALL
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Missouri's budget of nearly $978 million for the next year brings into sharp focus the dramatic growth of state government in the last 20 years.

We're spending our money now for things that weren't even heard of then. The increase in cost is more than 400 per cent.

Let the stark figures tell the story.

For the 1946-47 fiscal year, the Legislature appropriated more than $62 million in general revenue tax money and more than $154 million from various funds. The total for all state governmental operations was $216,772,000.

This time in the recent special session the Legislature approved a total of $977,900,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1.

That included more than $431 million from general revenue and more than $546,600,000 from funds -- most of them federal matching money.

In '46-'47, the best estimate you could get on the number of state employes was 12,900. Nobody knew for sure because there was no accurate count.

The entire state budget staff at that time, during the first administration of the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, consisted of one old man and two women who doubled as clerks, secretaries and adding machinery operators.

Today the state has an estimated 35,200 employes. A professional budget staff was set up under the late Gov. James T. Blair and today it includes budget analysts, computer programmers and other data processing experts.

There is a new administrative services unit, just getting started, and its goal is to bring some kind of uniformity in the way state agencies keep their books, handle their correspondence and conduct their routine operations.

There is also a central records agency which is filling up the Capitol basement with records and some day will need a building of its own to store the millions of pieces of paper used in running a state government of this size.

A good share of your state tax dollar goes for state school aid. It has grown more than three-fold in just the last 11 years.

Formerly the Legislature allotted state aid to schools on the basis of one-third of the general revenue. For the year ending June 30, 1955, the last year that method was used, the total came to $47,269,000.

Then the Legislature set up a basic school foundation program designed originally to give most help to the poorer districts and geared to encourage the merger of school districts.

While the number of school districts has shrunk from more than 8,000 to about 1,000 in the last 20 years, the amount of state aid has increased sharply.

The first year under the new foundation program, state aid totaled $54,600,000.

Since then the formula has been changed and liberalized several times. For the new year starting July 1, the total is around $165 million and the pressure is on for more money next time.

A strong factor in the growing cost of running the state government has been the demand for appropriations to match federal funds in such programs as highway beautification, Medicare, the so-called "war on poverty" and many others.

All of these figured in hot fights during the recent special legislative session. And no one knows as yet what the full impact of the Medicare program will be.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in a speech this week urged a cautious approach to further implementation of the program -- especially payment of physician's costs.

He said in effect it could break the state and gave an initial estimate that new angles of Medicare in this field could cost $12 to $15 million more in state funds by 1970. And that kind of money is nowhere in sight without tax increases.

Let's take a look at some of the new programs and institutions that have contributed to rising costs over the last 20 years.

Increased emphasis on a modern mental health program has played a big role.

In that period the state took over the city operated mental hospitals at St. Louis and Kansas City, the St. Louis school and hospital for the mentally retarded and set up a training center for psychiatrists and aides in St. Louis.

This trend has led some legislators to plead with the cities -- "Please don't give us anything more."

In addition the legislature authorized three new intensive mental health treatment centers at St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia and nine new mental retardation centers which are not built yet.

In the field of higher education, the University of Missouri has expanded from campuses at Columbia and Rolla to two new ones at St. Louis and Kansas City which are in the beginning stages.

And last year the state took the responsibility for the last two years of training to make the junior colleges at St. Joseph and Joplin four-year institutions.

A space center and a big atomic reactor have become part of a new research center at Columbia and the former Rolla School of Mines also has an atomic reactor. A growing medical school and hospital also has been set up at Columbia.

The state also has entered into a growing state aid program for other junior colleges.

At Moberly, the former medium security prison is now known as the men's training center. It has two residence units for 300 men each and a third was authorized by the recent special session to the tune of $2 million.

In addition, numerous new state agencies have been created to handle special problems. Major ones include:

The Water Pollution Board, Water Resources Board, Air Conservation Comission, Missouri Boat Commission, Missouri council on the arts, an administrative hearing commissioner, an inter-agency council for outdoor recreation, a Human Rights Commission to administer new fair employment practics and public accommodations laws, a state and regional planning agency, a legislative fiscal affairs committee to study all expenditures, a permanent state tax study commission to find out where the money's coming from, and a host of legislative interim study committees, all of which cost money.

Existing agencies also have doubled and quadrupled in size -the Highway Patrol, the Highway Commission, the Conservation Commission, the park board program and others. All say they still can't keep pace with public demands.

And don't fool yourself-The end is not in sight.

The only question is the one the venerable Sen. Michael Kinney, D-St. Louis keeps asking. He has seen the growth since he first came to the Senate in 1913.

He's laid up right now with a broken leg. But in talking about the new developments he still wants to know:

"Where we going to get the money?"

Sikeston Man In Illinois Accident

CHESTER, Ill. - A woman was injured fatally and three persons were hurt seriously today in a two-car collision on Highway 3 north of Chester, Ill.

State police said Mrs. Germaine Harrelson, 57, was killed. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Edgar, 63.

Harrelson, Bedford L. Robinson, 65, of Sikeston, Mo., the driver of the other auto, and Robinson's wife, Eva, 60, were injured.

Salvage Yard Owner Slugged And Robbed

CHARLESTON -- Three colored men, all armed with pistols, held up the Chuck's Salvage Yard, and made way with between $600 and $700.

The three men entered the salvage yard and told the owner, Chuck Christian, they wanted to buy a 1959 Ford carburetor.

After the owner started to get the auto part, the three took the money, after hitting him over the head with one of the guns after the owner said there was no money in the building.

The gunmen started shooting at several dogs on the premises as they left in a 1959 white Ford.

Before leaving, however, the three men went to get Mrs. Christian, who managed to lock herself in the garage. The fleeing gunmen tore the telephone wires from the wall.

After the trio left, Mr. and Mrs. Christian went to a neighbor, Robert Chandler, to call Charleston police chief, Guthrie Hunter, who with Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, made an investigation of the robbery.

3 Area Deaths Over Weekend

The Southeast Missouri area came up with a rash of serious highway accidents, to give the area the high total of 41 with 44 injuries and three deaths for Memorial Day weekend. The three deaths occurred in the northern area of the district.

Two deaths resulted in a single accident Saturday, at 1:30 p.m., two miles south of Greenville on highway 67. A 1966 Chevrolet, driven by Joe Fague, 33, St. Louis, came across the centerline and sideswiped a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Millard Hayes, 36, St. Louis, and then struck a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Rovert Mills, 61, St. Louis, headon.

Killed in the accident were, the two-year-old son of Fague, and Robert Mills, driver of the 1963 Chevrolet. Both bodies were taken to the Gish Funeral Home, Greenville.

The third holiday death occurred Saturday at 4:45 p.m. when John L. Petot, Jr., 20, route six, Perryville, lost his life while riding a 1963 Honda motorcycle on a blind curve on a gravel road.

He came around the curve on the wrong side of the road and struck a 1952 Chevrolet driven by Theodore E. Walther, 76, Perryville, who had stopped in an effort to avoid the accident, but the motorcycle hit the Chevrolet headon. The accident occurred one-half mile from Crosstown.

Injuries were heavy over the weekend, with eight in a single accident Saturday at 11:50 p.m. at highway 60 and Wyatt.

Two cars involved in the accident were a 1958 Ford, driven by Grady Ketchum, 24, Charleston, who was eastbound, when a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Charles Babb, 26, Circleville, O., attempted to turn on the wrong side and struck the Ketchum car headon.

Ketchum received cuts and bruises and a broken left hand, while three passengers in his car, all of Charleston, were also injured. They were, Lucy Speakman,, 25, broken hip, cuts and bruises; William Carter, 21, possible neck injury and other bruises; and Jack Crane, 24, cuts on his face and chin, and bruises.

Injured in the Babb car were the driver, who received cuts and bruises; three passengers, John Conrad, 24, Circleville, O., possible neck injury, cuts and bruises; Donna Conrad, 23, Circleville, cuts and bruises; and Carolyn Ream, Adelphia, O., cuts and bruises. All were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Six young persons were injured in a two-car accident Monday at 12:15 p.m. on route V, a half-mile north of the Trail of Tears Park, in Cape Girardeau county.

A 1960 Chevrolet, driven by Barbara Kay Henson, 18, Jackson, who was traveling on the wrong side of the road, struck a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Shirley Jean Schaeffer, 23, Jackson, also on the wrong side of the road.

Injured were Barbara Jean Henson, with chest injuries and cuts on her head; two passengers in her car, Doyle Stokes, 18, Sikeston, with severe chest and head injuries; and Marcia Sides, 17, Jackson, possible fractured arm.

Injured in the second car were the driver, Shirley Schaeffer, cuts and bruises on head and mouth; Dorothy Schaeffer with chest injuries; and Jeffery, three-months-old, with head injuries.

28 Treated For Accidents

Twenty-eight persons were treated as emergency patients at Missouri Delta Community Hospital over the Memorial Day weekend.

Alvin West, route four, was charged with violating the city's curfew ordinance.

Art Show Success

An estimated 3,000 persons attended the two-day Holiday Art Exhibit Saturday and Sunday at the Holiday Inn, sponsored by the Sikeston Art League.

The show had on display 250 or more pieces of art and sculpture work, to make it the largest of the three annual shows. The artists had a much improved style of paintings both from the standpoint of color arrangement in modern, portraits and scenic beauty.

Evident also was the great improvement in the ability of the contestants, both from Sikeston and surrounding area, including a large number of new art students, who displayed work for their first time.

In charge of the arranging and supervision of the outstanding district art show were, James Garner on sculpture, and Miss Harriet Jones, Sikeston, with members of the Art League committee, President Harley Barnes, Howard Grant, Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Barbara Smith, Mrs. Alex Waters, Jr., Mrs. Phil Compagna and Mrs. Phil Bowman.

Others who gave of their time and talent were, Mrs. Bety Huber, Hayti; Mrs. Irene Hazel, Caruthersville; Mrs. Sam Harbin, Jane Wilkerson, Ned Tanner, Mrs. Jack Bowman, Richard Smith, Mrs. JoAnne Fox, Lynn Twitty, Charles Rafferty, David Blanton, the Rosegate and Meadow Lane Garden Clubs, and the Roberts Nursery.

A MODERN art theme by Mrs. Robert S. Matthews, 1010 North Ranney, whose display on discarded objects, collage type art, titled, "Seven Deadly Sins and Eye." The artist has studied theme work for a number of years, and took the old objects to bring out the seven themes on envy, pride, wrath, sloth, gluttony, lust and covetness.

THE DOMINICAN VOTE

THE UNITED STATES policed the Dominican Republic for eight years -- 1916 to 1924 -- and the legacy was the brutal Trujillo regime. We intervened again a little over a year ago and the legacy of that occupation, while as yet uncertain, could prove as disastrous. The vote for a new President on Wednesday will be only a temporary marker of the way.

The reason is that whoever wins will find himself in immediate trouble. At this writing Juan Bosch, the former President in whose name the revolt of April 1965 was begun, is given the edge. Some observers, however, see Joaquin Balaguer, Trujillo's ex-President and head of the junta after the dictator's assassination, running surprisingly strong.

The third candidate, Rafael Bonnelly, also a former Trujillo minister and Provisional President after the assassination, and like Balaguer a rightist, does not figure. Speculation has it that Bonnelly might withdraw at the last minute and throw his support to Balaguer, but that would be a gift of perhaps only 25,000 votes.

THE NEW PRESIDENT will inherit a political and economic shambles. Unemployment is approaching half a million on the tiny island. The growing unemployment rate totals 36.8 per cent of the available male work force.

Imbalance of age on the island is another problem. More than half the present population of 3.5 million is under the age of 15. There aren't enough schools, and literacy at best totals 30 per cent of the people.

It now looks as if American budgetary aid to the Republic has been timed to end about when the new President is to be installed -- if everything goes well, on July 1. This would not threaten long-term development loans, amounting to $14 1/2 million. But it would affect the heavy support the United States has given to meet government payrolls and other housekeeping expenses -- $46 1/2 million for budgetary 1966 plus another $25 million Congress voted to be advanced if needed.

The new regime certainly will have to negotiate for continued U. S. aid. But it would be well if that help could be supplied in other areas than budget supplements, military training and hardware (the Dominican military apparatus already is bloated) and expensive U. S. products.

BOSCH has the support of the left and center, including grudging Communist backing. His own party is the Partido Revolucionario Dominicano (PRD). Balaguer is the candidate of the Reformista party, but he is hardly viewed as a reformer. He is the favorite of the military. Bonnelly hopes to draw support from four factions: The splintered remnants of the National Civic Union, which ran second in the 1962 polling, the Liberal Evolutionists, Revolutionary Vanguard, and Nationalist Revolutionaries.

As can be seen, names don't mean much. Bonnelly is really the candidate of the Oligarquia, or First Families of the island.

What probably counts most is the support of the campesinos, peasants, and workers. Balaguer is making a big pitch to these -- more jobs, lower rice prices -- relying on what may be a strong residual charisma of the toppled Trujillo.

Whoever wins may not be able to command for long. That might mean that the United States would have to intervene again, but this time with Organization of American States cooperation from the beginning.

EXPLORING THE OCEANS

Exploration of the ocean depths may prove more fruitful than exploration of outer space. There are limits to the amount of sustenance that can be drawn from the 25 per cent of the earth's surface which is dry land. But the vast, mysterious oceans contain untold food and mineral riches. The problem is to find ways to extract them. This question undoubtedly will be discussed at the second International Oceanographic Congress, scheduled to open in Moscow on Monday, May 30.

Man is as ill-adapted to an underwater environment as he is to outer space. While prolonged weightlessness and solar radiation are the cardinal hazards of space flight, water pressure is the chief barrier to deep undersea voyages. For example, it takes up to five hours for a man's body to adjust to surface pressure after only one hour underwater at a depth of 250 feet. Under heavy pressure, the nitrogen of the air breathed by the diver dissolves in his blood and tissues. If he surfaces too quickly, the nitrogen is released explosively, like carbon dioxide in soda water when a bottle cap is removed.

Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the noted French oceanographer, has tried to get around the pressure problem by constructing underwater communities. Five men lived for a month in a four-structure "village" built by Cousteau beneath the surface of the Red Sea. M. Scott Carpenter, one of the original American astronauts, lived for 30 days last year in a 57-foot-long steel chamber anchored 205 feet below the surface of the Pacific near La Jolla, Calif.

Such communities may someday permit exploitation of the oceans' treasure. The continental shelves alone are believed to contain 30 million cubic miles of oil-bearing sediments. And Ritchie Calder, professor of international relations at the University of Edinburgh, feels it is possible to train dolphins, manatees and dugongs to tend Texas-sized "sea ranches, sea pastures and sea stud farms."

REPORTERS

Reporters provide the life blood of a newspaper. They are the eyes and ears of a newspaper. The reputation of any newspaper is built upon honest, accurate, factual and interesting reporting.

A reporter must not only be honest and accurate, but he must be objective to the point where he can disregard entirely his personal feelings in a news gathering assignment given to him. Having covered an assignment, a reporter uses the facts he has gathered to write his story.

An editor then checks it for errors in spelling, construction and style, and then has the fascinating job of writing an interesting headline that will not only tell what the story is about, but will be of the right length to fit the space assigned to the story.

THE NEED IS KNOWLEDGE

The American Medical Association has been conducting an intensive educational program designed to inform the nation on the health care services that are available to the elderly. In this, the nation's physicians play a key role. And it is to be hoped that the campaign results in the success it so eminently deserves -- for reliable studies have shown that the majority of the people just don't know what is offered. This plays into the hands of the proponents of the Medicare plan for fastening, at heavy cost, certain medical services onto the social security system whether or not they are wanted or needed by social security beneficiaries.

Special stress is placed, as it should be, on the Kerr-Mills Act, passed in 1960. This is a joint-federal - state program, and most of the states are participating while others are planning to do so. It is an excellently conceived undertaking in every particular. The services provided are broad. They are confined to those who are unable to meet the costs, instead of to an arbitrarily selected age group. And administration is at the local level where local needs are best understood and can be most effectively and efficiently cared for.

Beyond Kerr-Mills, every state has a means of providing health care to the elderly who are without sufficient funds. Some are paid for by taxation, some by the voluntary work of the medical profession or other private institutions. What is needed is greatly improved public knowledge of what exists.

AN INFORMED ELECTORATE

Get-out-the-vote campaigns have been a part of national elections for a great many years. Of late, however, something new and eminently worthwhile has been added. More and more of these campaigns stress that it is the duty of the voter to seriously and thoroughly study the issues and evaluate the candidates before entering the polling booth.

An uninformed vote is worse than no vote at all. The policies and principles that are adopted now, with the consent of the electorate, are those which will do much to determine this nation's future. They will, in many instances, profoundly affect the lives and opportunities of our children and our children's children. It cannot too often be repeated that an informed people is the first essential to the perpetuation of our institutions and our freedoms.

By all means, vote -- the fact that so many million qualified Americans commonly stay away from the polls has long been a national disgrace. But, above all, really know what and who you are voting for.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING

An interesting disclosure came out of a recent survey of the clothing habits of students in Philadelphia. A sampling of opinions was taken at four distinctly different types of school -- selected to isolate, where possible, different trends in the city where there are approximately 500,000 boys between the ages of 13 and 17 years. Out of the welter of opinions, facts and figures -- perhaps the most important was this report: "Students whose parents have lesser means are inclined to dress better than offspring of the wealthy, in this particular area." It's further proof of the oft-made point that grooming depends NOT so much on the money spent on clothes, as on the "know-how" in selection and wearing!

THE STALLING STARS

It is said that during World War II, Winston Churchill hired an astrologer to assist his generals in their tactical planning -- not because he believed in astrology but because Hitler did.

Since the embarrassment of the Nazis, the horoscope casters have been rather in disfavor among heads of states. It comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that numerous officials in modernizing India are quite dependent upon guidance from practitioners of this ancient art.

The fact comes to light as the result of charges by a member of parliament, Mr. Krishna Manoharan, that one astrologer used his influence among ministers and other parliament members to seek personal favors.

This alleged mild corruption inside the corridors of power of the Indian government is not cause for alarm, however. If anything, it means the Indians are mastering the finer nuances of Western-style democracy.

What is disturbing is Mr. Manoharan's further complaint that "problems are allowed to fester because astrologers tell the ministers that the time is not ripe to solve them. 'Wait, wait,' they say. 'In six months your shining stars will be in the right position.' And so they wait."

This, of course, is the same advice astrologers have been peddling ever since the days of Xerxes and Marc Antony up to and including the Empress Dowager of Manchu China.

The monumental problems facing India won't wait, of course, regardless of what the horoscopes might say. When they descend in full force, it will be little comfort if the Indians finally realize that the fault lay not in their stars but in themselves.

TWO BUDGETS

Most of us think that each year's federal appropriations represent the total spending for that year. But, incredibly large as these appropriations are, that isn't the case.

Congress also authorizes what is known as new spending authority. The authorizations are for projects and programs running over a considerable period of time, and the money is not disbursed in any one year.

This is no small matter. In the last three years, spending authority has exceeded expenditures by an average of nearly $6 billion a year. By July 1, 1965, over $90 billion of unused spending authority will be accumulated. It will still be available for spending - - on top of the spending authority requested in the 1966 budget.

This is not so complicated as it may seem. To all intents and purposes, there are two budgets. One --the one that makes the headlines -- covers a single year's outgo. The other -- the one few of us know about -- makes available additional billions to be spent over several years. In either case, the unbelieveable bills must be met, in the taxes we pay now and in the debt we bequeath to our descendants.

The case for economy in government--that will bring all spending within income, make possible a start on reducing the debt and save what is left of the dollar's value--was never so strong as it is now.

H. L. Hunt Says

WE NEED OUR SLINGSHOT

The propaganda device used to popularize the notion that this country should disarm itself and become defenseless before its enemies is a repeated appeal to the desire for peace and goodwill among men.

This appeal has deep roots among our people, most of whom have religious backgrounds. It is idealistic. No one would deny that peace is better than cultural exchange. And the enemies of freedom make hay of the situation.

Is it sensible to think that our sincere desire for peace should cause us to lay down our defensive arms? Is this the logical consequence of desiring peace? Would such a move bring us peace? Would the communist menace simply evaporate, as we are being told, if Americans decided in favor of disarmament?

Inexorably the communist menace closes in on the U.S. It confronts us now like Goliath before David, threatening, mocking, challenging. Are we to believe that laying down our arms will pacify this antagonist? Or are we wise enough to see that it is our slingshot that keeps him at bay?

George Washington said, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving the peace." Since the time when the fabled "Roman Peace" was assured by the Roman legions that principle has been true. We had better recognize the validity of this principle now or soon those voices crying "Peace" will switch to "Peace at any price." In fact, that's what the current arguments for disarmament amount to.

U.S. NATIONAL INCOME

America's national income is $600 billion a year, the Catholic Digest reports.

THE NEED IS KNOWLEDGE

The American Medical Association has been conducting an intensive educational program designed to inform the nation on the health care services that are available to the elderly. In this, the nation's physicians play a key role. And it is to be hoped that the campaign results in the success it so eminently deserves -- for reliable studies have shown that the majority of the people just don't know what is offered. This plays into the hands of the proponents of the Medicare plan for fastening, at heavy cost, certain medical services onto the social security system whether or not they are wanted or needed by social security beneficiaries.

Special stress is placed, as it should be, on the Kerr-Mills Act, passed in 1960. This is a joint-federal - state program, and most of the states are participating while others are planning to do so. It is an excellently conceived undertaking in every particular. The services provided are broad. They are confined to those who are unable to meet the costs, instead of to an arbitrarily selected age group. And administration is at the local level where local needs are best understood and can be most effectively and efficiently cared for.

Beyond Kerr-Mills, every state has a means of providing health care to the elderly who are without sufficient funds. Some are paid for by taxation, some by the voluntary work of the medical profession or other private institutions. What is needed is greatly improved public knowledge of what exists.

Like his wife, he can be a blond trail blazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired homme fatale. And for the same reasons - a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees, for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glabrous craniums.

Not only do blonds have more fun. Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Furthermore, wigs are a saving. Busy men who match theirs to their own current hair color can go under cover for a while, and thereby postpone trips to the barbershop.

Long-haired musicians - the rock 'n' roll kind - are also among Traynor's faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a make-up artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson's television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column has reported that Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., after being entrusted by the senate in 1962 with investigating the insurance industry, suddenly stopped paying his insurance premiums and began recommending friends to insurance companies for loans. He and his law firm actually collected fees and commissions on these loans.

Dodd also accepted free rides on a Travelers Insurance Company plane, and his son, Jeremy, was hired as an agent by Aetna Life and Casualty Company.

But there is still more to the story.

In 1962, Dodd also intervened with the Connecticut Insurance commissioner to arrange for Bankers Life and Casualty Company to do business in the state. For pulling the right strings, he collected $5,000 from Brundage and Short. The Chicago law firm which represented Bankers Life and Casualty.

Only a month after he wrote to the commissioner, Dodd was able to report to Attorney Charles Short on May 17, 1962: "The enclosed documents are self - explanatory. I am pleased that Bankers Life and Casualty Co. has been licensed to do business in Connecticut."

Two days later, on July 19, 1962, Brundage and Short mailed the senator check No. 18243 for $5,000.

Reached in Chicago, Short tried to deny the whole affair, first he claimed that Dodd had handled the matter before he became a senator. When Short was reminded that Dodd had been elected to the senate four years prior to his intervention for Bankers Life in 1962, he declared that Dodd had been unable to arrange the licensing.

Advised of the senator's letter announcing his success in obtaining the license, Short insisted that Dodd had not been paid. When he was reminded of the $5,000 check, Short changed his denial to a claim that the $5,000 was a loan from his late partner, Howard Brundage, to Senator Dodd.

"Tom and Howard used to borrow money from one another," said Short.

"It was not a personal check," we pointed out. "Did Brundage use his firm's checking account to make personal loans?"

"I am not the slightest bit interested in you people," Short snapped. "So goodbye." And he hung up.

THE INSURANCE ALIBI

Meanwhile, three of the insurance companies have been trying to explain their relationship with the senator who is supposed to investigate them.

A spokesman for Travelers denied to the Hartford Times that Dodd had used the company plane. Nevertheless, the senator's former aides recall that he flew in the Travelers plane at least a half a dozen times. The records show, for instance, that he took off for Connecticut in the Travelers plane at 7:15 p.m. on July 2, 1964. The plane made a special trip to Washington in October, 1964, to fly him to a Travelers men's club meeting, then returned him to Washington the next day.

Merritt McDonough, speaking for the Charles H. McDonough Sons Insurance Agency, also told the Hartford Times that Dodd had neglected to pay his back insurance premiums because his bookkeeper didn't show him the bill. Not until the accountant left the payroll, claimed McDonough, did Dodd discover he owed $3,403.37 in premiums dating back in 1962.

INSURANCE DENIALS

But Dodd's accountant tells a different story. He states that he called the unpaid insurance premiums to the senator's attention several times, but that Dodd merely shrugged off the burgeoning bill. He started to pay his back premiums in December, 1965 -after he learned this column was investigating his misconduct.

Buist Anderson of Connecticut General and Millard Bartels of Travelers, both vice presidents, admitted to this column that Dodd had sent friends to see them about loans. They insisted that the applications were judged strictly on their merits, ignoring the fact that Dodd was supposed to be investigating them, not recommending friends to them for loans. They admitted, however, that they had talked to Dodd about the insurance investigation and insurance legislation.

While we do not accept these denials, we do want to correct an error regarding our report that insurance companies had collected $260 billion during a 20-year period but had paid out less than $90 billion in living and death benefits. The institute of life insurance points out that $73 billion of the total $260 billion intake came not from premiums but other investments.

It also states that the correct outlay during the 20-year period is $74 billion for living benefits, $39 billion for death benefits, and $18 billion in other payments to policyholders, or a total of $131 billion, not $90 billion.

This column also quoted William C. Smerling of Connecticut General as telling insurance managers that the life insurance public had been "ravaged, raped, and defrauded" by the insurance companies.

In fairness to Mr. Smerling, it should be noted that, though he was correctly quoted, his remarks were aimed at those salesmen who offer rebates to make sales, persuade customers to cash in old policies to pay for less valuable new policies, and charge excessive commissions. He was not criticizing the majority of insurance salesmen.

We are happy to make these corrections.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Backs Pentagon Build-up of Tough Reserve Force But Says Too Many College Men Exempted From Draft

Washington, D.C.- The battleground of the republic in these days of the citizen-soldier appears to be the draft.

There are the card burners, the hunger strikers, the sit-inners. Yet if all these were marshalled in one vast hall, they would not equal, by far, the number of young men who enlist voluntarily in one month.

There are the solid backers of the draft, such as the leaders of labor. None is more sturdy and steadfast. But they are beginning to eye jaundicedly the huge bulk of college deferments and have queried Labor Secretary Wirtz on the problem.

This, say some labor leaders of considerable influence and import, discriminates against the young men who work with their hands as well as brains -- or are learning to become adept at physical skills needed to make a space age function.

While college men are deferred and deferred, youngsters in the skilled trades' apprentice training programs are being drafted.

National labor leaders, using the jargon of their trade, say bluntly, this is "unfair." They plan to take another look at the nation's draft policy which has been reaching into apprenticeship training programs such as those run by the electrical, plumbing or other construction industries.

In the printing trades' programs, a young man is "safe" if he has completed one year of apprentice training. But if a prospect is drafted before he gets into such craft schools, how can he get his one year in, asks one union official.

On the other hand, a young man applying for college gets in if he has the grades and then generally is secure for four years.

"This apprenticeship training is just as much an education for future life for these kids," said one national official, "as any college educations for the others. Furthermore, the trades they learn in the apprenticeship program really are vital to America's defense effort."

However, inside labor there is no lack of support for the draft. Nor is there any pacifism. American labor's official high command is still unanimously behind the military's efforts to build a strong fighting force.

There is powerful labor support for the citizen-soldier Reserve and National Guard training. This is reflected in an exchange of letters, never published, between Secretary of Defense McNamara and AFL-CIO President Meany.

It began last November when Mr. McNamara wrote to Mr. Meany saying that "urgent national defense requirements today call for the stepped-up training of our citizen-soldier components to achieve an advanced stage of combat readiness.

"A selected Force of National Guard and Reserve units has been designated for this mission. Starting this month, training for the 119,000 Army Guardsmen and 31,000 Army Reservists . . . .will be increased 50 per cent to the equivalent of three eight-hour days per month -- to be accomplished on weekends or at night.

"Similar stepped-up training has been effected for 12,000 members of the Air National Guard and 10,000 members of the Air Force Reserve.

"The citizen-soldier in these and all other reserve training units will need the understanding and support of his employer if he is to perform effectively both his military duties and the civilian job which is his means of livelihood. We must make sure that neither his earning power nor his advancement possibilities will be jeopardized by his military service."

Secretary McNamara then asked Mr. Meany "to alert leaders of unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO to this problem. Specifically, we ask for the understanding and assistance of the local leadership of the affiliates in our efforts to insure that equitable arrangements are made, as necessary for reservists to fulfill their military obligations."

McNamara added that some work schedules would have to be rearranged to meet production deadlines and military training requirements. Then he urged that plant supervisors, union representatives and Guard and Reserve unit commanders work together in each locality.

After Mr. Meany returned from the national AFL-CIO convention, he replied to the Defense Secretary with pledges of full support.

He assured the Defense Dept. that the AFL-CIO would "cooperate in every way . . . to free members of National Guard and Reserve units for extra days of training."

Mr. Meany then communicated with all national union presidents. They in turn alerted their local leaders.

He also designated the erudite AFL-CIO research director, Nat Goldfinger, to work with the Dept. of Defense "to assist in implementing this effort."

At this moment all is going smoothly, and Mr. Meany has made good his pledge, in the name of the 13 million members of America's big labor federation, that there would be "complete AFL-CIO cooperation in this matter."

No doubt this stance has provoked criticism of the labor leaders by virtually all of those to whom President Johnson has appealed to "cool" it.

Mrs. Harold Eugene Reuber

Suzanne Lynn Kaiser Is Wed To Harold Reuber Saturday

SPRINGFIELD -- Miss Suzanne Lynn Kaiser and Harold Eubene Reuber, both of Overland Park, Kans., exchanged wedding vows at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Stone Chapel of Drury College. Miss Kaiser is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Kaiser, 8600 Riley, Overland Park, Kans. Reuber is the son of Mrs. Helen Reuber, 534 North Ranney, Sikeston, Mo., and the late Dr. Reuber.

"Wedding March from Lohengrim" was the precessional and "Allegro Maestoso" was the recessional. Mrs. Paul Hoffman of Kansas City sang "Lord's Prayer" and "Love Is Of God." Roseanne Bennett served as organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of Italian silk linen. The lifted bodice accented with a narrow fold of self-fabric was fashioned with a scoop neckline edged with roccoco fringe and featured Dior sleeves. Fringe bandings and Point de Venice lace clusters trimmed the dome skirt. A detachable squared train was chapel length. The silk illusion fingertip veil was caught to a silk linen circlet. She wore a gold filagree and diamond pendant first worn by her maternal grandmother at her wedding in May of 1900. Her bouquet was a cascade of white daisies and ivy.

Mrs. James Parker of Florissant was matron of honor. Bridemaids were Miss Ann Nickle of Mountain Grove, Miss Dianne Hughes of Marshfield, Cynthia Higgenbotham of Clayton and Mary Kratochvil of Jefferson City. All attendants are Alpha Phi sorority sisters of the bride.

The attendants wore floor-length gowns fashioned with copen blue Empire bodices in Shantiastik, featuring batteau necklines, elbow-length sleeves and self-fabric waistbands. The easy silhouettes of the light blue crepe skirts were enhanced by detachable copen blue watteau back panels falling from self-fabric Dior bows. They wore matching headpieces and carried crescent bouquets of blue daisies and lilies of the valley.

Best man was John Reuber of Sikeston, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were James Parker of Florissant, James Soden of St. John, Kans., Dale Lewis of Sikeston and Ervin Heyde of Springfield.

Following the cremony, a reception was held in the chapel lounge, The three tiered wedding cake was circled with smilax and blue daisies. This theme was also carried out in the candlabra decorations.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. John Reuber of Sikeston, Miss Jean Sode of Rogers, Ark., and Miss Myra Becker of Mountain View. Miss Doris Ray of Sikeston was in charge of the guest register.

Fro travel, the new Mrs. Reuber wore a two piece suit of pastel blue linen and a corsage of white daisies.

The couple will be at home after June 10 at their apartment in Louisburg Square, 9420 West 88th St., Overland Park, Kans.

The bride graduated from Drury College in Springfield Sunday. She will teach in the North Kansas City, Mo., high school system. The groom is a teacher at Milburn junior high school in the Shawnee Mission high school system.

Gibson Pitches 3-Hitter

Orlando Cepeda's production against the Houston Astros Monday night was about what the St. Louis Cardinals were doing as a team before he joined them.

Orlando Cepeda pounded the eighth home run, two doubles and a single, driving in two runs and scoring the other as the Cardinals beat the Houston Astros behind Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching Monday night, 3-1, at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Cepeda, who ran his hit streak to seven over two games, doubled home Lou Brock, who had walked, stolen second and advanced to third on an infield out in the first inning.

In the fourth inning, Cepeda became the first man to hit a ball over the wall in dead-center ex-Giant doubled again in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single.

Gibson boosted his season record to 6-5.

Dick Farrell, who gave up all three St. Louis runs, lost his fourth against one victory.

The third-place Astros' loss dropped them four games from first place.

Cepeda, who the Cardinals acquired in a trade May 8 from San Francisco to add punch to their attack, doubled home Lou Brock in the first inning. He smashed his eighth homer in the fourth and doubled in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single and completed a perfect night at the plate with an eighth-inning single, his seventh straight hit stretched over two games and raised his average to .330.

Cardinal righthander Bob Gibson, meanwhile held the Astros to three hits in winning his third straight game to boost his record to 6-5.

Roof doubled in the fifth with two out scoring Ed Charles and Ken Harrelson, who had walked, to give the Athletics a 2-2 tie.

Detroit went ahead to stay with three runs on Dick McAuliffe's two-run triple and Norm Cash's single in the seventh.

McLain struck out seven and walked five in recording his fifth straight victory against Kansas City. Chuck Dobson, the loser, struck out eight in 6 1-3 innings.

Bill Monbouquette 3-4 will pitch for Detroit tonight against Kansas City's Fred Talbot 2-4

Babe Ruth Season To Open Tonight

Mayor Kendall Sikes, will officially open the Babe Ruth Baseball season tonight when he throws out the first ball of the season.

Dick Watkins, will serve s master of ceremonies and Bob Jones will give the invocation.

Mayor Sikes, will address the fans and players before the start of the game and will give way to League Commissioner Clem Beal who will give a welcoming talk and introduce members of each of the six baseball teams.

Pre-game activities will begin at 6:30, followed by the first game of the season which will be between the Bank of Sikeston and Reiss Dairy and ending the nights activities will be the game between Harts Bread and Home Materials.

Two teams have joined the league this season, expanding the league to six teams instead of fur.

King Is Afraid After Crown

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everythin's coming up roses for Don Brumfield these days.

The 28-year-old jockey from Nicholasville, Ky., rode Kauai King to victory in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness and it looks as if he will win the Belmont Stakes with Kauai King on Saturday and become the first to sweep the Triple Crown in 18 years.

It seemed for awhile that Brumfield might be faced with a difficult choice Memorial Day after he won the $137,900 Jersey Derby astride Creme Dela Creme at Garden State Pard.

But Don's good fortune stood up. He didn't have to choose between Kauai King and Creme Dela Creme in the Belmont.

Ira Hanford, trainer of the Jersey winner, eased Brumfield's mind. "We will not go in the Belmont." Hanford said. Instead Creme dela Creme will be shipped to Chicago for the Arlington Classic.

"I'm glad I don't have to make that decision," Brumfield said. "Both Kauai King and Creme dela Creme are great horses."

It was Creme dela Creme's seventh victory in eight starts and avenged his only defeat by a nose to Indulto in the Withers Mile at Aqueduct. This time he beat Indulto by two lengths although running wide at the head of the stretch where he led by four lengths. Brumfield has been up on the Bwamazon Farm colt in all of his races.

Creme dela Creme shared the holiday headlines with Bold Lad, who made it four straight with an imposing 1/2 length victory in the $115,600 Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct. Mrs. H. C. Phipps' 4-year-old sped the mile in 1:34 1-5 despite the heavy impost of 132 pounds and became the favorite to sweep the handicap triple of the Metropolitan, Suburban and Brooklyn.

Tigers McLain Hurls Second One Hit Game Of Season

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jack Lamabe, who often has trouble retiring American League batters, will be in Westwood, N. J., July 12 getting married. Denny McLain, who already is married, will be in St. Louis that day trying to retire National League batters.

McLain took another step toward becoming the American League's starting pitcher in the all-Star Game by pitching his second one-hitter of the season as Detroit defeated Kansas City 5-2 Monday.

Lamabe also pitched a one-hitter in Chicago's 11-0 second-game victory over Boston, but he doesn't expect to join McLain on the AL All-Star staff so he's going ahead with his marriage plans.

"I'll be very happy just to make the White Sox," Lamabe said after missing a no-hitter because of Joe Foy's leadoff single in the eighth inning.

Lamabe never had pitched a game like that before in the majors. In fact, it was the first shutout in his five-year career and his first complete game in nearly two years. And it came in his first start of the season.

Lamabe, now with his fourth team, had compiled a 5.40 earned run average in seven relief appearances this season.

With the exception of the 1964 season when he was a starter with Boston, the 29-year-old right-hander has been primarily a reliever. In his other three seasons, he appeared in 128 games, only four of them as a starter.

McLain, on the other hand, is developing into one of the best pitchers in the majors.

A 16-game winner in his first full season in the majors last year, the son-in-law of Lou Boudreau is the winningest pitcher in the AL, has won as many games as Sandy Koufax and is only one behind major league-leader Juan Marichal.

The 22-year-old right-hander stopped the White Sox on one hit May 6, allowing only a second inning single by J. C. Martin. The only hit Kansas City managed against him was Phil Roof's two-out double in the fifth.

In other AL games, Chicago downed Boston in the first game 1-0, California swept Cleveland 4-3 and 5-1, Baltimore defeated Minnesota 5-1 before bowing 7-4 and Washington stopped New York 2-1, after losing 4-2.

In the National League, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 8-4, Los Angeles outslugged Atlanta 10-6, Pittsburgh swept Chicago 3-2 and 5-3, St. Louis beat Houston 3-1 and Philadelphia whipped New York 7-2, then lost 3-1.

Lamabe was supported in his one-hitter by Tommy Agee and Don Buford, who between them collected five hits, scored eight runs, drove in two and stole five bases. Lamabe's shutout was the third straight for the White Sox.

John Buzhardt gained the second in a row in the opener, stopping the Red Sox on five hits. Bill Skowrin singled across the only run of the game in the seventh inning.

Roff's hit off McLain drove in two runs -- the runners had walked -- and tied the game 2-2. But Dick McAuliffe tripled home two runs in the seventh and scored on Norm Cash's single.

Home runs by California's Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop helped hand Cleveland its second doubleheader defeat in two days.

Fregosi's seventh - inning homer in the opener snapped a 3-3 deadlock while Knoop's two-run blast in the fourth inning of the second game put the Angels ahead to stay. Minnie Rojas, making his major league debut, gained the victory in the nightcap with relief help from Dean Chance.

Dave Johnson rapped four hits in the first game, including a single that triggered Baltimore's three-run sixth inning, while Woody Held and Andy Etchebarren added homers to the Orioles' attack.

Minnesota won the nightcap behind Harmon Killebrew's pair of homers and Bernie Allen's tie-breaking, two-run blow in the eighth.

Bobby Richardson's double and a single by Elston Howard were the key blows in a three-run first inning outburst that carried the Yankees past Washington in the opener.

Hill Confirmed As Winner of "500"

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP -- Londoner Graham Hill was confirmed as winner of the 50th Indianapolis 500-mile race today in official standings released by timers and scorers.

The official standings were indentical from top to bottom with unofficial results announced at the close of Monday's wreck-marred race.

Lotus manufacturer Colin Chapman of London and Studebaker representative Anthony Granatelli of Chicago immediately went into a closed conference with chief steward Harlan Fengler and representatives of the timing and scoring section. They represented Jim Clark of Scotland, whom they contended finished first instead of the second place given him.

Chapman said Clark, the 1965 winner, lost only a few seconds the two times his car went into spins. He said both times Clark straightened out immediately without killing his engine and was able to combine refueling stops with the madnatory halt for inspection after a mishap.

Official scorers reviewed the tapes of electric timing devices today in an attempt to determine the winner of the Indianapolis 500, a role officially granted London's mustachioed Graham Hill and disputed by Jim Clark of Scotland.

They were the first two finishers in the Memorial Day Classic Monday, and two of only seven drivers still on the track when the accident - marred race ended.

A massive, flaming pile-up involving 16 of the 33 starters scattered wrecks over the track and sent wheels and parts spraying into the crowd after a mishap on the first turn. Miraculously, only one driver -- A. J. Foyt of Houston, Texas -- and 14 spectators received only minor injuries.

The 36-year-old Hill, making his first start in America's most prestigious auto race, was declared the winner after the track was cleared and the race restarted with the field trimmed to 22.

Clark's backers were quick to dispute it.

"It is impossible for Hill to be the winner," said Andrew Granatelli of Chicago, a part-owner of Clark's car. "We were a lap ahead of Scot Jackie Steward and Hill was even farther behind. There's been an error."

Another Clark team member, Gene N. Spencer, a Midwest distributor of Lotus automobiles, also was quick to lodge a protest.

"I definitely believe there has been an error in the scoring," he said. "We know we won. We can't officially protest until Tuesday, but if the results are posted and show Hill the winner, we will protest immediately.

"But we believe that a check of the timing and scoring tapes will show we won."

The problem is over the number of laps completed.

The tradition-shrouded race was fouled up when No. 1 starter Mario Andretti barely had crossed the starting line in the flying start before Billy Foster of Victoria, B. C., only Canadian in the line-up, collided with Gordon Johncock of Hastings Mich. Foster said somebody crowded him.

That set off a spectacular chain reaction pile-up which eliminated 11 cars and wiped out such strong contenders as Foyt, Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The race had to be restarted because of an impassable track, delaying the show an hour and 24 minutes. The only other wreck-caused restart was two years ago after drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald were killed in a flaming second-lap pile-up.

The numerically worst previous accident, the 15-car wreck on the first lap in 1958, left driver Pat O'Connor dead in a burning car.

European road racers in the field, Hill and Gurney in particular, criticized the bunched, flying start which sets up chain reaction wrecks.

Major League Attendence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seven National League games drew only 568 fans less than nine American League games on Monday's Memorial Day baseball schedule.

The NL schedule, two doubleheaders and three night games, attracted 128,062 fans while four doubleheaders - one a day-night affair- and one night game in the AL drew 128,630. The major league total was 256,692 compared with a total of 257,794 last year.

The day's biggest crowd - 46,-882 - saw the doubleheader between Philadelphia and the Mets in New York. The smallest - 8,039 - was on hand at Kansas City for a night game between Detroit and the Athletics.

Last year's total included 148,449 for seven National League games and 109,345 for 10 American League contests.

Fakirs—the word means "needy person" in Arabic for man's spiritual need of God — are common to all creeds in India. They are usually regarded as holy men who possess miraculous powers, such as walking on fire. They are not influential in urban areas since the industrial revolution and the spread of education, but in the interior and in the villages they still retain some hold over the people.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

To the President it did not seem a valid solution, and he believed that the Congressmen's passionate concern with the Communist menace was motivated largely by their partisan desire to defeat him in the 1948 election. When the Un-American Activities Committee began to develop the case against Alger Hiss in the latter part of 1948, the President dismissed the matter as a partisan "red herring." But the popular pressures that had been generated forced the Administration into a competitive demonstration of its own ability to deal with Communism in its own way. It took up the Smith Act as its weapon, securing the indictment of the twelve principal leaders of the American Communist party for criminally conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government. The trial began in January 1949 and continued through the next ten months -- an extraordinary proceeding, with its elaborate review of Communist literature and teaching, its revelation of some of the paid informers with whom the FBI had been infiltrating the Communist apparatus, its testimony as to the "Esopian" language and clandestine rituals of the Communists, and its demonstration, by the excesses of defense counsel and the organized mobs in the streets, of the extent to which the Communists ere capable of going in exploiting the liberties guaranteed to them by the Constitution to which they were avowedly opposed.

The jury finally determined that the teaching and advocacy of Communism was equivalent to the teaching and advocacy of violent overthrow and therefore a criminal sedition. Meanwhile the trials of Alger Hiss, on what amounted to a charge of Soviet espionage, were going on; while the witnesses before the committees were more voluble than ever. From the breaking of the Hiss case, according to one writer, "indignation grew with each month. Congressional committees, loyalty boards and the FBI began to track down present (a questionable adjective) and past members of Soviet apparats, most of them American citizens." Alger Hiss was convicted in January 1950; in February Senator Joseph R. McCarthy opened his celebrated campaign against subversion by announcing that there were "card - carrying Communists" in the State Department; in March there came the most sensational of all the espionage disclosures with the confession of Klaus Fuchs, the high - ranking nuclear physicist who had allegedly been a Communist in Germany. And at the end of June there came the onslaught on Korea.

Jefferson City Choir to Sing at First Baptist

The 36-voice Chapel Choir from First Baptist Church, Jefferson City, Missouri will present a concert of sacred choral music on Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church.

The choir, directed by James E. Fuller, minister of music, is on a three-state tour with concerts in five churches. Mrs. Robert Cross is accompanist for the group and Mrs. Bill Todd is assistant director and accompanist. The Chapel Choir whose members are students of grades eight through twelve, are all members of the First Baptist Church where they sing regularly for worship services.

The program is planned in the form of a worship service with the theme "Victory Through Jesus Christ." Spoken modulations by the choir members bring together the anthems, hymns and spirituals to compliment the theme. Included on the program are two sacred classics "Jesus, Priceless Treasure" by J. S. Bach and "I Waited For the Lord" by Mendelssohn. Contemporary numbers include "Springs in the Desert" by Jennings, "Thy Word is a Light" by Morgan and "Behold the Man" by Peterson. Featured soloists with the choral scripture lesson are trumpeters Dan Pollock and Paul Robinson in a setting of Psalm 145 by Rose Marie Cooper. A boys' and girls' ensemble will also be a part of the program. The last section of the program will be spirituals with the final number being "Battle Humn of the Republic" arranged by Ringwald.

Several choir members plan careers in music and will major in music in college. Many have given their lives for vocational Christian service in various church related fields. This tour is planned to provide a challenge for the choir and to serve our Lord in other churches. The choir comes with a prayer that the music presented will bring blessing and inspiration.

HARD TO GET TAXES FROM LEASORS, CO-OPS

Enforcing a law should not be too great a dilemma -- but when enforcement means paying several million dollars in taxes, the corporation or company involved tends to balk.

The State Tax Commission is fighting a dual battle to enforce its tax laws -- one against leasing corporations in the state who have not been paying taxes on rental machines, and the other, a long-standing one with rural electric cooperatives.

Commissioner Hunter Phillips said the leasing companies had not been properly taxed until he came into office under Gov. Warren Hearnes.

International Business Machines (IBM) apparently plans to take their case to court, even though they are meeting with Phillips this week to attempt to iron out the problems.

But Phillips pointed out that they probably will contest their assessment of machines rented in the state, which now is under $10 million and would jump to almost $66 million if all are included in their fair value.

Previously, IBM and other rental agencies had assessed their machines at their factory cost less depreciation, but the tax commission feels that assessment can only fairly be based on the rental value. For example, Phillips said one machine was valued at $40,000 and yet is renting to the state for $9,000 a month.

Other corporations have readily cooperated with the commission and have volunteered to file amended returns including all rental machines. Xerox, for example, recently amended its return from $1 million to $11 million, Phillips said.

The problem of fairly assessing electric cooperatives has not been a new one and often is tied into county politics.

Within REA alone, assessment per mile of cable varies from $50 to $500, Phillips said. Assessment values are obtained by dividing the total value of plant facilities by the number of miles of cable.

Electric cooperatives maintain that since they are owned by their customers they should not be assessed by the state or on the same basis as privately-owned public utilities. Calloway Electric Co-op three years ago obtained a cease and desist order to prevent state assessment of their properties to challenge an attorney general's opinion which held that the law covered them. This case probably will be heard sometime this month.

Often electric cooperatives have received preferential treatment in their respective counties as many county officials serve on cooperative boards and generally all receive their electricity in counties served by cooperatives.

Missouri statute provides that the state tax commission shall assess these properties, but it still is being handled by county assessors.

To remedy assessments of all utilities the commission has changed its form of reporting to encompass all properties owned by the utilities. This will include both electric utilities and gas companies, Phillips said.

This change has already increased total tax income for many counties, he said, since before the utilities were only reporting what they wanted to the county clerks outside of property used directly in the distribution of the utility.

Trucks and other subsidiary equipment generally were not reported because local assessors thought the state was handling it, and the state, for a long time, thought the local assessors were responsible.

Assessing is a "tough job," Phillips said, but an assessor who stands behind his judgment and enforces his property reports generally will be respected.

This announcement is neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy any of these securities. The offering is made only by the Prospectus.

Montgomery Cleared Of Involuntary Manslaughter

Millionaire Joel A. Montgomery, 46, Saturday was found not guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda Wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, the driver of his car on the fatal night, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to 30 days at the Shelby County Penal Farm.

The Criminal Court jury deliberated six hours and eight minutes before reaching the verdicts.

Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, sought an immediate hearing on a petition for a suspended sentence, but Criminal Court Judge Perry H. Sellers said the petition must be filed later.

Exec. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer, chief prosecutor, said after the court adjourned, he will recommend that the state join in the petition. Mrs. Sells, a pretty divorcee, remains free on $250 bond.

Leaving the courts building, Mr. Montgomery, Sikeston, Mo., banker who fought extradition in the case for four years, shed tears.

He said he plans to run for governor or United States senator in Missouri within the next two years. "Our hat's in the ring," he said.

"I have no hard feelings (about the case)," Mr. Montgomery said. "There is no time for that. . . There has been no question about it. My feelings have been expressed many times. This is a complete vindication. I have maintained my innocence from the beginning.

Mrs. Sells cried when the verdict about her was read, but they appeared to be tears of happiness and relief. She smiled through her tears as she spoke to Mr. Schaeffer. In her first trial in 1960, she was sentenced to not more than three years in prison, but that sentence was reversed in December, 1961.

Maximum possible sentence is one to five years.

Mr. Montgomery was indicted in the widely publicized case on Jan. 26, 1962, more than two years after the accident. He was a Memphis land developer at the time of the wreck at Monroe and Wellington, but before the indictment, he moved to Missouri.

Mr. Dwyer and Asst. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley contended the statute of limitations did not apply since Mr. Montgomery moved out of Tennessee.

"I think the statute of limitations is the reason the jury acquitted me," Mr. Montgomery said. "I think the only reason they said the little girl was guilty was because she admitted going 40 to 45 miles per hour."

Some sources said the statute of limitations weighed heavily in the jury's decision, but the jurors themselves declined to talk about their verdict.

The jury foreman, J. A. Duffy of 4983 Welchshire, said he did not want to discuss the case because he had been locked up five days and wanted to forget it as soon as possible. He said he had not wanted to serve on the jury, but "It was my duty."

"We have no apologies," Mr. Dwyer said. "As we said to the jury, we would not be critical of them . They have spoken and we abide by their decision. We presented every fact and every bit of evidence we had. We now move on to the next case."

Mr. Schaeffer had to file a motion for a new trial for Mrs. Sells to remain free. Because of technicalities, Judge Sellers set a hearing on the motion for June 30. The request for a suspended sentence might be heard at that time or later.

"I feel fine," said Montgomery defense attorney Don G. Owens after the verdict.

David E. Blanton of Sikeston, another Montgomery attorney, said, "If there had been a more thorough investigation in the beginning, I don't think there would ever been an indictment against him."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- Prosecutors in the Joel A. Montgomery Manslaughter trial, which ended here Saturday, said following his acquittal that they felt a four - year extradition battle to have Montgomery extradited from Missouri was not in vain.

"We felt we accomplished quite a bit in our legal request to have him returned to stand before the bar of justice as Mrs. Betty Lou Sells did seven years ago," Exec. Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer said.

"We were successful in having Montgomery returned to this jurisdiction where he faced a jury of his peers," Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley added.

"We feel we presented all the evidence and the state received a full, fair and impartial hearing as did the defense."

Montgomery, 46 - year -old wealthy Sikeston, Mo., banker and businessman, was acquitted in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, driver of Montgomery's car at the time of the accident, was convicted and given a 30-day sentence at the Shelby County Penal Farm. Her attorney, however is expected to seek a suspended sentence.

Montgomery, a former Memphis land developer, was indicted on an involuntary manslaughter charge in Jan. 1962, shortly after the State Supreme Court overturned Mrs. Sells' first conviction on a similar charge.

From that time until he voluntarily surrendered himself last Feb. 15, after a Missouri extradition warrant was issued for him, Montgomery stayed out of Memphis. He maintained his innocence throughout the entire time and said the fight was a matter of principal.

The defense said the two-year statute of limitations in the case had run out before Montgomery was indicted, but state attorneys maintained the statutory period was suspended when he moved his family to Sikeston, in Jan. 1961.

An all-male jury heard five days of testimony, they deliberated for more than six hours before returning their verdicts in the widely followed case.

Following his acquittal, Montgomery told newsmen he would seek a statewide office in Missouri "in the next two years". He said he would either be a candidate for governor or senator.

Hearnes Elected President of CPA Group

KENNETT-- Robert Hearnes of Charleston, brother of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, was elected president of the Southeast Missouri Chapter of Certified Public Accountants in a meeting held at the Kennett Country Club.

Hearnes succeeds Norman Spitzmiller of Sikeston who served as the chapter president last year.

Other officers elected at the annual organizational meeting of the group were: Jimmy Landrum of Poplar Bluff, president-elect; David Alberts of Poplar Bluff, secretary; and Gerald Hamm of Poplar Bluff, treasurer.

The executive - director of the Missouri Society of CPA, Donald E. Breimer, was present for the meeting and addressed the chapter.

3 Area Men Qualify For President's Club

Terry C. Conn and Keith Duncan of Sikeston, and John M. Leigh of Parma, have qualified for membership in Kansas City Life Insurance Company's President's Club and been extended a personal invitation from the company's President, Joseph R. Bixby, to attend the 1966 President's Club Seminar to be held at Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, California, June 8 through 11.

The 1966 meeting marks the 22nd annual Seminar held for the professional benefit of the company's prominent field representatives.

To become a member, an agent must meet high production requirements, and his progress in the life insurance business and his service to his community also are factors. The attainment of President's Club membership is considered an outstanding achievement throughout the company and the life insurance industry.

Less than 10 per cent of the company's 2,800 licensed agents in 41 states and the District of Columbia qualify for the President's Club each year.

Nine From First Baptist Attend Meeting

DETROIT -- After two days of the pastor conferences and Woman's Missionary Union meeting at which time most of the leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention brought messages that filled the hearts of the 7,000 or so that attended these first two days, the convention officially opened Tuesday night. It is being held in the beautiful Cobo Hall, overlooking the Detroit River and the city of Windor, Canada.

There were no processions as the dark suited crowd trickled in for nearly an hour filling all but the upper regions of Cobo Hall for the first night session.

They settled down in brightly colored chairs facing a 40-foot white curtain which will be used later for play silhouettes and dramas. The voices of some 11,000 or 12,000 messengers on the opening night, all in one great accord, acclaimed, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name, Let Angels Prostrate Fall."

A gold throated tenor from Nashville, Tenn., Robert L. Snead sang, "Don't You Hear the Angels Singing. 'Tis a Glory Hallelujah Jubilee." This was as inspiring as was Miss Jo Ann Shelton as she brought 15 minutes of glorious spiritual songs in the afternoon's Pastors Conference. Miss Shelton will be leaving next week to join the Billy Graham London Crusade.

Messengers heard speeches from outgoing president Wayne Dehoney of Jackson, Tenn., and Dr. Roberts of the Ohio Southern Baptist Convention. Dehoney outlined plans for a cooperative "Crusade of the Americas" in 1969.

A delay in acting on a move to change the name of Southern Baptist to a less regional one was asked by the executive committee in a session Tuesday.

A new president will be elected Wednesday and speakers will include Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, Bill Moyers, special assistant to President Johnson.

The nine messengers seated at the convention from First Baptist church, Sikeston, Mo., report that they are enjoying all these wonderful messages and inspiring reports. For many it's their first time to this national convention.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. James W. Hackney and his family, who usually attend these every year stated, "I'm thrilled to have five or six of my laymen and their wives here as messengers to this great convention."

Those attending besides the Rev. and Mrs. Hackney are their children, Carol and David and Mr. and Mrs. Lenzie Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Johnson and John W. Davis.

Maj. Everett Wiss Returns From 70-Day Airlift

Major Everett Wiss, airforce reserve, returned Friday from a 70-day tour of active duty with the 85th Military Airlift Squadron at Travis AF Base, Fairfield, Calif.

This tour provided Major Wiss with first-hand experience in the Military Airlift Command (formerly Military Air Transport System), & took him to such places as Honolulu, Wake Island, Guam, The Phillipine Islands and Okinawa.

His regular assignment is with the 442nd Military Airlift Wing (Reserve) at Richards-Gebaur A F Base, Grandview, Mo., as a transport pilot. The 442nd is equipped with the C-124 "Glovemaster", four-engine heavy transport plane and has global capabilities. The Reserve unit supplements the "regular" airlift forces in support of our armed forces throughout the world, but especially in Southeast Asia.

While on duty at Travis AFB, Maj. Wiss made two round trips to Okinawa. On his last trip the plane was grounded at Guam awaiting typhoon "Irma" to leave the Phillipines area so the mission could continue. During this time he visited with the Rev. Dave Griffin family. Rev. Griffin is a Baptist missionary on Guam and brother-in-law of the J.D. Harper's of Sikeston.

In February this year, Major Wiss participated in an airlift mission to Saigon, Viet Nam, and on June 2 will depart on a mission to Bermuda.

SAINT LOUIS BLUE SHIELD

65+ COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

A special plan of medical-surgical and health benefits protection to enable people over age 65 to complement and complete the Supplementary Medical Insurance Benefits of the Federal Medicare Program Part B.

COVERAGE FOR THOSE OVER AGE 65

Blue Shield's Complementary Program is the ideal way for people over 65 who subscribe for Part B benefits under the Federal Medicare plan to complete their medical protection.

Blue Shield Complementary takes up where Medicare Part B leaves off—and it builds directly on the government Part B program benefits, so that you know where you stand in paying your doctor and other covered health service bills.

Medicare Part B requires each eligible patient to pay a $50 deductible amount out-of-pocket each year for the services included in the program. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that $50 in connection with any and all of the services covered by the Blue Shield protection you select.

Medicare pays only 80 per cent of reasonable charges for services covered under Part B provisions — requiring that the patient pay the other 20 per cent. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that 20 per cent also, for all services included in the program you choose.

In short, Blue Shield Complementary completes Medicare, and provides the ideal way for those over 65 to assure that the reasonable charges they may incur for covered services in case of illness or accident will be paid in full.

AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Protection for the dependents of persons over age 65 is equally important. For those dependents not eligible for Medicare—a spouse under age 65, or unmarried dependent children under age 19—Blue Shield continues to make available its regular programs of medical-surgical protection: Enrollment in the Blue Shield Complementary Program is provided in individual (one-person) memberships, following the pattern of Medicare, while enrollment in regular Blue Shield plans includes the customary individual and family memberships.

The Blue Shield Complementary Program is divided into two parts— a basic plan, and an optional rider to cover additional services. The basic plan is available alone, or in combination with the rider. The rider, however, is available in combination only.

BLUE SHIELD COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

Medicare Part B Provides	Blue Shield Complementary
DEDUCTIBLE Patient pays first $50 each calendar year toward charges for any and all services included under Part B.	Pays first $50 each calendar year toward charges for services included under Blue Shield basic complementary program.
PHYSICIANS' SERVICES 80 per cent of reasonable charges for physicians' professional services of all kinds, furnished in a doctor's office, patient's home, a hospital, or elsewhere. (Routine physicals and the like are not covered.)	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable charges for: a) Medical services provided to a hospital in-patient* b) Surgical services, wherever rendered c) Other professional services of physicians, wherever rendered. *for medical services outside the hospital, see Complementary Rider.
DIAGNOSTIC X-RAY, LABORATORY AND OTHER TESTS 80 per cent of reasonable costs incurred in addition to physicians' professional charges (but not including in-patient hospital services).	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs.
X-RAY, RADIUM AND RADIOISOTOPE THERAPY 80 per cent of reasonable costs incurred in addition to physicians' professional charges, including materials and services of technicians (but not including in-patient hospital services).	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs.

BLUE SHIELD OPTIONAL COMPLEMENTARY RIDER

Medicare Part B Provides	Blue Shield Complementary Rider
DEDUCTIBLE	$50 payment is made available each year toward charges for any services included under Medicare Part B, as well as for services listed under the Blue Shield Complementary Program.
PHYSICIANS' SERVICES	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable charges for medical services in the physician's office or patient's home. (not covered in the basic Complementary Program).
HOSPITAL OUT-PATIENT SERVICES 80 per cent of reasonable costs of hospital services furnished in conjunction with physicians' services rendered to an out-patient, including such drugs as cannot be self-administered.	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs.
OUT-OF-HOSPITAL PSYCHIATRIC CARE 80 per cent of reasonable costs of expenses of out-patient psychiatric care, including physicians' charges and hospital services. (Expenses taken into account for any one calendar year are limited to 62½ per cent of the total amount incurred, or $312.50, whichever is lesser).	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs up to the maximums set by the Medicare Program.
HOME HEALTH VISITS 80 per cent of reasonable costs for up to 100 home visits each calendar year by nurses, physical therapists and similar health personnel providing services in accordance with a plan established by a physician. (Prior hospitalization not required.)	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs up to 100 visits in a calendar year.
OTHER SERVICES AND SUPPLIES 80 per cent of reasonable costs of other services and supplies specified in the law, including necessary ambulance service; surgical dressings, splints and casts; rental of medical equipment such as hospital beds, wheelchairs and iron lungs for use in the patient's home; prosthetic devices (other than dental) which replace all or part of an internal body organ, and braces and artificial limbs and eyes. Pediatrics Course At Harvard University

Dr. Joseph C. Blanton

Ninety physicians from the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone convened in Boston from May 16 through 20 for an intensive postgraduate course in pediatrics. The course is offered at the Massachusetts General Hospital under the auspices of Courses for Graduates, Harvard Medical School.

Attending from Sikeston was Dr. Joseph C. Blanton.

"Pediatrics 1" presents a panaoramic survey of recent advances in preventative, diagnostic, and therapeurtic pediatrics designed for physicians who care for infants, children, and adolescents. The program includes a variety of lectures, case presentations, panel discussions, and clinical seminars, and relates recent progress in the basic sciences to practical pediatrics. Attention is given to evaluation of psychological, intellectual and physical development, and prevention and treatment of abnormalities and considered.

Directing the course were Dr. Nathan B. Talbot, Charles Wilder Professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and Head of the Department of Pediatrics and Chief of Children's Service, at the Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. Thomas C. Peebles, Instructor in Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School; Dr. John D. Crawford, associate Professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and Chief, Metabolic - Endocrine Unit, Children's Service, Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. William H. Hendren, Clinical Associate in Surgeroy, Associate Visiting Surgeon, Massachusetts General Hospital. Also assisting were various specialists in the medical and surgical department of the Harvard Medical School and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

"Pediatrics 1" is one of the the many post-doctoral courses offered during the year by Harvard in cooperation with its affiliated teaching hospitals. The belief that a doctor's medical education should continue throughout his lifetime influenced the Harvard Medical School to institute the graduate teaching program 94 years ago (1872) to help practising physicians keep pace with the ever widening horizons in the fields of medical practice and research.

A naturalized citizen of the United States has the same rights as a native-born citizen, except that he may not become president.

Dexter Has New Teachers

DEXTER -- So far, the Dexter Schools have employed nine new teachers for next year, according to T. S. Hill, Superintendent. Five of these are replacements for teachers who are quitting and four are for new positions. These new teachers and assignments are as follows:

Mrs. Neva Settles, Elementary; Mrs. Patricia Taylor, Elementary; Mr. Earnie Yates, Jr High Social Studies; Miss Linda Langley, Sr. High Girls' P. E.; Mrs. Norma Leach, Jr. High Music; Mr. Loyd Williams, Sr. High Social Studies; Mrs. Donna Telle, Jr. High Girls' P.E. and Elementary P. E.; Mr. Tom Telle, Sr. High Social Studies and Head Football; Mr. Wayne Crippen, Sr. High Mathematics and Ass't Basketball.

Two additional teachers are still needed. One is needed for the elementary schools and one is needed to teach social studies in the senior high and assist with football.

Wayne Crippen has been employed to teach in the Senior High School and to assist with basketball. He is a graduate of Cape College and has been teaching mathematics and assisting with basketball in the Kirkwood school system for the past seven years.

In addition to his undergraduate work in mathematics, Mr. Crippen has done three summers of graduate work in mathematics. While in high school and college, he lettered in basketball and was one of the regular players at Cape.

Mr. Crippen is married to the former Rebecca Taylor.

SUMMER PROGRAMS

The Dexter schools will conduct several summer programs. If the Head Start Program is approved it will be conducted again. An application was submitted in February of this year but has not been approved as yet. A tremendous amount of red tape is involved in one of these programs which delays the process of approval. Also, there are more restrictions to the program this year. For example, the income of farm families has to be lower than that of non-farm families in order for their children to qualify for the program. A non-farm family of three can qualify with an income of $2500 but a farm family of three is limited to $1750.

A reading program will be conducted this summer for a few select students. This will be an experimental program as well as one to help the participating students.

Also, a physical development program will be conducted this summer. This program is designed to help those students who are deficient physically.

Jobs Provided By Youth Corps

Summer jobs for 1,279 Missouri young people will be provided under 13 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects approved by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

The young workers, 16 through 21, will be selected from among those eligible for Economic Opportunity Act programs. The U. S. Labor Department will provide $592,590 for the 13 projects, and local sponsors will pay the other ten percent of the cast.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps is a major part of the Nation's war on poverty. It provides part, or nearly full-time job opportunities designed to allow young people to return to school, or acquire the work experience necessary to hold jobs.

Projects approved for Southeast Missouri include:

East Prairie Reorganized School District No. 2, East Prairie, Missouri, 60 enrollees, federal portion 28,650.

Holcomb Reorganized School District R-3, Holcomb, Missouri, 32 enrollees, federal portion 12,310.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

If therefore the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. —(John 8:36)

Through the almighty power of God in us, we can be free from any and all habits that do not contribute to our well-being. Through the strength of God in us, we take dominion and authority over ourselves, our lives, our bodies and our habits. We establish freedom in our lives by virtue of our faith in God. Thank God, we are free.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. (Acts 2:1)

PRAYER: Hear us, O God, as we pray for a Pentecost in our day. Give us the willingness to give time to prayer that we may be remade into vessels fit for Thy use. We ask in the name of our Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . .Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: We are two Ohio teachers whose students are between 10 and 12 years of age. The questions they ask about sex and marriage indicate that they are getting absolutely no information at home.

On occasion we have telephoned mothers and suggested that they discuss various aspects of puberty and the beginning of life with their children. We feel that home is the logical place to learn about these matters. Some mothers expressed shock and disgust that their children should be thinking about "such nasty things." One mother told me, "You can be sure I will punish Johnny if he tries to get me to talk to him about such filth."

If parents refuse to discuss these matters with their children where are the youngsters supposed to learn? What can we do to help them? -- TROUBLED

Dear Troubled: Fortunately, sex education is at long last being permitted in public schools -- even in Chicago.

Ohio is one of the more enlightened states in this regard. I am ashamed to say Illinois has been among the most backward. I know of some Chicago teachers who heroically have given their students some decent sex education at the risk of getting fired.

Of course, home is the best place to learn about life and sex, but if kids can't get the answers at home, school is the second best place.

Teachers who are asked questions about sex and marriage should answer them frankly and honestly. And they should have the support of their principals and their board of education. They are doing the parents' job and they should receive thanks -- not criticism.

Dear Ann Landers: Periodically I receive chain letters. It seems these letters run in streaks. I won't get one for months, then suddenly I'll receive five or six in one week. I have always considered chain letters a nuisance and have torn them up.

Two weeks ago our teenage daughter received a chain letter which closed with these words: "If you keep this chain going you will have good luck. If you break this chain your luck will be very bad."

Gladys showed the letter to me and asked my advice. I told her to use her own judgment but I let her know that I have always thrown them out. Gladys decided to do the same.

Don't ask me why, but ever since that day, the poor girl has had one disappointment after another. She is convinced that the chain letter she destroyed is responsible for the jinx. Will you please say something in your column to set her straight? -- NOT SUPERSTITIOUS

Dear Not: Of course there is no relation between the chain letter and your daughter's run of bad luck, but it's much easier (and convenient-ly face-saving) to blame disappointments on a chain letter rather than to accept personal responsibility for failure. You probably can't sell this notion to Gladys NOW but as time goes on and she becomes more rational and mature (hopefully), she will see evidence on the other side which will persuade her.

Confidential to Baboon Legs: I sympathize with you and I agree with you. A 15-year-old girl should be allowed to "do something" as a matter of good grooming. Either a depilatory cream or shaving will not hurt you.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed, envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In 1965 our Government collected about $2,500,000 from the taxpayers for using a few of our national parks.

This was only a fraction of the $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 they expected to grab, having included all the camping areas at the Corps of Engineer lakes.

I thought we were promised free recreation on these lakes when they were built. After all our tax money paid for them.

Is this the way our Senators and Representatives repay us for voting them into office, or is it another way for LBJ to have more control?

If our Government did not give so much money to our enemies, such a Nasser, this tax and others would not be needed.

These camping areas could be built and maintained by some of the able - bodied men on our relief rolls.

Dear Sir:

In behalf of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges, We the General Chairmans and Co-Chairmans for the Arrangements of the Grand Lodge and Rebekah Assembly of Missouri wish to take this opportunity to convey our heartfelt thanks to you and your Staff for the coverage you gave us for this important occasion.

There were 600 or more people here for these meetings from all over the State of Missouri, and all reported one of the best Sessions the Grand lodge has ever witnessed.

Thanking you again;

Sincerely;

INDIANTOWN GAP, PA. (AHTNC) -- Cadet William D. Myers, 21, son of Mrs. Alice M. Myers, 1455 Mill, New Madrid, Mo., will attend Reserve Officer Training Corps summer camp at Indiantown Gap, Pa., starting June 18. He is a student of Murray (Ky.) State College.

During the six-week encampment, he will receive advanced training in the military subjects he has been studying at school.

Cadets are trained in various subjects which will provide them with the skills necessary to command. On completion of the ROTC program, graduates may receive commissions as second lieutenants and may choose any branch of the Army.

A member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Scabbard and Blade Society, Myers is a 1962 graduate of New Madrid High School.

RENO, Nev. -- Staff Sergeant Ronald D. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hallison R. Mullen of Bernie, Mo., has completed the rigorous U. S. Air Force survival and special training course conducted by the Air Training Command at Stead AFB, Nev.

Sergeant Mullen, a communications technician, received combat-type escape and evasion training for survival under adverse climatic conditions and hostile environments.

The sergeant attended Dexter (Mo.) High School. His wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Gene Magee of Brandon, Fla. Mrs. Mullen's mother, Mrs. Vera Diaz, resides at 1007 E. Crawford, Tampa, Fla.

Ranney W. McDonough, who completed the requirements for graduation from the University of Missouri at Rolla, Rolla, Missouri, was commissioned on May 29, 1966 as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve during Commencement Exercises.

Together with 28 other students, Lieutenant McDonough was administered the Oath of Office by Colonel David L. Gundling, Professor of Military Science. The new lieutenants earned their commissions through successful completion of the four year course in Military Science and attainment of their Bachelor of Science Degrees.

Lieutenant McDonough, who majored in Civil Engineering was assigned to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton R. McDonough, who reside at Box 86, Morley, Mo.

PHU BAI, VIETNAM - Equipment Operator First Class Hubert A. McClain, USN, son of Mrs. Florence McClain of 822 Agnes St., Sikeston, Mo., is serving in Vietnam with the Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 7, at Phu Bai, Vietnam.

A seven-day airlift from Davisville, R.I., put his unit on station in the combat zone near Hue.

Prior to deployment to Vietnam, the SeaBees underwent intensive training by the Army at Fort Devens, Mass., and by the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

A spark from the flue caused slight damage to the J. A. Hess home on Park avenue early Saturday afternoon. The roof was scorched and wallpaper of one room was damaged by water.

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise announced Saturday the names of instructors who will teach in the new elementary school to be built on a lot north of the athletic field this summer. Miss Dorothea Miller, the principal, will have charge of the third grade classes; Miss Lillian Putnam will teach first grade; Miss Edna Howard, second grade; Miss Lucille Stubblefield, fourth grade; Miss Nell Yanson, fifth grade; and Miss Myrtle Dalton, the sixth grade.

E. M. Brooks out on the farm known as the Milem Farm now owned by Joe L. Matthews, has laid by the biggest part of his corn crop and the balance is waist high. Now listen to this: With a tractor and one man in 14 hours straight running, 52 acres were plowed at a cost of six cents per acre.

Miss Caroline Hess' play school for children of preschool age will close today until autumn. Miss Hess has been assisted at the school by her sister, Mrs. A. H. Osburn of Dallas, Tex. These children, who have been enrolled are being invited to attend the school's last session this morning: Ann Hollenbock, Bill Baker, Cy Dowdy, Elizabeth Matthews, Betty Lou Ross, Charles Matthews, John Kendig, Marlin Graber, Mary Jane

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1889, one of the nation's worst flood disasters occurred -- the Johnstown, Pa., flood. Between 2,000 man 3,000 persons died when heavy rains caused a dam to burst at South Fork, 12 miles above the city.

On this date

In 1916, during World War I, the naval battle of Jutland began.

In 1926, the Sesquicentennial exposition opened in Philadelphia.

In 1942, British Prime Minister Winston Church said Germany would be pounded city by city.

In 1945, the Japanese on Okinawa lost the strong defense point of Shuri in the center of the enemy line.

Ten years ago -- Biblical scholars announced they had deciphered two more of the Dead Sea scrolls discovered in Jordan in 1952. The two scrolls told of a fabulous treasure of gold and silver hidden in a secret place that probably was referred to in a scroll that was still undiscovered.

Five years ago-- In secret French - Algerian peace talks to France, the delegation from Paris and the rebel representatives from Algeria disagreed over the status of the oil-rich Sahara Desert.

One year ago-- A South Vietnamese political crisis over the replacement of four Cabinet ministers in Saigon ended. Chief of State Phan Khac Suu agreed to accept the appointment of four new minsters by Premier Phan Huy Quat.

FUNDS FOR TANEYCOMO STUDY APPROVED

WASHINGTON, D. C.-- The Department of the Interior budget for fiscal 1967 as passed by the House of Representatives and Senate includes a $10,000 increase in the annual budget for the cooperative fisheries unit at the University of Missouri at Columbia, Senators Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long said today. The annual budget for the cooperative fisheries unit will now total $40,000 as the two Missouri Senators had requested.

A portion of the increased appropriation will be used to study the problem of excessive plant growth on Lake Taneycomo, Missouri. Heavy plant growth, a growing problem on reservoirs throughout the country, has caused fishing, boating and swimming to decline in popularity, creating a threat to the economy in that well - known tourist resort.

Box turtles, gorging on fresh fruit in strawberry season, often become so fat that they cannot close their shells.

apparently fell in and the other tried to rescue him, probably Friday night.

A Ft. Leonard Wood soldier Harold E. Tomlinson, 20, drowned Sunday in the Gasconade River a mile north of Waynesville. He died only an hour after another soldier was rescued from the river at the same spot and revived with artificial respiration.

Terry Page, 31, of St. Louis, drowned Saturday while swimming in the Big River a mile south of Ware.

Nations Death Toll Reaches New High

The death toll on the nation's roads has soared to an unprecedented three-day Memorial Day figure and it may surpass the total fatalities recorded for any Memorial Day weekend regardless of duration.

As of Monday midnight, local time, 519 lives were lost on America's highways. The death count began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

In other accidents 43 persons perished in boating mishaps and 90 persons drowned. Ten of the drowning victims were recorded in South Carolina.

The highest previous traffic death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last year.

In 1963, 525 persons were killed during a four-day weekend.

The National Safety Council forecast 540 persons would die during the 78-hour period. The council said Monday the current holiday period was similar to the Fourth of July weekend last year when 547 lives were lost.

Sunny skies and pleasant weather throughout most of the nation contributed to motorists' jamming thoroughfares as millions of Americans traveled to recreation areas, athletic events and family gatherings.

California, with more automobiles and miles of freeways than any other state, recorded the highest number of deaths as of midnight, 55.

The worst single recorded accident occured in Somerset, Ky., Saturday when five persons died in a three-car collision. Four of the victims were from a vacationing Ohio family.

The lowest three-day rate for a Memorial Day, since records were initiated, was in 1948 when 204 persons died.

The three-day Christmas holiday in 1965 stands as the most tragic highway period with 720 deaths recorded.

The Associated Press made a comparative record of traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. Friday May 13 to midnight Momday May 16 and recorded 376 deaths during the period.

The National Safety Council said 10,710 persons died during the first three months of 1966, a seven per cent increase over the similar period in 1965.

The total highway death toll in 1965 was a record 49,000.

Rose Bound Over To Circuit Court

James "Monkey" Rose, 25, of Sikeston, was bound over to Circuit Court this morning after Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery refused a motion in a preliminary hearing to set aside a felonious charge of burglary and larceny.

He is charged with burglarizing the Wright's Jewelry Store April 29. Sikeston Policeman Robert Atkinson testified in this morning's preliminary hearing that he caught Rose in front of the store at 11:30 p.m. with a sack of jewelry and a crowbar in his hand.

Rose, after he was bound over to Circuit Court, called Atkinson an "s.o.b."

His bond was set at $1,000.

Todd also waived a preliminary hearing on a felonious charge of stealing $51 from the Trigg Shell Service Station.

Both defendents posted $500 bond and were bound over to appear in Circuit Court.

Willis Dement, 201 North West Street, was fined $25 and costs for speeding.

Betty Hopper, Highway 30, was fined $10 and costs for failure to have an operator's license.

Stephen Stricker, Charleston, was fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Ernie Merrick, route one, was fined $4 and costs for not having his vehicle properly registered.

Margaret Lynn, 123 Baker, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Rose Barker, Benton, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Harold Basinger, 212 Murray Lane, and Jerry Davis, Morley, were each fined $40 and costs for being in possession of liquor while both were under the age of 21. They were placed on one year's probation.

Charges of abiding and cohabiting without being married that were lodged against Robert Davis, 220 Smith, and Virginia Gentry, 220 Smith, were dismissed upon payment of costs. The charges were brought against the two by Virginia Gentry's husband, Billy Gentry.

Report Munger In Satisfactory Condition

The accident happened in eight feet of water.

Drownings at Clearwater, Wappapello

In the Wappapello incident, Carl James Krallman Jr., 24, of St. Louis, drowned when he jumped off a moving speedboat, according to witnesses. The Highway Patrol said the witnesses told them Krallman had jumped from the boat several times and then would be picked up again after the boat circled. In his final leap, when the boat circled, Krallman had submerged. The body had not been recovered early Monday.

The incident occurred about 3:30 p.m. Sunday near the mouth of Peoples Creek, several hundred yards off the boat dock at Clay's Cabins. The boat was owned and driven by James Meehan, 26, according to the Patrol. Two other passengers in the boat were Gary Laycob, 32, and Sylvester Jurczyk, all from St. Louis. The four men had been staying at a cabin owned by Bob Pruitt, St. Louis, and located in the Lakeland Estates development.

The man's body is believed to be in about 20 feet of water.

Searchers from both Wayne and Butler counties began looking for Krallman yesterday afternoon and called off the operation at dusk. The search was resumed this morning.

Divers from the Poplar Bluff Fire Department, Missouri Highway Patrol, the Missouri Conservation Commission and other volunteers including Loren Lewis, Boat Commission patrolman, joined in the operation.

Three other persons have drowned in Missouri during the Memorial Day holiday.

Two of the victims were Jimmy Lewis, 12, and Jerry Lewis, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis of Moberly.

Experienced campers, the boys left home Friday afternoon for an overnight stay at Rothwell Park. A search was started when they failed to return home Saturday night. The bodies were found in the lake at the park. Police said one boy

State Budget For Oncoming Year

by LARRY HALL
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Missouri's budget of nearly $978 million for the next year brings into sharp focus the dramatic growth of state government in the last 20 years.

We're spending our money now for things that weren't even heard of then. The increase in cost is more than 400 per cent.

Let the stark figures tell the story.

For the 1946-47 fiscal year, the Legislature appropriated more than $62 million in general revenue tax money and more than $154 million from various funds. The total for all state governmental operations was $216,772,000.

This time in the recent special session the Legislature approved a total of $977,900,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1.

That included more than $431 million from general revenue and more than $546,600,000 from funds -- most of them federal matching money.

In '46-'47, the best estimate you could get on the number of state employes was 12,900. Nobody knew for sure because there was no accurate count.

The entire state budget staff at that time, during the first administration of the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, consisted of one old man and two women who doubled as clerks, secretaries and adding machinery operators.

Today the state has an estimated 35,200 employes. A professional budget staff was set up under the late Gov. James T. Blair and today it includes budget analysts, computer programmers and other data processing experts.

There is a new administrative services unit, just getting started, and its goal is to bring some kind of uniformity in the way state agencies keep their books, handle their correspondence and conduct their routine operations.

There is also a central records agency which is filling up the Capitol basement with records and some day will need a building of its own to store the millions of pieces of paper used in running a state government of this size.

A good share of your state tax dollar goes for state school aid. It has grown more than three-fold in just the last 11 years.

Formerly the Legislature allotted state aid to schools on the basis of one-third of the general revenue. For the year ending June 30, 1955, the last year that method was used, the total came to $47,269,000.

Then the Legislature set up a basic school foundation program designed originally to give most help to the poorer districts and geared to encourage the merger of school districts.

While the number of school districts has shrunk from more than 8,000 to about 1,000 in the last 20 years, the amount of state aid has increased sharply.

The first year under the new foundation program, state aid totaled $54,600,000.

Since then the formula has been changed and liberalized several times. For the new year starting July 1, the total is around $165 million and the pressure is on for more money next time.

A strong factor in the growing cost of running the state government has been the demand for appropriations to match federal funds in such programs as highway beautification, Medicare, the so-called "war on poverty" and many others.

All of these figured in hot fights during the recent special legislative session. And no one knows as yet what the full impact of the Medicare program will be.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in a speech this week urged a cautious approach to further implementation of the program -- especially payment of physician's costs.

He said in effect it could break the state and gave an initial estimate that new angles of Medicare in this field could cost $12 to $15 million more in state funds by 1970. And that kind of money is nowhere in sight without tax increases.

Let's take a look at some of the new programs and institutions that have contributed to rising costs over the last 20 years.

Increased emphasis on a modern mental health program has played a big role.

In that period the state took over the city operated mental hospitals at St. Louis and Kansas City, the St. Louis school and hospital for the mentally retarded and set up a training center for psychiatrists and aides in St. Louis.

This trend has led some legislators to plead with the cities -- "Please don't give us anything more."

In addition the legislature authorized three new intensive mental health treatment centers at St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia and nine new mental retardation centers which are not built yet.

In the field of higher education, the University of Missouri has expanded from campuses at Columbia and Rolla to two new ones at St. Louis and Kansas City which are in the beginning stages.

And last year the state took the responsibility for the last two years of training to make the junior colleges at St. Joseph and Joplin four-year institutions.

A space center and a big atomic reactor have become part of a new research center at Columbia and the former Rolla School of Mines also has an atomic reactor. A growing medical school and hospital also has been set up at Columbia.

The state also has entered into a growing state aid program for other junior colleges.

At Moberly, the former medium security prison is now known as the men's training center. It has two residence units for 300 men each and a third was authorized by the recent special session to the tune of $2 million.

In addition, numerous new state agencies have been created to handle special problems. Major ones include:

The Water Pollution Board, Water Resources Board, Air Conservation Comission, Missouri Boat Commission, Missouri council on the arts, an administrative hearing commissioner, an inter-agency council for outdoor recreation, a Human Rights Commission to administer new fair employment practics and public accommodations laws, a state and regional planning agency, a legislative fiscal affairs committee to study all expenditures, a permanent state tax study commission to find out where the money's coming from, and a host of legislative interim study committees, all of which cost money.

Existing agencies also have doubled and quadrupled in size -the Highway Patrol, the Highway Commission, the Conservation Commission, the park board program and others. All say they still can't keep pace with public demands.

And don't fool yourself-The end is not in sight.

The only question is the one the venerable Sen. Michael Kinney, D-St. Louis keeps asking. He has seen the growth since he first came to the Senate in 1913.

He's laid up right now with a broken leg. But in talking about the new developments he still wants to know:

"Where we going to get the money?"

Sikeston Man In Illinois Accident

CHESTER, Ill. - A woman was injured fatally and three persons were hurt seriously today in a two-car collision on Highway 3 north of Chester, Ill.

State police said Mrs. Germaine Harrelson, 57, was killed. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Edgar, 63.

Harrelson, Bedford L. Robinson, 65, of Sikeston, Mo., the driver of the other auto, and Robinson's wife, Eva, 60, were injured.

Salvage Yard Owner Slugged And Robbed

CHARLESTON -- Three colored men, all armed with pistols, held up the Chuck's Salvage Yard, and made way with between $600 and $700.

The three men entered the salvage yard and told the owner, Chuck Christian, they wanted to buy a 1959 Ford carburetor.

After the owner started to get the auto part, the three took the money, after hitting him over the head with one of the guns after the owner said there was no money in the building.

The gunmen started shooting at several dogs on the premises as they left in a 1959 white Ford.

Before leaving, however, the three men went to get Mrs. Christian, who managed to lock herself in the garage. The fleeing gunmen tore the telephone wires from the wall.

After the trio left, Mr. and Mrs. Christian went to a neighbor, Robert Chandler, to call Charleston police chief, Guthrie Hunter, who with Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, made an investigation of the robbery.

3 Area Deaths Over Weekend

The Southeast Missouri area came up with a rash of serious highway accidents, to give the area the high total of 41 with 44 injuries and three deaths for Memorial Day weekend. The three deaths occurred in the northern area of the district.

Two deaths resulted in a single accident Saturday, at 1:30 p.m., two miles south of Greenville on highway 67. A 1966 Chevrolet, driven by Joe Fague, 33, St. Louis, came across the centerline and sideswiped a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Millard Hayes, 36, St. Louis, and then struck a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Rovert Mills, 61, St. Louis, headon.

Killed in the accident were, the two-year-old son of Fague, and Robert Mills, driver of the 1963 Chevrolet. Both bodies were taken to the Gish Funeral Home, Greenville.

The third holiday death occurred Saturday at 4:45 p.m. when John L. Petot, Jr., 20, route six, Perryville, lost his life while riding a 1963 Honda motorcycle on a blind curve on a gravel road.

He came around the curve on the wrong side of the road and struck a 1952 Chevrolet driven by Theodore E. Walther, 76, Perryville, who had stopped in an effort to avoid the accident, but the motorcycle hit the Chevrolet headon. The accident occurred one-half mile from Crosstown.

Injuries were heavy over the weekend, with eight in a single accident Saturday at 11:50 p.m. at highway 60 and Wyatt.

Two cars involved in the accident were a 1958 Ford, driven by Grady Ketchum, 24, Charleston, who was eastbound, when a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Charles Babb, 26, Circleville, O., attempted to turn on the wrong side and struck the Ketchum car headon.

Ketchum received cuts and bruises and a broken left hand, while three passengers in his car, all of Charleston, were also injured. They were, Lucy Speakman,, 25, broken hip, cuts and bruises; William Carter, 21, possible neck injury and other bruises; and Jack Crane, 24, cuts on his face and chin, and bruises.

Injured in the Babb car were the driver, who received cuts and bruises; three passengers, John Conrad, 24, Circleville, O., possible neck injury, cuts and bruises; Donna Conrad, 23, Circleville, cuts and bruises; and Carolyn Ream, Adelphia, O., cuts and bruises. All were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Six young persons were injured in a two-car accident Monday at 12:15 p.m. on route V, a half-mile north of the Trail of Tears Park, in Cape Girardeau county.

A 1960 Chevrolet, driven by Barbara Kay Henson, 18, Jackson, who was traveling on the wrong side of the road, struck a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Shirley Jean Schaeffer, 23, Jackson, also on the wrong side of the road.

Injured were Barbara Jean Henson, with chest injuries and cuts on her head; two passengers in her car, Doyle Stokes, 18, Sikeston, with severe chest and head injuries; and Marcia Sides, 17, Jackson, possible fractured arm.

Injured in the second car were the driver, Shirley Schaeffer, cuts and bruises on head and mouth; Dorothy Schaeffer with chest injuries; and Jeffery, three-months-old, with head injuries.

28 Treated For Accidents

SEMO Grant Approved

WASHINGTON AP -- $568,061 grant to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, Portageville, Mo., has been approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

A major part of the money is for establishment of 33 neighborhood service centers in southeastern Missouri.

The grant was announced by Missouri's senators.

Buddy Epsen

Epsen To Be At This Year's Rodeo

Buddy Ebsen, who plays Jed Clampett, on "The Beverly Hillbillies," confirmed today with Jay Sisk, chairman of this year's Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo, that he will appear as the "star" for the event to be held August 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Buddy Ebsen, is the picture of a man who loves life, knows what he wants -- and has it.

In his profession he has attained full recognition as a dancer, actor, comedian, singer and song writer. In his private life he is a husband and father on a full - time basis.

"All during the early days when I was hoofing it for a living," Ebsen said, "I had visions of a spread with plenty of sunshine and sea."

New Owners At El Capri

Two new owners have been added to the El Capri Motel. Mrs. Minnie Link and Ross Alsup, each purchased a one-third interest from the owner, Earl Jarvis. The new partnership became effective over the weekend.

Mrs. Link, has been associated with the motel for the past nine years as manager. Mr. and Mrs. Alsup were owners of the Cyrus Motel on South Main street until last June.

The three partners will be in charge of the 80-unit motel, while Mrs. Esther Shipman is in charge of the restaurant.

Ten Arrested

John Bowden, 109 Alabama, was charged with disturbing the peace.

Billie Denning, St. Louis, was charged with speeding.

Art Show Success

An estimated 3,000 persons attended the two-day Holiday Art Exhibit Saturday and Sunday at the Holiday Inn, sponsored by the Sikeston Art League.

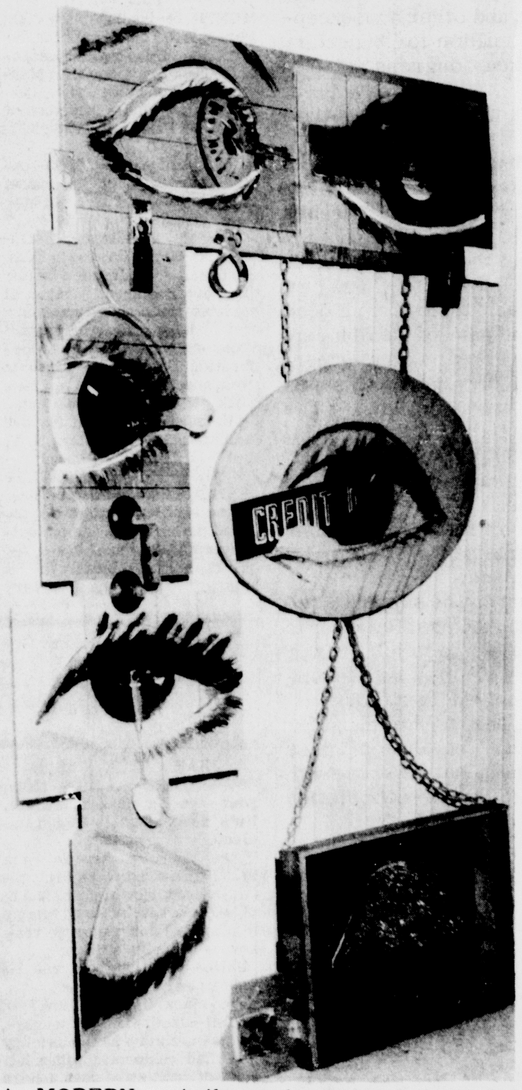

The show had on display 250 or more pieces of art and sculpture work, to make it the largest of the three annual shows. The artists had a much improved style of paintings both from the standpoint of color arrangement in modern, portraits and scenic beauty.

Evident also was the great improvement in the ability of the contestants, both from Sikeston and surrounding area, including a large number of new art students, who displayed work for their first time.

In charge of the arranging and supervision of the outstanding district art show were, James Garner on sculpture, and Miss Harriet Jones, Sikeston, with members of the Art League committee, President Harley Barnes, Howard Grant, Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Barbara Smith, Mrs. Alex Waters, Jr., Mrs. Phil Compagna and Mrs. Phil Bowman.

Others who gave of their time and talent were, Mrs. Bety Huber, Hayti; Mrs. Irene Hazel, Caruthersville; Mrs. Sam Harbin, Jane Wilkerson, Ned Tanner, Mrs. Jack Bowman, Richard Smith, Mrs. JoAnne Fox, Lynn Twitty, Charles Rafferty, David Blanton, the Rosegate and Meadow Lane Garden Clubs, and the Roberts Nursery.

A MODERN art theme by Mrs. Robert S. Matthews, 1010 North Ranney, whose display on discarded objects, collage type art, titled, "Seven Deadly Sins and Eye." The artist has studied theme work for a number of years, and took the old objects to bring out the seven themes on envy, pride, wrath, sloth, gluttony, lust and covetness.

The accident happened in eight feet of water.

Drownings at Clearwater, Wappapello

In the Wappapello incident, Carl James Krallman Jr., 24, of St. Louis, drowned when he jumped off a moving speedboat, according to witnesses. The Highway Patrol said the witnesses told them Krallman had jumped from the boat several times and then would be picked up again after the boat circled. In his final leap, when the boat circled, Krallman had submerged. The body had not been recovered early Monday.

The incident occurred about 3:30 p.m. Sunday near the mouth of Peoples Creek, several hundred yards off the boat dock at Clay's Cabins. The boat was owned and driven by James Meehan, 26, according to the Patrol. Two other passengers in the boat were Gary Laycob, 32, and Sylvester Jurczyk, all from St. Louis. The four men had been staying at a cabin owned by Bob Pruitt, St. Louis, and located in the Lakeland Estates development.

The man's body is believed to be in about 20 feet of water.

Searchers from both Wayne and Butler counties began looking for Krallman yesterday afternoon and called off the operation at dusk. The search was resumed this morning.

Divers from the Poplar Bluff Fire Department, Missouri Highway Patrol, the Missouri Conservation Commission and other volunteers including Loren Lewis, Boat Commission patrolman, joined in the operation.

Three other persons have drowned in Missouri during the Memorial Day holiday.

Two of the victims were Jimmy Lewis, 12, and Jerry Lewis, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis of Moberly.

Experienced campers, the boys left home Friday afternoon for an overnight stay at Rothwell Park. A search was started when they failed to return home Saturday night. The bodies were found in the lake at the park. Police said one boy

State Budget For Oncoming Year

by LARRY HALL
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Missouri's budget of nearly $978 million for the next year brings into sharp focus the dramatic growth of state government in the last 20 years.

We're spending our money now for things that weren't even heard of then. The increase in cost is more than 400 per cent.

Let the stark figures tell the story.

For the 1946-47 fiscal year, the Legislature appropriated more than $62 million in general revenue tax money and more than $154 million from various funds. The total for all state governmental operations was $216,772,000.

This time in the recent special session the Legislature approved a total of $977,900,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1.

That included more than $431 million from general revenue and more than $546,600,000 from funds -- most of them federal matching money.

In '46-'47, the best estimate you could get on the number of state employes was 12,900. Nobody knew for sure because there was no accurate count.

The entire state budget staff at that time, during the first administration of the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, consisted of one old man and two women who doubled as clerks, secretaries and adding machinery operators.

Today the state has an estimated 35,200 employes. A professional budget staff was set up under the late Gov. James T. Blair and today it includes budget analysts, computer programmers and other data processing experts.

There is a new administrative services unit, just getting started, and its goal is to bring some kind of uniformity in the way state agencies keep their books, handle their correspondence and conduct their routine operations.

There is also a central records agency which is filling up the Capitol basement with records and some day will need a building of its own to store the millions of pieces of paper used in running a state government of this size.

A good share of your state tax dollar goes for state school aid. It has grown more than three-fold in just the last 11 years.

Formerly the Legislature allotted state aid to schools on the basis of one-third of the general revenue. For the year ending June 30, 1955, the last year that method was used, the total came to $47,269,000.

Then the Legislature set up a basic school foundation program designed originally to give most help to the poorer districts and geared to encourage the merger of school districts.

While the number of school districts has shrunk from more than 8,000 to about 1,000 in the last 20 years, the amount of state aid has increased sharply.

The first year under the new foundation program, state aid totaled $54,600,000.

Since then the formula has been changed and liberalized several times. For the new year starting July 1, the total is around $165 million and the pressure is on for more money next time.

A strong factor in the growing cost of running the state government has been the demand for appropriations to match federal funds in such programs as highway beautification, Medicare, the so-called "war on poverty" and many others.

All of these figured in hot fights during the recent special legislative session. And no one knows as yet what the full impact of the Medicare program will be.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in a speech this week urged a cautious approach to further implementation of the program -- especially payment of physician's costs.

He said in effect it could break the state and gave an initial estimate that new angles of Medicare in this field could cost $12 to $15 million more in state funds by 1970. And that kind of money is nowhere in sight without tax increases.

Let's take a look at some of the new programs and institutions that have contributed to rising costs over the last 20 years.

Increased emphasis on a modern mental health program has played a big role.

In that period the state took over the city operated mental hospitals at St. Louis and Kansas City, the St. Louis school and hospital for the mentally retarded and set up a training center for psychiatrists and aides in St. Louis.

This trend has led some legislators to plead with the cities -- "Please don't give us anything more."

In addition the legislature authorized three new intensive mental health treatment centers at St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia and nine new mental retardation centers which are not built yet.

In the field of higher education, the University of Missouri has expanded from campuses at Columbia and Rolla to two new ones at St. Louis and Kansas City which are in the beginning stages.

And last year the state took the responsibility for the last two years of training to make the junior colleges at St. Joseph and Joplin four-year institutions.

A space center and a big atomic reactor have become part of a new research center at Columbia and the former Rolla School of Mines also has an atomic reactor. A growing medical school and hospital also has been set up at Columbia.

The state also has entered into a growing state aid program for other junior colleges.

At Moberly, the former medium security prison is now known as the men's training center. It has two residence units for 300 men each and a third was authorized by the recent special session to the tune of $2 million.

In addition, numerous new state agencies have been created to handle special problems. Major ones include:

The Water Pollution Board, Water Resources Board, Air Conservation Comission, Missouri Boat Commission, Missouri council on the arts, an administrative hearing commissioner, an inter-agency council for outdoor recreation, a Human Rights Commission to administer new fair employment practics and public accommodations laws, a state and regional planning agency, a legislative fiscal affairs committee to study all expenditures, a permanent state tax study commission to find out where the money's coming from, and a host of legislative interim study committees, all of which cost money.

Existing agencies also have doubled and quadrupled in size -the Highway Patrol, the Highway Commission, the Conservation Commission, the park board program and others. All say they still can't keep pace with public demands.

And don't fool yourself-The end is not in sight.

The only question is the one the venerable Sen. Michael Kinney, D-St. Louis keeps asking. He has seen the growth since he first came to the Senate in 1913.

He's laid up right now with a broken leg. But in talking about the new developments he still wants to know:

"Where we going to get the money?"

Sikeston Man In Illinois Accident

CHESTER, Ill. - A woman was injured fatally and three persons were hurt seriously today in a two-car collision on Highway 3 north of Chester, Ill.

State police said Mrs. Germaine Harrelson, 57, was killed. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Edgar, 63.

Harrelson, Bedford L. Robinson, 65, of Sikeston, Mo., the driver of the other auto, and Robinson's wife, Eva, 60, were injured.

Salvage Yard Owner Slugged And Robbed

CHARLESTON -- Three colored men, all armed with pistols, held up the Chuck's Salvage Yard, and made way with between $600 and $700.

The three men entered the salvage yard and told the owner, Chuck Christian, they wanted to buy a 1959 Ford carburetor.

After the owner started to get the auto part, the three took the money, after hitting him over the head with one of the guns after the owner said there was no money in the building.

The gunmen started shooting at several dogs on the premises as they left in a 1959 white Ford.

Before leaving, however, the three men went to get Mrs. Christian, who managed to lock herself in the garage. The fleeing gunmen tore the telephone wires from the wall.

After the trio left, Mr. and Mrs. Christian went to a neighbor, Robert Chandler, to call Charleston police chief, Guthrie Hunter, who with Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, made an investigation of the robbery.

3 Area Deaths Over Weekend

The Southeast Missouri area came up with a rash of serious highway accidents, to give the area the high total of 41 with 44 injuries and three deaths for Memorial Day weekend. The three deaths occurred in the northern area of the district.

Two deaths resulted in a single accident Saturday, at 1:30 p.m., two miles south of Greenville on highway 67. A 1966 Chevrolet, driven by Joe Fague, 33, St. Louis, came across the centerline and sideswiped a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Millard Hayes, 36, St. Louis, and then struck a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Rovert Mills, 61, St. Louis, headon.

Killed in the accident were, the two-year-old son of Fague, and Robert Mills, driver of the 1963 Chevrolet. Both bodies were taken to the Gish Funeral Home, Greenville.

The third holiday death occurred Saturday at 4:45 p.m. when John L. Petot, Jr., 20, route six, Perryville, lost his life while riding a 1963 Honda motorcycle on a blind curve on a gravel road.

He came around the curve on the wrong side of the road and struck a 1952 Chevrolet driven by Theodore E. Walther, 76, Perryville, who had stopped in an effort to avoid the accident, but the motorcycle hit the Chevrolet headon. The accident occurred one-half mile from Crosstown.

Injuries were heavy over the weekend, with eight in a single accident Saturday at 11:50 p.m. at highway 60 and Wyatt.

Two cars involved in the accident were a 1958 Ford, driven by Grady Ketchum, 24, Charleston, who was eastbound, when a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Charles Babb, 26, Circleville, O., attempted to turn on the wrong side and struck the Ketchum car headon.

Ketchum received cuts and bruises and a broken left hand, while three passengers in his car, all of Charleston, were also injured. They were, Lucy Speakman,, 25, broken hip, cuts and bruises; William Carter, 21, possible neck injury and other bruises; and Jack Crane, 24, cuts on his face and chin, and bruises.

Injured in the Babb car were the driver, who received cuts and bruises; three passengers, John Conrad, 24, Circleville, O., possible neck injury, cuts and bruises; Donna Conrad, 23, Circleville, cuts and bruises; and Carolyn Ream, Adelphia, O., cuts and bruises. All were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Six young persons were injured in a two-car accident Monday at 12:15 p.m. on route V, a half-mile north of the Trail of Tears Park, in Cape Girardeau county.

A 1960 Chevrolet, driven by Barbara Kay Henson, 18, Jackson, who was traveling on the wrong side of the road, struck a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Shirley Jean Schaeffer, 23, Jackson, also on the wrong side of the road.

Injured were Barbara Jean Henson, with chest injuries and cuts on her head; two passengers in her car, Doyle Stokes, 18, Sikeston, with severe chest and head injuries; and Marcia Sides, 17, Jackson, possible fractured arm.

Injured in the second car were the driver, Shirley Schaeffer, cuts and bruises on head and mouth; Dorothy Schaeffer with chest injuries; and Jeffery, three-months-old, with head injuries.

28 Treated For Accidents

Twenty-eight persons were treated as emergency patients at Missouri Delta Community Hospital over the Memorial Day weekend.

Epsen To Be At This Year's Rodeo

Buddy Ebsen, who plays Jed Clampett, on "The Beverly Hillbillies," confirmed today with Jay Sisk, chairman of this year's Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo, that he will appear as the "star" for the event to be held August 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Buddy Ebsen, is the picture of a man who loves life, knows what he wants -- and has it.

In his profession he has attained full recognition as a dancer, actor, comedian, singer and song writer. In his private life he is a husband and father on a full - time basis.

"All during the early days when I was hoofing it for a living," Ebsen said, "I had visions of a spread with plenty of sunshine and sea."

New Owners At El Capri

Two new owners have been added to the El Capri Motel. Mrs. Minnie Link and Ross Alsup, each purchased a one-third interest from the owner, Earl Jarvis. The new partnership became effective over the weekend.

Mrs. Link, has been associated with the motel for the past nine years as manager. Mr. and Mrs. Alsup were owners of the Cyrus Motel on South Main street until last June.

The three partners will be in charge of the 80-unit motel, while Mrs. Esther Shipman is in charge of the restaurant.

Ten Arrested

John Bowden, 109 Alabama, was charged with disturbing the peace.

Art Show Success

An estimated 3,000 persons attended the two-day Holiday Art Exhibit Saturday and Sunday at the Holiday Inn, sponsored by the Sikeston Art League.

The show had on display 250 or more pieces of art and sculpture work, to make it the largest of the three annual shows. The artists had a much improved style of paintings both from the standpoint of color arrangement in modern, portraits and scenic beauty.

Evident also was the great improvement in the ability of the contestants, both from Sikeston and surrounding area, including a large number of new art students, who displayed work for their first time.

In charge of the arranging and supervision of the outstanding district art show were, James Garner on sculpture, and Miss Harriet Jones, Sikeston, with members of the Art League committee, President Harley Barnes, Howard Grant, Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Barbara Smith, Mrs. Alex Waters, Jr., Mrs. Phil Compagna and Mrs. Phil Bowman.

Others who gave of their time and talent were, Mrs. Bety Huber, Hayti; Mrs. Irene Hazel, Caruthersville; Mrs. Sam Harbin, Jane Wilkerson, Ned Tanner, Mrs. Jack Bowman, Richard Smith, Mrs. JoAnne Fox, Lynn Twitty, Charles Rafferty, David Blanton, the Rosegate and Meadow Lane Garden Clubs, and the Roberts Nursery.

A MODERN art theme by Mrs. Robert S. Matthews, 1010 North Ranney, whose display on discarded objects, collage type art, titled, "Seven Deadly Sins and Eye." The artist has studied theme work for a number of years, and took the old objects to bring out the seven themes on envy, pride, wrath, sloth, gluttony, lust and covetness.

THE DOMINICAN VOTE

THE UNITED STATES policed the Dominican Republic for eight years -- 1916 to 1924 -- and the legacy was the brutal Trujillo regime. We intervened again a little over a year ago and the legacy of that occupation, while as yet uncertain, could prove as disastrous. The vote for a new President on Wednesday will be only a temporary marker of the way.

The reason is that whoever wins will find himself in immediate trouble. At this writing Juan Bosch, the former President in whose name the revolt of April 1965 was begun, is given the edge. Some observers, however, see Joaquin Balaguer, Trujillo's ex-President and head of the junta after the dictator's assassination, running surprisingly strong.

The third candidate, Rafael Bonnelly, also a former Trujillo minister and Provisional President after the assassination, and like Balaguer a rightist, does not figure. Speculation has it that Bonnelly might withdraw at the last minute and throw his support to Balaguer, but that would be a gift of perhaps only 25,000 votes.

THE NEW PRESIDENT will inherit a political and economic shambles. Unemployment is approaching half a million on the tiny island. The growing unemployment rate totals 36.8 per cent of the available male work force.

Imbalance of age on the island is another problem. More than half the present population of 3.5 million is under the age of 15. There aren't enough schools, and literacy at best totals 30 per cent of the people.

It now looks as if American budgetary aid to the Republic has been timed to end about when the new President is to be installed -- if everything goes well, on July 1. This would not threaten long-term development loans, amounting to $14 1/2 million. But it would affect the heavy support the United States has given to meet government payrolls and other housekeeping expenses -- $46 1/2 million for budgetary 1966 plus another $25 million Congress voted to be advanced if needed.

The new regime certainly will have to negotiate for continued U. S. aid. But it would be well if that help could be supplied in other areas than budget supplements, military training and hardware (the Dominican military apparatus already is bloated) and expensive U. S. products.

BOSCH has the support of the left and center, including grudging Communist backing. His own party is the Partido Revolucionario Dominicano (PRD). Balaguer is the candidate of the Reformista party, but he is hardly viewed as a reformer. He is the favorite of the military. Bonnelly hopes to draw support from four factions: The splintered remnants of the National Civic Union, which ran second in the 1962 polling, the Liberal Evolutionists, Revolutionary Vanguard, and Nationalist Revolutionaries.

As can be seen, names don't mean much. Bonnelly is really the candidate of the Oligarquia, or First Families of the island.

What probably counts most is the support of the campesinos, peasants, and workers. Balaguer is making a big pitch to these -- more jobs, lower rice prices -- relying on what may be a strong residual charisma of the toppled Trujillo.

Whoever wins may not be able to command for long. That might mean that the United States would have to intervene again, but this time with Organization of American States cooperation from the beginning.

EXPLORING THE OCEANS

Exploration of the ocean depths may prove more fruitful than exploration of outer space. There are limits to the amount of sustenance that can be drawn from the 25 per cent of the earth's surface which is dry land. But the vast, mysterious oceans contain untold food and mineral riches. The problem is to find ways to extract them. This question undoubtedly will be discussed at the second International Oceanographic Congress, scheduled to open in Moscow on Monday, May 30.

Man is as ill-adapted to an underwater environment as he is to outer space. While prolonged weightlessness and solar radiation are the cardinal hazards of space flight, water pressure is the chief barrier to deep undersea voyages. For example, it takes up to five hours for a man's body to adjust to surface pressure after only one hour underwater at a depth of 250 feet. Under heavy pressure, the nitrogen of the air breathed by the diver dissolves in his blood and tissues. If he surfaces too quickly, the nitrogen is released explosively, like carbon dioxide in soda water when a bottle cap is removed.

Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the noted French oceanographer, has tried to get around the pressure problem by constructing underwater communities. Five men lived for a month in a four-structure "village" built by Cousteau beneath the surface of the Red Sea. M. Scott Carpenter, one of the original American astronauts, lived for 30 days last year in a 57-foot-long steel chamber anchored 205 feet below the surface of the Pacific near La Jolla, Calif.

Such communities may someday permit exploitation of the oceans' treasure. The continental shelves alone are believed to contain 30 million cubic miles of oil-bearing sediments. And Ritchie Calder, professor of international relations at the University of Edinburgh, feels it is possible to train dolphins, manatees and dugongs to tend Texas-sized "sea ranches, sea pastures and sea stud farms."

REPORTERS

Reporters provide the life blood of a newspaper. They are the eyes and ears of a newspaper. The reputation of any newspaper is built upon honest, accurate, factual and interesting reporting.

A reporter must not only be honest and accurate, but he must be objective to the point where he can disregard entirely his personal feelings in a news gathering assignment given to him. Having covered an assignment, a reporter uses the facts he has gathered to write his story.

An editor then checks it for errors in spelling, construction and style, and then has the fascinating job of writing an interesting headline that will not only tell what the story is about, but will be of the right length to fit the space assigned to the story.

THE NEED IS KNOWLEDGE

The American Medical Association has been conducting an intensive educational program designed to inform the nation on the health care services that are available to the elderly. In this, the nation's physicians play a key role. And it is to be hoped that the campaign results in the success it so eminently deserves -- for reliable studies have shown that the majority of the people just don't know what is offered. This plays into the hands of the proponents of the Medicare plan for fastening, at heavy cost, certain medical services onto the social security system whether or not they are wanted or needed by social security beneficiaries.

Special stress is placed, as it should be, on the Kerr-Mills Act, passed in 1960. This is a joint-federal - state program, and most of the states are participating while others are planning to do so. It is an excellently conceived undertaking in every particular. The services provided are broad. They are confined to those who are unable to meet the costs, instead of to an arbitrarily selected age group. And administration is at the local level where local needs are best understood and can be most effectively and efficiently cared for.

Beyond Kerr-Mills, every state has a means of providing health care to the elderly who are without sufficient funds. Some are paid for by taxation, some by the voluntary work of the medical profession or other private institutions. What is needed is greatly improved public knowledge of what exists.

AN INFORMED ELECTORATE

Get-out-the-vote campaigns have been a part of national elections for a great many years. Of late, however, something new and eminently worthwhile has been added. More and more of these campaigns stress that it is the duty of the voter to seriously and thoroughly study the issues and evaluate the candidates before entering the polling booth.

An uninformed vote is worse than no vote at all. The policies and principles that are adopted now, with the consent of the electorate, are those which will do much to determine this nation's future. They will, in many instances, profoundly affect the lives and opportunities of our children and our children's children. It cannot too often be repeated that an informed people is the first essential to the perpetuation of our institutions and our freedoms.

By all means, vote -- the fact that so many million qualified Americans commonly stay away from the polls has long been a national disgrace. But, above all, really know what and who you are voting for.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING

An interesting disclosure came out of a recent survey of the clothing habits of students in Philadelphia. A sampling of opinions was taken at four distinctly different types of school -- selected to isolate, where possible, different trends in the city where there are approximately 500,000 boys between the ages of 13 and 17 years. Out of the welter of opinions, facts and figures -- perhaps the most important was this report: "Students whose parents have lesser means are inclined to dress better than offspring of the wealthy, in this particular area." It's further proof of the oft-made point that grooming depends NOT so much on the money spent on clothes, as on the "know-how" in selection and wearing!

THE STALLING STARS

It is said that during World War II, Winston Churchill hired an astrologer to assist his generals in their tactical planning -- not because he believed in astrology but because Hitler did.

Since the embarrassment of the Nazis, the horoscope casters have been rather in disfavor among heads of states. It comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that numerous officials in modernizing India are quite dependent upon guidance from practitioners of this ancient art.

The fact comes to light as the result of charges by a member of parliament, Mr. Krishna Manoharan, that one astrologer used his influence among ministers and other parliament members to seek personal favors.

This alleged mild corruption inside the corridors of power of the Indian government is not cause for alarm, however. If anything, it means the Indians are mastering the finer nuances of Western-style democracy.

What is disturbing is Mr. Manoharan's further complaint that "problems are allowed to fester because astrologers tell the ministers that the time is not ripe to solve them. 'Wait, wait,' they say. 'In six months your shining stars will be in the right position.' And so they wait."

This, of course, is the same advice astrologers have been peddling ever since the days of Xerxes and Marc Antony up to and including the Empress Dowager of Manchu China.

The monumental problems facing India won't wait, of course, regardless of what the horoscopes might say. When they descend in full force, it will be little comfort if the Indians finally realize that the fault lay not in their stars but in themselves.

H. L. Hunt Says

WE NEED OUR SLINGSHOT

The propaganda device used to popularize the notion that this country should disarm itself and become defenseless before its enemies is a repeated appeal to the desire for peace and goodwill among men.

This appeal has deep roots among our people, most of whom have religious backgrounds. It is idealistic. No one would deny that peace is better than cultural exchange. And the enemies of freedom make hay of the situation.

Is it sensible to think that our sincere desire for peace should cause us to lay down our defensive arms? Is this the logical consequence of desiring peace? Would such a move bring us peace? Would the communist menace simply evaporate, as we are being told, if Americans decided in favor of disarmament?

Inexorably the communist menace closes in on the U.S. It confronts us now like Goliath before David, threatening, mocking, challenging. Are we to believe that laying down our arms will pacify this antagonist? Or are we wise enough to see that it is our slingshot that keeps him at bay?

George Washington said, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving the peace." Since the time when the fabled "Roman Peace" was assured by the Roman legions that principle has been true. We had better recognize the validity of this principle now or soon those voices crying "Peace" will switch to "Peace at any price." In fact, that's what the current arguments for disarmament amount to.

TWO BUDGETS

Most of us think that each year's federal appropriations represent the total spending for that year. But, incredibly large as these appropriations are, that isn't the case.

Congress also authorizes what is known as new spending authority. The authorizations are for projects and programs running over a considerable period of time, and the money is not disbursed in any one year.

This is no small matter. In the last three years, spending authority has exceeded expenditures by an average of nearly $6 billion a year. By July 1, 1965, over $90 billion of unused spending authority will be accumulated. It will still be available for spending - - on top of the spending authority requested in the 1966 budget.

This is not so complicated as it may seem. To all intents and purposes, there are two budgets. One --the one that makes the headlines -- covers a single year's outgo. The other -- the one few of us know about -- makes available additional billions to be spent over several years. In either case, the unbelieveable bills must be met, in the taxes we pay now and in the debt we bequeath to our descendants.

The case for economy in government--that will bring all spending within income, make possible a start on reducing the debt and save what is left of the dollar's value--was never so strong as it is now.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D.C.- The battleground of the republic in these days of the citizen-soldier appears to be the draft.

There are the card burners, the hunger strikers, the sit-inners. Yet if all these were marshalled in one vast hall, they would not equal, by far, the number of young men who enlist voluntarily in one month.

There are the solid backers of the draft, such as the leaders of labor. None is more sturdy and steadfast. But they are beginning to eye jaundicedly the huge bulk of college deferments and have queried Labor Secretary Wirtz on the problem.

This, say some labor leaders of considerable influence and import, discriminates against the young men who work with their hands as well as brains -- or are learning to become adept at physical skills needed to make a space age function.

While college men are deferred and deferred, youngsters in the skilled trades' apprentice training programs are being drafted.

National labor leaders, using the jargon of their trade, say bluntly, this is "unfair." They plan to take another look at the nation's draft policy which has been reaching into apprenticeship training programs such as those run by the electrical, plumbing or other construction industries.

In the printing trades' programs, a young man is "safe" if he has completed one year of apprentice training. But if a prospect is drafted before he gets into such craft schools, how can he get his one year in, asks one union official.

On the other hand, a young man applying for college gets in if he has the grades and then generally is secure for four years.

"This apprenticeship training is just as much an education for future life for these kids," said one national official, "as any college educations for the others. Furthermore, the trades they learn in the apprenticeship program really are vital to America's defense effort."

However, inside labor there is no lack of support for the draft. Nor is there any pacifism. American labor's official high command is still unanimously behind the military's efforts to build a strong fighting force.

There is powerful labor support for the citizen-soldier Reserve and National Guard training. This is reflected in an exchange of letters, never published, between Secretary of Defense McNamara and AFL-CIO President Meany.

It began last November when Mr. McNamara wrote to Mr. Meany saying that "urgent national defense requirements today call for the stepped-up training of our citizen-soldier components to achieve an advanced stage of combat readiness.

"A selected Force of National Guard and Reserve units has been designated for this mission. Starting this month, training for the 119,000 Army Guardsmen and 31,000 Army Reservists . . . .will be increased 50 per cent to the equivalent of three eight-hour days per month -- to be accomplished on weekends or at night.

"Similar stepped-up training has been effected for 12,000 members of the Air National Guard and 10,000 members of the Air Force Reserve.

"The citizen-soldier in these and all other reserve training units will need the understanding and support of his employer if he is to perform effectively both his military duties and the civilian job which is his means of livelihood. We must make sure that neither his earning power nor his advancement possibilities will be jeopardized by his military service."

Secretary McNamara then asked Mr. Meany "to alert leaders of unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO to this problem. Specifically, we ask for the understanding and assistance of the local leadership of the affiliates in our efforts to insure that equitable arrangements are made, as necessary for reservists to fulfill their military obligations."

McNamara added that some work schedules would have to be rearranged to meet production deadlines and military training requirements. Then he urged that plant supervisors, union representatives and Guard and Reserve unit commanders work together in each locality.

After Mr. Meany returned from the national AFL-CIO convention, he replied to the Defense Secretary with pledges of full support.

He assured the Defense Dept. that the AFL-CIO would "cooperate in every way . . . to free members of National Guard and Reserve units for extra days of training."

Mr. Meany then communicated with all national union presidents. They in turn alerted their local leaders.

He also designated the erudite AFL-CIO research director, Nat Goldfinger, to work with the Dept. of Defense "to assist in implementing this effort."

At this moment all is going smoothly, and Mr. Meany has made good his pledge, in the name of the 13 million members of America's big labor federation, that there would be "complete AFL-CIO cooperation in this matter."

No doubt this stance has provoked criticism of the labor leaders by virtually all of those to whom President Johnson has appealed to "cool" it.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column has reported that Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., after being entrusted by the senate in 1962 with investigating the insurance industry, suddenly stopped paying his insurance premiums and began recommending friends to insurance companies for loans. He and his law firm actually collected fees and commissions on these loans.

Dodd also accepted free rides on a Travelers Insurance Company plane, and his son, Jeremy, was hired as an agent by Aetna Life and Casualty Company.

But there is still more to the story.

In 1962, Dodd also intervened with the Connecticut Insurance commissioner to arrange for Bankers Life and Casualty Company to do business in the state. For pulling the right strings, he collected $5,000 from Brundage and Short. The Chicago law firm which represented Bankers Life and Casualty.

Only a month after he wrote to the commissioner, Dodd was able to report to Attorney Charles Short on May 17, 1962: "The enclosed documents are self - explanatory. I am pleased that Bankers Life and Casualty Co. has been licensed to do business in Connecticut."

Two days later, on July 19, 1962, Brundage and Short mailed the senator check No. 18243 for $5,000.

Reached in Chicago, Short tried to deny the whole affair, first he claimed that Dodd had handled the matter before he became a senator. When Short was reminded that Dodd had been elected to the senate four years prior to his intervention for Bankers Life in 1962, he declared that Dodd had been unable to arrange the licensing.

Advised of the senator's letter announcing his success in obtaining the license, Short insisted that Dodd had not been paid. When he was reminded of the $5,000 check, Short changed his denial to a claim that the $5,000 was a loan from his late partner, Howard Brundage, to Senator Dodd.

"Tom and Howard used to borrow money from one another," said Short.

"It was not a personal check," we pointed out. "Did Brundage use his firm's checking account to make personal loans?"

"I am not the slightest bit interested in you people," Short snapped. "So goodbye." And he hung up.

THE INSURANCE ALIBI

Meanwhile, three of the insurance companies have been trying to explain their relationship with the senator who is supposed to investigate them.

A spokesman for Travelers denied to the Hartford Times that Dodd had used the company plane. Nevertheless, the senator's former aides recall that he flew in the Travelers plane at least a half a dozen times. The records show, for instance, that he took off for Connecticut in the Travelers plane at 7:15 p.m. on July 2, 1964. The plane made a special trip to Washington in October, 1964, to fly him to a Travelers men's club meeting, then returned him to Washington the next day.

Merritt McDonough, speaking for the Charles H. McDonough Sons Insurance Agency, also told the Hartford Times that Dodd had neglected to pay his back insurance premiums because his bookkeeper didn't show him the bill. Not until the accountant left the payroll, claimed McDonough, did Dodd discover he owed $3,403.37 in premiums dating back in 1962.

INSURANCE DENIALS

But Dodd's accountant tells a different story. He states that he called the unpaid insurance premiums to the senator's attention several times, but that Dodd merely shrugged off the burgeoning bill. He started to pay his back premiums in December, 1965 --after he learned this column was investigating his misconduct.

Buist Anderson of Connecticut General and Millard Bartels of Travelers, both vice presidents, admitted to this column that Dodd had sent friends to see them about loans. They insisted that the applications were judged strictly on their merits, ignoring the fact that Dodd was supposed to be investigating them, not recommending friends to them for loans. They admitted, however, that they had talked to Dodd about the insurance investigation and insurance legislation.

While we do not accept these denials, we do want to correct an error regarding our report that insurance companies had collected $260 billion during a 20-year period but had paid out less than $90 billion in living and death benefits. The institute of life insurance points out that $73 billion of the total $260 billion intake came not from premiums but other investments.

It also states that the correct outlay during the 20-year period is $74 billion for living benefits, $39 billion for death benefits, and $18 billion in other payments to policyholders, or a total of $131 billion, not $90 billion.

This column also quoted William C. Smerling of Connecticut General as telling insurance managers that the life insurance public had been "ravaged, raped, and defrauded" by the insurance companies.

In fairness to Mr. Smerling, it should be noted that, though he was correctly quoted, his remarks were aimed at those salesmen who offer rebates to make sales, persuade customers to cash in old policies to pay for less valuable new policies, and charge excessive commissions. He was not criticizing the majority of insurance salesmen.

We are happy to make these corrections.

Like his wife, he can be a blond trail blazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired homme fatale. And for the same reasons - a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees, for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glabrous craniums.

Not only do blonds have more fun. Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Furthermore, wigs are a saving. Busy men who match theirs to their own current hair color can go under cover for a while, and thereby postpone trips to the barbershop.

Long-haired musicians - the rock 'n' roll kind - are also among Traynor's faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a make-up artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson's television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

THE DOMINICAN VOTE

THE UNITED STATES policed the Dominican Republic for eight years -- 1916 to 1924 -- and the legacy was the brutal Trujillo regime. We intervened again a little over a year ago and the legacy of that occupation, while as yet uncertain, could prove as disastrous. The vote for a new President on Wednesday will be only a temporary marker of the way.

The reason is that whoever wins will find himself in immediate trouble. At this writing Juan Bosch, the former President in whose name the revolt of April 1965 was begun, is given the edge. Some observers, however, see Joaquin Balaguer, Trujillo's ex-President and head of the junta after the dictator's assassination, running surprisingly strong.

The third candidate, Rafael Bonnelly, also a former Trujillo minister and Provisional President after the assassination, and like Balaguer a rightist, does not figure. Speculation has it that Bonnelly might withdraw at the last minute and throw his support to Balaguer, but that would be a gift of perhaps only 25,000 votes.

THE NEW PRESIDENT will inherit a political and economic shambles. Unemployment is approaching half a million on the tiny island. The growing unemployment rate totals 36.8 per cent of the available male work force.

Imbalance of age on the island is another problem. More than half the present population of 3.5 million is under the age of 15. There aren't enough schools, and literacy at best totals 30 per cent of the people.

It now looks as if American budgetary aid to the Republic has been timed to end about when the new President is to be installed -- if everything goes well, on July 1. This would not threaten long-term development loans, amounting to $14 1/2 million. But it would affect the heavy support the United States has given to meet government payrolls and other housekeeping expenses -- $46 1/2 million for budgetary 1966 plus another $25 million Congress voted to be advanced if needed.

The new regime certainly will have to negotiate for continued U. S. aid. But it would be well if that help could be supplied in other areas than budget supplements, military training and hardware (the Dominican military apparatus already is bloated) and expensive U. S. products.

BOSCH has the support of the left and center, including grudging Communist backing. His own party is the Partido Revolucionario Dominicano (PRD). Balaguer is the candidate of the Reformista party, but he is hardly viewed as a reformer. He is the favorite of the military. Bonnelly hopes to draw support from four factions: The splintered remnants of the National Civic Union, which ran second in the 1962 polling, the Liberal Evolutionists, Revolutionary Vanguard, and Nationalist Revolutionaries.

As can be seen, names don't mean much. Bonnelly is really the candidate of the Oligarquia, or First Families of the island.

What probably counts most is the support of the campesinos, peasants, and workers. Balaguer is making a big pitch to these -- more jobs, lower rice prices -- relying on what may be a strong residual charisma of the toppled Trujillo.

Whoever wins may not be able to command for long. That might mean that the United States would have to intervene again, but this time with Organization of American States cooperation from the beginning.

EXPLORING THE OCEANS

Exploration of the ocean depths may prove more fruitful than exploration of outer space. There are limits to the amount of sustenance that can be drawn from the 25 per cent of the earth's surface which is dry land. But the vast, mysterious oceans contain untold food and mineral riches. The problem is to find ways to extract them. This question undoubtedly will be discussed at the second International Oceanographic Congress, scheduled to open in Moscow on Monday, May 30.

Man is as ill-adapted to an underwater environment as he is to outer space. While prolonged weightlessness and solar radiation are the cardinal hazards of space flight, water pressure is the chief barrier to deep undersea voyages. For example, it takes up to five hours for a man's body to adjust to surface pressure after only one hour underwater at a depth of 250 feet. Under heavy pressure, the nitrogen of the air breathed by the diver dissolves in his blood and tissues. If he surfaces too quickly, the nitrogen is released explosively, like carbon dioxide in soda water when a bottle cap is removed.

Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the noted French oceanographer, has tried to get around the pressure problem by constructing underwater communities. Five men lived for a month in a four-structure "village" built by Cousteau beneath the surface of the Red Sea. M. Scott Carpenter, one of the original American astronauts, lived for 30 days last year in a 57-foot-long steel chamber anchored 205 feet below the surface of the Pacific near La Jolla, Calif.

Such communities may someday permit exploitation of the oceans' treasure. The continental shelves alone are believed to contain 30 million cubic miles of oil-bearing sediments. And Ritchie Calder, professor of international relations at the University of Edinburgh, feels it is possible to train dolphins, manatees and dugongs to tend Texas-sized "sea ranches, sea pastures and sea stud farms."

REPORTERS

Reporters provide the life blood of a newspaper. They are the eyes and ears of a newspaper. The reputation of any newspaper is built upon honest, accurate, factual and interesting reporting.

A reporter must not only be honest and accurate, but he must be objective to the point where he can disregard entirely his personal feelings in a news gathering assignment given to him. Having covered an assignment, a reporter uses the facts he has gathered to write his story.

An editor then checks it for errors in spelling, construction and style, and then has the fascinating job of writing an interesting headline that will not only tell what the story is about, but will be of the right length to fit the space assigned to the story.

THE NEED IS KNOWLEDGE

The American Medical Association has been conducting an intensive educational program designed to inform the nation on the health care services that are available to the elderly. In this, the nation's physicians play a key role. And it is to be hoped that the campaign results in the success it so eminently deserves -- for reliable studies have shown that the majority of the people just don't know what is offered. This plays into the hands of the proponents of the Medicare plan for fastening, at heavy cost, certain medical services onto the social security system whether or not they are wanted or needed by social security beneficiaries.

Special stress is placed, as it should be, on the Kerr-Mills Act, passed in 1960. This is a joint-federal - state program, and most of the states are participating while others are planning to do so. It is an excellently conceived undertaking in every particular. The services provided are broad. They are confined to those who are unable to meet the costs, instead of to an arbitrarily selected age group. And administration is at the local level where local needs are best understood and can be most effectively and efficiently cared for.

Beyond Kerr-Mills, every state has a means of providing health care to the elderly who are without sufficient funds. Some are paid for by taxation, some by the voluntary work of the medical profession or other private institutions. What is needed is greatly improved public knowledge of what exists.

AN INFORMED ELECTORATE

Get-out-the-vote campaigns have been a part of national elections for a great many years. Of late, however, something new and eminently worthwhile has been added. More and more of these campaigns stress that it is the duty of the voter to seriously and thoroughly study the issues and evaluate the candidates before entering the polling booth.

An uninformed vote is worse than no vote at all. The policies and principles that are adopted now, with the consent of the electorate, are those which will do much to determine this nation's future. They will, in many instances, profoundly affect the lives and opportunities of our children and our children's children. It cannot too often be repeated that an informed people is the first essential to the perpetuation of our institutions and our freedoms.

By all means, vote -- the fact that so many million qualified Americans commonly stay away from the polls has long been a national disgrace. But, above all, really know what and who you are voting for.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING

An interesting disclosure came out of a recent survey of the clothing habits of students in Philadelphia. A sampling of opinions was taken at four distinctly different types of school -- selected to isolate, where possible, different trends in the city where there are approximately 500,000 boys between the ages of 13 and 17 years. Out of the welter of opinions, facts and figures -- perhaps the most important was this report: "Students whose parents have lesser means are inclined to dress better than offspring of the wealthy, in this particular area." It's further proof of the oft-made point that grooming depends NOT so much on the money spent on clothes, as on the "know-how" in selection and wearing!

THE STALLING STARS

It is said that during World War II, Winston Churchill hired an astrologer to assist his generals in their tactical planning -- not because he believed in astrology but because Hitler did.

Since the embarrassment of the Nazis, the horoscope casters have been rather in disfavor among heads of states. It comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that numerous officials in modernizing India are quite dependent upon guidance from practitioners of this ancient art.

The fact comes to light as the result of charges by a member of parliament, Mr. Krishna Manoharan, that one astrologer used his influence among ministers and other parliament members to seek personal favors.

This alleged mild corruption inside the corridors of power of the Indian government is not cause for alarm, however. If anything, it means the Indians are mastering the finer nuances of Western-style democracy.

What is disturbing is Mr. Manoharan's further complaint that "problems are allowed to fester because astrologers tell the ministers that the time is not ripe to solve them. 'Wait, wait,' they say. 'In six months your shining stars will be in the right position.' And so they wait."

This, of course, is the same advice astrologers have been peddling ever since the days of Xerxes and Marc Antony up to and including the Empress Dowager of Manchu China.

The monumental problems facing India won't wait, of course, regardless of what the horoscopes might say. When they descend in full force, it will be little comfort if the Indians finally realize that the fault lay not in their stars but in themselves.

H. L. Hunt Says

WE NEED OUR SLINGSHOT

The propaganda device used to popularize the notion that this country should disarm itself and become defenseless before its enemies is a repeated appeal to the desire for peace and goodwill among men.

This appeal has deep roots among our people, most of whom have religious backgrounds. It is idealistic. No one would deny that peace is better than cultural exchange. And the enemies of freedom make hay of the situation.

Is it sensible to think that our sincere desire for peace should cause us to lay down our defensive arms? Is this the logical consequence of desiring peace? Would such a move bring us peace? Would the communist menace simply evaporate, as we are being told, if Americans decided in favor of disarmament?

Inexorably the communist menace closes in on the U.S. It confronts us now like Goliath before David, threatening, mocking, challenging. Are we to believe that laying down our arms will pacify this antagonist? Or are we wise enough to see that it is our slingshot that keeps him at bay?

George Washington said, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving the peace." Since the time when the fabled "Roman Peace" was assured by the Roman legions that principle has been true. We had better recognize the validity of this principle now or soon those voices crying "Peace" will switch to "Peace at any price." In fact, that's what the current arguments for disarmament amount to.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D.C.- The battleground of the republic in these days of the citizen-soldier appears to be the draft.

There are the card burners, the hunger strikers, the sit-inners. Yet if all these were marshalled in one vast hall, they would not equal, by far, the number of young men who enlist voluntarily in one month.

There are the solid backers of the draft, such as the leaders of labor. None is more sturdy and steadfast. But they are beginning to eye jaundicedly the huge bulk of college deferments and have queried Labor Secretary Wirtz on the problem.

This, say some labor leaders of considerable influence and import, discriminates against the young men who work with their hands as well as brains -- or are learning to become adept at physical skills needed to make a space age function.

While college men are deferred and deferred, youngsters in the skilled trades' apprentice training programs are being drafted.

National labor leaders, using the jargon of their trade, say bluntly, this is "unfair." They plan to take another look at the nation's draft policy which has been reaching into apprenticeship training programs such as those run by the electrical, plumbing or other construction industries.

In the printing trades' programs, a young man is "safe" if he has completed one year of apprentice training. But if a prospect is drafted before he gets into such craft schools, how can he get his one year in, asks one union official.

On the other hand, a young man applying for college gets in if he has the grades and then generally is secure for four years.

"This apprenticeship training is just as much an education for future life for these kids," said one national official, "as any college educations for the others. Furthermore, the trades they learn in the apprenticeship program really are vital to America's defense effort."

However, inside labor there is no lack of support for the draft. Nor is there any pacifism. American labor's official high command is still unanimously behind the military's efforts to build a strong fighting force.

There is powerful labor support for the citizen-soldier Reserve and National Guard training. This is reflected in an exchange of letters, never published, between Secretary of Defense McNamara and AFL-CIO President Meany.

It began last November when Mr. McNamara wrote to Mr. Meany saying that "urgent national defense requirements today call for the stepped-up training of our citizen-soldier components to achieve an advanced stage of combat readiness.

"A selected Force of National Guard and Reserve units has been designated for this mission. Starting this month, training for the 119,000 Army Guardsmen and 31,000 Army Reservists . . . will be increased 50 per cent to the equivalent of three eight-hour days per month -- to be accomplished on weekends or at night.

"Similar stepped-up training has been effected for 12,000 members of the Air National Guard and 10,000 members of the Air Force Reserve.

"The citizen-soldier in these and all other reserve training units will need the understanding and support of his employer if he is to perform effectively both his military duties and the civilian job which is his means of livelihood. We must make sure that neither his earning power nor his advancement possibilities will be jeopardized by his military service."

Secretary McNamara then asked Mr. Meany "to alert leaders of unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO to this problem. Specifically, we ask for the understanding and assistance of the local leadership of the affiliates in our efforts to insure that equitable arrangements are made, as necessary for reservists to fulfill their military obligations."

McNamara added that some work schedules would have to be rearranged to meet production deadlines and military training requirements. Then he urged that plant supervisors, union representatives and Guard and Reserve unit commanders work together in each locality.

After Mr. Meany returned from the national AFL-CIO convention, he replied to the Defense Secretary with pledges of full support.

He assured the Defense Dept. that the AFL-CIO would "cooperate in every way . . . to free members of National Guard and Reserve units for extra days of training."

Mr. Meany then communicated with all national union presidents. They in turn alerted their local leaders.

He also designated the erudite AFL-CIO research director, Nat Goldfinger, to work with the Dept. of Defense "to assist in implementing this effort."

At this moment all is going smoothly, and Mr. Meany has made good his pledge, in the name of the 13 million members of America's big labor federation, that there would be "complete AFL-CIO cooperation in this matter."

No doubt this stance has provoked criticism of the labor leaders by virtually all of those to whom President Johnson has appealed to "cool" it.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This column has reported that Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., after being entrusted by the senate in 1962 with investigating the insurance industry, suddenly stopped paying his insurance premiums and began recommending friends to insurance companies for loans. He and his law firm actually collected fees and commissions on these loans.

Dodd also accepted free rides on a Travelers Insurance Company plane, and his son, Jeremy, was hired as an agent by Aetna Life and Casualty Company.

But there is still more to the story.

In 1962, Dodd also intervened with the Connecticut Insurance commissioner to arrange for Bankers Life and Casualty Company to do business in the state. For pulling the right strings, he collected $5,000 from Brundage and Short. The Chicago law firm which represented Bankers Life and Casualty.

Only a month after he wrote to the commissioner, Dodd was able to report to Attorney Charles Short on May 17, 1962: "The enclosed documents are self - explanatory. I am pleased that Bankers Life and Casualty Co. has been licensed to do business in Connecticut."

Two days later, on July 19, 1962, Brundage and Short mailed the senator check No. 18243 for $5,000.

Reached in Chicago, Short tried to deny the whole affair, first he claimed that Dodd had handled the matter before he became a senator. When Short was reminded that Dodd had been elected to the senate four years prior to his intervention for Bankers Life in 1962, he declared that Dodd had been unable to arrange the licensing.

Advised of the senator's letter announcing his success in obtaining the license, Short insisted that Dodd had not been paid. When he was reminded of the $5,000 check, Short changed his denial to a claim that the $5,000 was a loan from his late partner, Howard Brundage, to Senator Dodd.

"Tom and Howard used to borrow money from one another," said Short.

"It was not a personal check," we pointed out. "Did Brundage use his firm's checking account to make personal loans?"

"I am not the slightest bit interested in you people," Short snapped. "So goodbye." And he hung up.

THE INSURANCE ALIBI

Meanwhile, three of the insurance companies have been trying to explain their relationship with the senator who is supposed to investigate them.

A spokesman for Travelers denied to the Hartford Times that Dodd had used the company plane. Nevertheless, the senator's former aides recall that he flew in the Travelers plane at least a half a dozen times. The records show, for instance, that he took off for Connecticut in the Travelers plane at 7:15 p.m. on July 2, 1964. The plane made a special trip to Washington in October, 1964, to fly him to a Travelers men's club meeting, then returned him to Washington the next day.

Merritt McDonough, speaking for the Charles H. McDonough Sons Insurance Agency, also told the Hartford Times that Dodd had neglected to pay his back insurance premiums because his bookkeeper didn't show him the bill. Not until the accountant left the payroll, claimed McDonough, did Dodd discover he owed $3,403.37 in premiums dating back in 1962.

INSURANCE DENIALS

But Dodd's accountant tells a different story. He states that he called the unpaid insurance premiums to the senator's attention several times, but that Dodd merely shrugged off the burgeoning bill. He started to pay his back premiums in December, 1965 -- after he learned this column was investigating his misconduct.

Buist Anderson of Connecticut General and Millard Bartels of Travelers, both vice presidents, admitted to this column that Dodd had sent friends to see them about loans. They insisted that the applications were judged strictly on their merits, ignoring the fact that Dodd was supposed to be investigating them, not recommending friends to them for loans. They admitted, however, that they had talked to Dodd about the insurance investigation and insurance legislation.

While we do not accept these denials, we do want to correct an error regarding our report that insurance companies had collected $260 billion during a 20-year period but had paid out less than $90 billion in living and death benefits. The institute of life insurance points out that $73 billion of the total $260 billion intake came not from premiums but other investments.

It also states that the correct outlay during the 20-year period is $74 billion for living benefits, $39 billion for death benefits, and $18 billion in other payments to policyholders, or a total of $131 billion, not $90 billion.

This column also quoted William C. Smerling of Connecticut General as telling insurance managers that the life insurance public had been "ravaged, raped, and defrauded" by the insurance companies.

In fairness to Mr. Smerling, it should be noted that, though he was correctly quoted, his remarks were aimed at those salesmen who offer rebates to make sales, persuade customers to cash in old policies to pay for less valuable new policies, and charge excessive commissions. He was not criticizing the majority of insurance salesmen.

We are happy to make these corrections.

Like his wife, he can be a blond trail blazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired homme fatale. And for the same reasons - a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees, for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glabrous craniums.

Not only do blonds have more fun. Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Furthermore, wigs are a saving. Busy men who match their hair to their own current hair color can go under cover for a while, and thereby postpone trips to the barbershop.

Long-haired musicians - the rock 'n' roll kind - are also among Traynor's faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a make-up artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson's television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

Mrs. Harold Eugene Reuber

Suzanne Lynn Kaiser Is Wed To Harold Reuber Saturday

SPRINGFIELD -- Miss Suzanne Lynn Kaiser and Harold Eubene Reuber, both of Overland Park, Kans., exchanged wedding vows at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Stone Chapel of Drury College. Miss Kaiser is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Kaiser, 8600 Riley, Overland Park, Kans. Reuber is the son of Mrs. Helen Reuber, 534 North Ranney, Sikeston, Mo., and the late Dr. Reuber.

Dr. Samuel Smith III officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar and chancel of the chapel were decorated with floral arrangements of white gladioli and blue daisies.

"Wedding March from Lohengrim" was the precessional and "Allegro Maestoso" was the recessional. Mrs. Paul Hoffman of Kansas City sang "Lord's Prayer" and "Love Is Of God." Roseanne Bennett served as organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of Italian silk linen. The lifted bodice accented with a narrow fold of self-fabric was fashioned with a scoop neckline edged with roccoco fringe and featured Dior sleeves. Fringe bandings and Point de Venice lace clusters trimmed the dome skirt. A detachable squared train was chapel length. The silk illusion fingertip veil was caught to a silk linen circlet. She wore a gold filagree and diamond pendant first worn by her maternal grandmother at her wedding in May of 1900. Her bouquet was a cascade of white daisies and ivy.

Mrs. James Parker of Florissant was matron of honor. Bridemaids were Miss Ann Nickle of Mountain Grove, Miss Dianne Hughes of Marshfield, Cynthia Higgenbotham of Clayton and Mary Kratochvil of Jefferson City. All attendants are Alpha Phi sorority sisters of the bride.

The attendants wore floor-length gowns fashioned with copen blue Empire bodices in Shantiastik, featuring batteau necklines, elbow-length sleeves and self-fabric waistbands. The easy silhouettes of the light blue crepe skirts were enhanced by detachable copen blue watteau back panels falling from self-fabric Dior bows. They wore matching headpieces and carried crescent bouquets of blue daisies and lilies of the valley.

Best man was John Reuber of Sikeston, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were James Parker of Florissant, James Soden of St. John, Kans., Dale Lewis of Sikeston and Ervin Heyde of Springfield.

Following the cremony, a reception was held in the chapel lounge, The three tiered wedding cake was circled with smilax and blue daisies. This theme was also carried out in the candlabra decorations.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. John Reuber of Sikeston, Miss Jean Sode of Rogers, Ark., and Miss Myra Becker of Mountain View. Miss Doris Ray of Sikeston was in charge of the guest register.

Fro travel, the new Mrs. Reuber wore a two piece suit of pastel blue linen and a corsage of white daisies.

The couple will be at home after June 10 at their apartment in Louisburg Square, 9420 West 88th St., Overland Park, Kans.

The bride graduated from Drury College in Springfield Sunday. She will teach in the North Kansas City, Mo., high school system. The groom is a teacher at Milburn junior high school in the Shawnee Mission high school system.

Gibson Pitches 3-Hitter

Orlando Cepeda's production against the Houston Astros Monday night was about what the St. Louis Cardinals were doing as a team before he joined them.

Orlando Cepeda pounded the eighth home run, two doubles and a single, driving in two runs and scoring the other as the Cardinals beat the Houston Astros behind Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching Monday night, 3-1, at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Cepeda, who ran his hit streak to seven over two games, doubled home Lou Brock, who had walked, stolen second and advanced to third on an infield out in the first inning.

In the fourth inning, Cepeda became the first man to hit a ball over the wall in dead-center ex-Giant doubled again in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single.

Gibson boosted his season record to 6-5.

Dick Farrell, who gave up all three St. Louis runs, lost his fourth against one victory.

The third-place Astros' loss dropped them four games from first place.

Cepeda, who the Cardinals acquired in a trade May 8 from San Francisco to add punch to their attack, doubled home Lou Brock in the first inning. He smashed his eighth homer in the fourth and doubled in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single and completed a perfect night at the plate with an eighth-inning single, his seventh straight hit stretched over two games and raised his average to .330.

Cardinal righthander Bob Gibson, meanwhile held the Astros to three hits in winning his third straight game to boost his record to 6-5.

Tonight, St. Louis will pitch Ray Washburn 1-3 against Barry Latman 2-5.

Roof doubled in the fifth with two out scoring Ed Charles and Ken Harrelson, who had walked, to give the Athletics a 2-2 tie.

Detroit went ahead to stay with three runs on Dick McAuliffe's two-run triple and Norm Cash's single in the seventh.

McLain struck out seven and walked five in recording his fifth straight victory against Kansas City. Chuck Dobson, the loser, struck out eight in 6 1-3 innings.

Bill Monbouquette 3-4 will pitch for Detroit tonight against Kansas City's Fred Talbot 2-4

Babe Ruth Season To Open Tonight

Mayor Kendall Sikes, will officially open the Babe Ruth Baseball season tonight when he throws out the first ball of the season.

Dick Watkins, will serve s master of ceremonies and Bob Jones will give the invocation.

Mayor Sikes, will address the fans and players before the start of the game and will give way to League Commissioner Clem Beal who will give a welcoming talk and introduce members of each of the six baseball teams.

Pre - game activities will begin at 6:30, followed by the first game of the season which will be between the Bank of Sikeston and Reiss Dairy and ending the nights activities will be the game between Harts Bread and Home Materials.

Two teams have joined the league this season, expanding the league to six teams instead of fur.

King Afg Crown

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everythin's coming up roses for Don Brumfield these days.

The 28-year-old jockey from Nicholasville, Ky., rode Kauai King to victory in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness and it looks as if he will win the Belmont Stakes with Kauai King on Saturday and become the first to sweep the Triple Crown in 18 years.

It seemed for awhile that Brumfield might be faced with a difficult choice Memorial Day after he won the $137,900 Jersey Derby astride Creme Dela Creme at Garden State Pard.

But Don's good fortune stood up. He didn't have to choose between Kauai King and Creme Dela Creme in the Belmont.

Ira Hanford, trainer of the Jersey winner, eased Brumfield's mind. "We will not go in the Belmont." Hanford said. Instead Creme dela Creme will be shipped to Chicago for the Arlington Classic.

"I'm glad I don't have to make that decision," Brumfield said. "Both Kauai King and Creme dela Creme are great horses."

It was Creme dela Creme's seventh victory in eight starts and avenged his only defeat by a nose to Indulto in the Withers Mile at Aqueduct. This time he beat Indulto by two lengths although running wide at the head of the stretch where he led by four lengths. Brumfield has been up on the Bwamazon Farm colt in all of his races.

Creme dela Creme shared the holiday headlines with Bold Lad, who made it four straight with an imposing 1/2 length victory in the $115,600 Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct. Mrs. H. C. Phipps' 4-year-old sped the mile in 1:34 1-5 despite the heavy impost of 132 pounds and became the favorite to sweep the handicap triple of the Metropolitan, Suburban and Brooklyn.

Tigers McLain Hurls Second One Hit Game Of Season

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jack Lamabe, who often has trouble retiring American League batters, will be in Westwood, N. J., July 12 getting married. Denny McLain, who already is married, will be in St. Louis that day trying to retire National League batters.

McLain took another step toward becoming the American League's starting pitcher in the all-Star Game by pitching his second one-hitter of the season as Detroit defeated Kansas City 5-2 Monday.

Lamabe also pitched a one-hitter in Chicago's 11-0 second-game victory over Boston, but he doesn't expect to join McLain on the AL All-Star staff so he's going ahead with his marriage plans.

"I'll be very happy just to make the White Sox," Lamabe said after missing a no-hitter because of Joe Foy's leadoff single in the eighth inning.

Lamabe never had pitched a game like that before in the majors. In fact, it was the first shutout in his five-year career and his first complete game in nearly two years. And it came in his first start of the season.

Lamabe, now with his fourth team, had compiled a 5.40 earned run average in seven relief appearances this season.

With the exception of the 1964 season when he was a starter with Boston, the 29-year-old right-hander has been primarily a reliever. In his other three seasons, he appeared in 128 games, only four of them as a starter.

McLain, on the other hand, is developing into one of the best pitchers in the majors.

A 16-game winner in his first full season in the majors last year, the son-in-law of Lou Boudreau is the winningest pitcher in the AL, has won as many games as Sandy Koufax and is only one behind major league leader Juan Marichal.

The 22-year-old right-hander stopped the White Sox on one hit May 6, allowing only a second inning single by J. C. Martin. The only hit Kansas City managed against him was Phil Roof's two-out double in the fifth.

In other AL games, Chicago downed Boston in the first game 1-0, California swept Cleveland 4-3 and 5-1, Baltimore defeated Minnesota 5-1 before bowing 7-4 and Washington stopped New York 2-1, after losing 4-2.

In the National League, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 8-4, Los Angeles outslugged Atlanta 10-6, Pittsburgh swept Chicago 3-2 and 5-3, St. Louis beat Houston 3-1 and Philadelphia whipped New York 7-2, then lost 3-1.

Lamabe was supported in his one-hitter by Tommy Agee and Don Buford, who between them collected five hits, scored eight runs, drove in two and stole five bases. Lamabe's shutout was the third straight for the White Sox.

John Buzhardt gained the second in a row in the opener, stopping the Red Sox on five hits. Bill Skowrin singled across the only run of the game in the seventh inning.

Roff's hit off McLain drove in two runs -- the runners had walked -- and tied the game 2-2. But Dick McAuliffe tripled home two runs in the seventh and scored on Norm Cash's single.

Fregosi's seventh - inning homer in the opener snapped a 3-3 deadlock while Knoop's two-run blast in the fourth inning of the second game put the Angels ahead to stay. Minnie Rojas, making his major league debut, gained the victory in the nightcap with relief help from Dean Chance.

Dave Johnson rapped four hits in the first game, including a single that triggered Baltimore's three-run sixth inning, while Woody Held and Andy Etchebarren added homers to the Orioles' attack.

Minnesota won the nightcap behind Harmon Killebrew's pair of homers and Bernie Allen's tie-breaking, two-run blow in the eighth.

Bobby Richardson's double and a single by Elston Howard were the key blows in a three-run first inning outburst that carried the Yankees past Washington in the opener.

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP -- Londoner Graham Hill was confirmed as winner of the 50th Indianapolis 500-mile race today in official standings released by timers and scorers.

The official standings were indentical from top to bottom with unofficial results announced at the close of Monday's wreck-marred race.

Lotus manufacturer Colin Chapman of London and Studebaker representative Anthony Granatelli of Chicago immediately went into a closed conference with chief steward Harlan Fengler and representatives of the timing and scoring section. They represented Jim Clark of Scotland, whom they contended finished first instead of the second place given him.

Chapman said Clark, the 1965 winner, lost only a few seconds the two times his car went into spins. He said both times Clark straightened out immediately without killing his engine and was able to combine refueling stops with the madnatory halt for inspection after a mishap.

Official scorers reviewed the tapes of electric timing devices today in an attempt to determine the winner of the Indianapolis 500, a role officially granted London's mustachioed Graham Hill and disputed by Jim Clark of Scotland.

They were the first two finishers in the Memorial Day Classic Monday, and two of only seven drivers still on the track when the accident - marred race ended.

A massive, flaming pile-up involving 16 of the 33 starters scattered wrecks over the track and sent wheels and parts spraying into the crowd after a mishap on the first turn. Miraculously, only one driver -- A. J. Foyt of Houston, Texas -- and 14 spectators received only minor injuries.

The 36-year-old Hill, making his first start in America's most prestigious auto race, was declared the winner after the track was cleared and the race restarted with the field trimmed to 22.

Clark's backers were quick to dispute it.

"It is impossible for Hill to be the winner," said Andrew Granatelli of Chicago, a part-owner of Clark's car. "We were a lap ahead of Scot Jackie Steward and Hill was even farther behind. There's been an error."

Another Clark team member, Gene N. Spencer, a Midwest distributor of Lotus automobiles, also was quick to lodge a protest.

"I definitely believe there has been an error in the scoring," he said. "We know we won. We can't officially protest until Tuesday, but if the results are posted and show Hill the winner, we will protest immediately.

"But we believe that a check of the timing and scoring tapes will show we won."

The problem is over the number of laps completed.

The tradition-shrouded race was fouled up when No. 1 starter Mario Andretti barely had crossed the starting line in the flying start before Billy Foster of Victoria, B. C., only Canadian in the line-up, collided wit Gordon Johncock of Hastings Mich. Foster said somebody crowded him.

That set off a spectacular chain reaction pile-up which eliminated 11 cars and wiped out such strong contenders as Foyt, Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The race had to be restarted because of an impassable track, delaying the show an hour and 24 minutes. The only other wreck-caused restart was two years ago after drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald were killed in a flaming second-lap pile-up.

The numerically worst previous accident, the 15-car wreck on the first lap in 1958, left driver Pat O'Connor dead in a burning car.

European road racers in the field, Hill and Gurney in particular, criticized the bunched, flying start which sets up chain reaction wrecks.

Major League Attendence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The NL schedule, two doubleheaders and three night games, attracted 128,062 fans while four doubleheaders - one a day-night affair- and one night game in the AL drew 128,630. The major league total was 256,692 compared with a total of 257,794 last year.

The day's biggest crowd - 46,-882 - saw the doubleheader between Philadelphia and the Mets in New York. The smallest - 8,039 - was on hand at Kansas City for a night game between Detroit and the Athletics.

Last year's total included 148,449 for seven National League games and 109,345 for 10 American League contests.

Fakirs—the word means "needy person" in Arabic for man's spiritual need of God — are common to all creeds in India. They are usually regarded as holy men who possess miraculous powers, such as walking on fire. They are not influential in urban areas since the industrial revolution and the spread of education, but in the interior and in the villages they still retain some hold over the people.

Gibson Pitches 3-Hitter

Orlando Cepeda's production against the Houston Astros Monday night was about what the St. Louis Cardinals were doing as a team before he joined them.

Orlando Cepeda pounded the eighth home run, two doubles and a single, driving in two runs and scoring the other as the Cardinals beat the Houston Astros behind Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching Monday night, 3-1, at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Cepeda, who ran his hit streak to seven over two games, doubled home Lou Brock, who had walked, stolen second and advanced to third on an infield out in the first inning.

In the fourth inning, Cepeda became the first man to hit a ball over the wall in dead-center ex-Giant doubled again in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single.

Gibson boosted his season record to 6-5.

Dick Farrell, who gave up all three St. Louis runs, lost his fourth against one victory.

The third-place Astros' loss dropped them four games from first place.

Cepeda, who the Cardinals acquired in a trade May 8 from San Francisco to add punch to their attack, doubled home Lou Brock in the first inning. He smashed his eighth homer in the fourth and doubled in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single and completed a perfect night at the plate with an eighth-inning single, his seventh straight hit stretched over two games and raised his average to .330.

Cardinal righthander Bob Gibson, meanwhile held the Astros to three hits in winning his third straight game to boost his record to 6-5.

Tonight, St. Louis will pitch Ray Washburn 1-3 against Barry Latman 2-5.

Roof doubled in the fifth with two out scoring Ed Charles and Ken Harrelson, who had walked, to give the Athletics a 2-2 tie.

Detroit went ahead to stay with three runs on Dick McAuliffe's two-run triple and Norm Cash's single in the seventh.

McLain struck out seven and walked five in recording his fifth straight victory against Kansas City. Chuck Dobson, the loser, struck out eight in 6 1-3 innings.

Bill Monbouquette 3-4 will pitch for Detroit tonight against Kansas City's Fred Talbot 2-4.

Babe Ruth Season To Open Tonight

Mayor Kendall Sikes, will officially open the Babe Ruth Baseball season tonight when he throws out the first ball of the season.

Dick Watkins, will serve s master of ceremonies and Bob Jones will give the invocation.

Mayor Sikes, will address the fans and players before the start of the game and will give way to League Commissioner Clem Beal who will give a welcoming talk and introduce members of each of the six baseball teams.

Pre - game activities will begin at 6:30, followed by the first game of the season which will be between the Bank of Sikeston and Reiss Dairy and ending the nights activities will be the game between Harts Bread and Home Materials.

Two teams have joined the league this season, expanding the league to six teams instead of fur.

King After Crown

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everythin's coming up roses for Don Brumfield these days.

The 28-year-old jockey from Nicholasville, Ky., rode Kauai King to victory in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness and it looks as if he will win the Belmont Stakes with Kauai King on Saturday and become the first to sweep the Triple Crown in 18 years.

It seemed for awhile that Brumfield might be faced with a difficult choice Memorial Day after he won the $137,900 Jersey Derby astride Creme Dela Creme at Garden State Pard.

But Don's good fortune stood up. He didn't have to choose between Kauai King and Creme Dela Creme in the Belmont.

Ira Hanford, trainer of the Jersey winner, eased Brumfield's mind. "We will not go in the Belmont," Hanford said. Instead Creme dela Creme will be shipped to Chicago for the Arlington Classic.

"I'm glad I don't have to make that decision," Brumfield said. "Both Kauai King and Creme dela Creme are great horses."

It was Creme dela Creme's seventh victory in eight starts and avenged his only defeat by a nose to Indulto in the Withers Mile at Aqueduct. This time he beat Indulto by two lengths although running wide at the head of the stretch where he led by four lengths. Brumfield has been up on the Bwamazon Farm colt in all of his races.

Creme dela Creme shared the holiday headlines with Bold Lad, who made it four straight with an imposing 1/2 length victory in the $115,600 Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct. Mrs. H. C. Phipps' 4-year-old sped the mile in 1:34 1-5 despite the heavy impost of 132 pounds and became the favorite to sweep the handicap triple of the Metropolitan, Suburban and Brooklyn.

Tigers McLain Hurls Second One Hit Game Of Season

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jack Lamabe, who often has trouble retiring American League batters, will be in Westwood, N. J., July 12 getting married. Denny McLain, who already is married, will be in St. Louis that day trying to retire National League batters.

McLain took another step toward becoming the American League's starting pitcher in the all-Star Game by pitching his second one-hitter of the season as Detroit defeated Kansas City 5-2 Monday.

Lamabe also pitched a one-hitter in Chicago's 11-0 second-game victory over Boston, but he doesn't expect to join McLain on the AL All-Star staff so he's going ahead with his marriage plans.

"I'll be very happy just to make the White Sox," Lamabe said after missing a no-hitter because of Joe Foy's leadoff single in the eighth inning.

Lamabe never had pitched a game like that before in the majors. In fact, it was the first shutout in his five-year career and his first complete game in nearly two years. And it came in his first start of the season.

Lamabe, now with his fourth team, had compiled a 5.40 earned run average in seven relief appearances this season.

With the exception of the 1964 season when he was a starter with Boston, the 29-year-old right-hander has been primarily a reliever. In his other three seasons, he appeared in 128 games, only four of them as a starter.

McLain, on the other hand, is developing into one of the best pitchers in the majors.

A 16-game winner in his first full season in the majors last year, the son-in-law of Lou Boudreau is the winningest pitcher in the AL, has won as many games as Sandy Koufax and is only one behind major league leader Juan Marichal.

The 22-year-old right-hander stopped the White Sox on one hit May 6, allowing only a second inning single by J. C. Martin. The only hit Kansas City managed against him was Phil Roof's two-out double in the fifth.

In other AL games, Chicago downed Boston in the first game 1-0, California swept Cleveland 4-3 and 5-1, Baltimore defeated Minnesota 5-1 before bowing 7-0 and Washington stopped New York 2-1, after losing 4-2.

In the National League, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 9-4, Los Angeles outslugged Atlanta 10-6, Pittsburgh swept Chicago 3-2 and 5-3, St. Louis beat Houston 3-1 and Philadelphia whipped New York 7-2, then lost 3-1.

Lamabe was supported in his one-hitter by Tommy Agee and Don Buford, who between them collected five hits, scored eight runs, drove in two and stole five bases. Lamabe's shutout was the third straight for the White Sox.

John Buzhardt gained the second in a row in the opener, stopping the Red Sox on five hits. Bill Skowrin singled across the only run of the game in the seventh inning.

Roff's hit off McLain drove in two runs -- the runners had walked -- and tied the game 2-2. But Dick McAuliffe tripled home two runs in the seventh and scored on Norm Cash's single.

Fregosi's seventh - inning homer in the opener snapped a 3-3 deadlock while Knoop's two-run blast in the fourth inning of the second game put the Angels ahead to stay. Minnie Rojas, making his major league debut, gained the victory in the nightcap with relief help from Dean Chance.

Dave Johnson rapped four hits in the first game, including a single that triggered Baltimore's three-run sixth inning, while Woody Held and Andy Etchebarren added homers to the Orioles' attack.

Minnesota won the nightcap behind Harmon Killebrew's pair of homers and Bernie Allen's tie-breaking, two-run blow in the eighth.

Bobby Richardson's double and a single by Elston Howard were the key blows in a three-run first inning outburst that carried the Yankees past Washington in the opener.

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP -- Londoner Graham Hill was confirmed as winner of the 50th Indianapolis 500-mile race today in official standings released by timers and scorers.

The official standings were indentical from top to bottom with unofficial results announced at the close of Monday's wreck-marred race.

Lotus manufacturer Colin Chapman of London and Studebaker representative Anthony Granatelli of Chicago immediately went into a closed conference with chief steward Harlan Fengler and representatives of the timing and scoring section. They represented Jim Clark of Scotland, whom they contended finished first instead of the second place given him.

Chapman said Clark, the 1965 winner, lost only a few seconds the two times his car went into spins. He said both times Clark straightened out immediately without killing his engine and was able to combine refueling stops with the madnatory halt for inspection after a mishap.

Official scorers reviewed the tapes of electric timing devices today in an attempt to determine the winner of the Indianapolis 500, a role officially granted London's mustachioed Graham Hill and disputed by Jim Clark of Scotland.

They were the first two finishers in the Memorial Day Classic Monday, and two of only seven drivers still on the track when the accident - marred race ended.

A massive, flaming pile-up involving 16 of the 33 starters scattered wrecks over the track and sent wheels and parts spraying into the crowd after a mishap on the first turn. Miraculously, only one driver -- A. J. Foyt of Houston, Texas -- and 14 spectators received only minor injuries.

The 36-year-old Hill, making his first start in America's most prestigious auto race, was declared the winner after the track was cleared and the race restarted with the field trimmed to 22.

Clark's backers were quick to dispute it.

"It is impossible for Hill to be the winner," said Andrew Granatelli of Chicago, a part-owner of Clark's car. "We were a lap ahead of Scot Jackie Steward and Hill was even farther behind. There's been an error."

Another Clark team member, Gene N. Spencer, a Midwest distributor of Lotus automobiles, also was quick to lodge a protest.

"I definitely believe there has been an error in the scoring," he said. "We know we won. We can't officially protest until Tuesday, but if the results are posted and show Hill the winner, we will protest immediately.

"But we believe that a check of the timing and scoring tapes will show we won."

The problem is over the number of laps completed.

The tradition-shrouded race was fouled up when No. 1 starter Mario Andretti barely had crossed the starting line in the flying start before Billy Foster of Victoria, B. C., only Canadian in the line-up, collided wit Gordon Johncock of Hastings Mich. Foster said somebody crowded him.

That set off a spectacular chain reaction pile-up which eliminated 11 cars and wiped out such strong contenders as Foyt, Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The race had to be restarted because of an impassable track, delaying the show an hour and 24 minutes. The only other wreck-caused restart was two years ago after drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald were killed in a flaming second-lap pile-up.

The numerically worst previous accident, the 15-car wreck on the first lap in 1958, left driver Pat O'Connor dead in a burning car.

Major League Attendence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The NL schedule, two doubleheaders and three night games, attracted 128,062 fans while four doubleheaders - one a day-night affair- and one night game in the AL drew 128,630. The major league total was 256,692 compared with a total of 257,794 last year.

The day's biggest crowd - 46,882 - saw the doubleheader between Philadelphia and the Mets in New York. The smallest - 8,039 - was on hand at Kansas City for a night game between Detroit and the Athletics.

Last year's total included 148,449 for seven National League games and 109,345 for 10 American League contests.

Fakirs—the word means "needy person" in Arabic for man's spiritual need of God — are common to all creeds in India. They are usually regarded as holy men who possess miraculous powers, such as walking on fire. They are not influential in urban areas since the industrial revolution and the spread of education, but in the interior and in the villages they still retain some hold over the people.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

To the President it did not seem a valid solution, and he believed that the Congressmen's passionate concern with the Communist menace was motivated largely by their partisan desire to defeat him in the 1948 election. When the Un-American Activities Committee began to develop the case against Alger Hiss in the latter part of 1948, the President dismissed the matter as a partisan "red herring." But the popular pressures that had been generated forced the Administration into a competitive demonstration of its own ability to deal with Communism in its own way. It took up the Smith Act as its weapon, securing the indictment of the twelve principal leaders of the American Communist party for criminally conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government. The trial began in January 1949 and continued through the next ten months -- an extraordinary proceeding, with its elaborate review of Communist literature and teaching, its revelation of some of the paid informers with whom the FBI had been infiltrating the Communist apparatus, its testimony as to the "Esopian" language and clandestine rituals of the Communists, and its demonstration, by the excesses of defense counsel and the organized mobs in the streets, of the extent to which the Communists ere capable of going in exploiting the liberties guaranteed to them by the Constitution to which they were avowedly opposed.

The jury finally determined that the teaching and advocacy of Communism was equivalent to the teaching and advocacy of violent overthrow and therefore a criminal sedition. Meanwhile the trials of Alger Hiss, on what amounted to a charge of Soviet espionage, were going on; while the witnesses before the committees were more voluble than ever. From the breaking of the Hiss case, according to one writer, "indignation grew with each month. Congressional committees, loyalty boards and the FBI began to track down present (a questionable adjective) and past members of Soviet apparats, most of them American citizens." Alger Hiss was convicted in January 1950; in February Senator Joseph R. McCarthy opened his celebrated campaign against subversion by announcing that there were "card - carrying Communists" in the State Department; in March there came the most sensational of all the espionage disclosures with the confession of Klaus Fuchs, the high - ranking nuclear physicist who had allegedly been a Communist in Germany. And at the end of June there came the onslaught on Korea.

The 36-voice Chapel Choir from First Baptist Church, Jefferson City, Missouri will present a concert of sacred choral music on Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church.

The choir, directed by James E. Fuller, minister of music, is on a three-state tour with concerts in five churches. Mrs. Robert Cross is accompanist for the group and Mrs. Bill Todd is assistant director and accompanist. The Chapel Choir whose members are students of grades eight through twelve, are all members of the First Baptist Church where they sing regularly for worship services.

The program is planned in the form of a worship service with the theme "Victory Through Jesus Christ." Spoken modulations by the choir members bring together the anthems, hymns and spirituals to compliment the theme. Included on the program are two sacred classics "Jesus, Priceless Treasure" by J. S. Bach and "I Waited For the Lord" by Mendelssohn. Contemporary numbers include "Springs in the Desert" by Jennings, "Thy Word is a Light" by Morgan and "Behold the Man" by Peterson. Featured soloists with the choral scripture lesson are trumpeters Dan Pollock and Paul Robinson in a setting of Psalm 145 by Rose Marie Cooper. A boys' and girls' ensemble will also be a part of the program. The last section of the program will be spirituals with the final number being "Battle Humn of the Republic" arranged by Ringwald.

Several choir members plan careers in music and will major in music in college. Many have given their lives for vocational Christian service in various church related fields. This tour is planned to provide a challenge for the choir and to serve our Lord in other churches. The choir comes with a prayer that the music presented will bring blessing and inspiration.

Enforcing a law should not be too great a dilemma -- but when enforcement means paying several million dollars in taxes, the corporation or company involved tends to balk.

The State Tax Commission is fighting a dual battle to enforce its tax laws -- one against leasing corporations in the state who have not been paying taxes on rental machines, and the other, a long-standing one with rural electric cooperatives.

Commissioner Hunter Phillips said the leasing companies had not been properly taxed until he came into office under Gov. Warren Hearnes.

International Business Machines (IBM) apparently plans to take their case to court, even though they are meeting with Phillips this week to attempt to iron out the problems.

But Phillips pointed out that they probably will contest their assessment of machines rented in the state, which now is under $10 million and would jump to almost $66 million if all are included in their fair value.

Previously, IBM and other rental agencies had assessed their machines at their factory cost less depreciation, but the tax commission feels that assessment can only fairly be based on the rental value. For example, Phillips said one machine was valued at $40,000 and yet is renting to the state for $9,000 a month.

Other corporations have readily cooperated with the commission and have volunteered to file amended returns including all rental machines. Xerox, for example, recently amended its return from $1 million to $11 million, Phillips said.

The problem of fairly assessing electric cooperatives has not been a new one and often is tied into county politics.

Within REA alone, assessment per mile of cable varies from $50 to $500, Phillips said. Assessment values are obtained by dividing the total value of plant facilities by the number of miles of cable.

Electric cooperatives maintain that since they are owned by their customers they should not be assessed by the state or on the same basis as privately-owned public utilities. Calloway Electric Co-op three years ago obtained a cease and desist order to prevent state assessment of their properties to challenge an attorney general's opinion which held that the law covered them. This case probably will be heard sometime this month.

Often electric cooperatives have received preferential treatment in their respective counties as many county officials serve on cooperative boards and generally all receive their electricity in counties served by cooperatives.

Missouri statute provides that the state tax commission shall assess these properties, but it still is being handled by county assessors.

To remedy assessments of all utilities the commission has changed its form of reporting to encompass all properties owned by the utilities. This will include both electric utilities and gas companies, Phillips said.

This change has already increased total tax income for many counties, he said, since before the utilities were only reporting what they wanted to the county clerks outside of property used directly in the distribution of the utility.

Trucks and other subsidiary equipment generally were not reported because local assessors thought the state was handling it, and the state, for a long time, thought the local assessors were responsible.

Assessing is a "tough job," Phillips said, but an assessor who stands behind his judgment and enforces his property reports generally will be respected.

This announcement is neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy any of these securities. The offering is made only by the Prospectus.

Jefferson City First Baptist Church Chapel Choir

The 36-voice Chapel Choir from First Baptist Church, Jefferson City, Missouri will present a concert of sacred choral music on Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church.

The choir, directed by James E. Fuller, minister of music, is on a three-state tour with concerts in five churches. Mrs. Robert Cross is accompanist for the group and Mrs. Bill Todd is assistant director and accompanist. The Chapel Choir whose members are students of grades eight through twelve, are all members of the First Baptist Church where they sing regularly for worship services.

The program is planned in the form of a worship service with the theme "Victory Through Jesus Christ." Spoken modulations by the choir members bring together the anthems, hymns and spirituals to compliment the theme. Included on the program are two sacred classics "Jesus, Priceless Treasure" by J. S. Bach and "I Waited For the Lord" by Mendelssohn. Contemporary numbers include "Springs in the Desert" by Jennings, "Thy Word is a Light" by Morgan and "Behold the Man" by Peterson. Featured soloists with the choral scripture lesson are trumpeters Dan Pollock and Paul Robinson in a setting of Psalm 145 by Rose Marie Cooper. A boys' and girls' ensemble will also be a part of the program. The last section of the program will be spirituals with the final number being "Battle Humn of the Republic" arranged by Ringwald.

Several choir members plan careers in music and will major in music in college. Many have given their lives for vocational Christian service in various church related fields. This tour is planned to provide a challenge for the choir and to serve our Lord in other churches. The choir comes with a prayer that the music presented will bring blessing and inspiration.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

To the President it did not seem a valid solution, and he believed that the Congressmen's passionate concern with the Communist menace was motivated largely by their partisan desire to defeat him in the 1948 election. When the Un-American Activities Committee began to develop the case against Alger Hiss in the latter part of 1948, the President dismissed the matter as a partisan "red herring." But the popular pressures that had been generated forced the Administration into a competitive demonstration of its own ability to deal with Communism in its own way. It took up the Smith Act as its weapon, securing the indictment of the twelve principal leaders of the American Communist party for criminally conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government. The trial began in January 1949 and continued through the next ten months -- an extraordinary proceeding, with its elaborate review of Communist literature and teaching, its revelation of some of the paid informers with whom the FBI had been infiltrating the Communist apparatus, its testimony as to the "Esopian" language and clandestine rituals of the Communists, and its demonstration, by the excesses of defense counsel and the organized mobs in the streets, of the extent to which the Communists ere capable of going in exploiting the liberties guaranteed to them by the Constitution to which they were avowedly opposed.

The jury finally determined that the teaching and advocacy of Communism was equivalent to the teaching and advocacy of violent overthrow and therefore a criminal sedition. Meanwhile the trials of Alger Hiss, on what amounted to a charge of Soviet espionage, were going on; while the witnesses before the committees were more voluble than ever. From the breaking of the Hiss case, according to one writer, "indignation grew with each month. Congressional committees, loyalty boards and the FBI began to track down present (a questionable adjective) and past members of Soviet apparats, most of them American citizens." Alger Hiss was convicted in January 1950; in February Senator Joseph R. McCarthy opened his celebrated campaign against subversion by announcing that there were "card - carrying Communists" in the State Department; in March there came the most sensational of all the espionage disclosures with the confession of Klaus Fuchs, the high - ranking nuclear physicist who had allegedly been a Communist in Germany. And at the end of June there came the onslaught on Korea.

Montgomery Cleared Of Involuntary Manslaughter

Millionaire Joel A. Montgomery, 46, Saturday was found not guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda Wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, the driver of his car on the fatal night, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to 30 days at the Shelby County Penal Farm.

The Criminal Court jury deliberated six hours and eight minutes before reaching the verdicts.

Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, sought an immediate hearing on a petition for a suspended sentence, but Criminal Court Judge Perry H. Sellers said the petition must be filed later.

Exec. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer, chief prosecutor, said after the court adjourned, he will recommend that the state join in the petition. Mrs. Sells, a pretty divorcee, remains free on $250 bond.

Leaving the courts building, Mr. Montgomery, Sikeston, Mo., banker who fought extradition in the case for four years, shed tears.

He said he plans to run for governor or United States senator in Missouri within the next two years. "Our hat's in the ring," he said.

"I have no hard feelings (about the case)," Mr. Montgomery said. "There is no time for that. . . There has been no question about it. My feelings have been expressed many times. This is a complete vindication. I have maintained my innocence from the beginning.

Mrs. Sells cried when the verdict about her was read, but they appeared to be tears of happiness and relief. She smiled through her tears as she spoke to Mr. Schaeffer. In her first trial in 1960, she was sentenced to not more than three years in prison, but that sentence was reversed in December, 1961.

Mr. Montgomery was indicted in the widely publicized case on Jan. 26, 1962, more than two years after the accident. He was a Memphis land developer at the time of the wreck at Monroe and Wellington, but before the indictment, he moved to Missouri.

Mr. Dwyer and Asst. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley contended the statute of limitations did not apply since Mr. Montgomery moved out of Tennessee.

"I think the statute of limitations is the reason the jury acquitted me," Mr. Montgomery said. "I think the only reason they said the little girl was guilty was because she admitted going 40 to 45 miles per hour."

Some sources said the statute of limitations weighed heavily in the jury's decision, but the jurors themselves declined to talk about their verdict.

The jury foreman, J. A. Duffy of 4983 Welchshire, said he did not want to discuss the case because he had been locked up five days and wanted to forget it as soon as possible. He said he had not wanted to serve on the jury, but "It was my duty."

"We have no apologies," Mr. Dwyer said. "As we said to the jury, we would not be critical of them . They have spoken and we abide by their decision. We presented every fact and every bit of evidence we had. We now move on to the next case."

Mr. Schaeffer had to file a motion for a new trial for Mrs. Sells to remain free. Because of technicalities, Judge Sellers set a hearing on the motion for June 30. The request for a suspended sentence might be heard at that time or later.

"I feel fine," said Montgomery defense attorney Don G. Owens after the verdict.

David E. Blanton of Sikeston, another Montgomery attorney, said, "If there had been a more thorough investigation in the beginning, I don't think there would ever been an indictment against him."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- Prosecutors in the Joel A. Montgomery Manslaughter trial, which ended here Saturday, said following his acquittal that they felt a four - year extradition battle to have Montgomery extradited from Missouri was not in vain.

"We felt we accomplished quite a bit in our legal request to have him returned to stand before the bar of justice as Mrs. Betty Lou Sells did seven years ago," Exec. Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer said.

"We were successful in having Montgomery returned to this jurisdiction where he faced a jury of his peers," Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley added.

"We feel we presented all the evidence and the state received a full, fair and impartial hearing as did the defense."

Montgomery, 46 - year -old wealthy Sikeston, Mo., banker and businessman, was acquitted in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, driver of Montgomery's car at the time of the accident, was convicted and given a 30-day sentence at the Shelby County Penal Farm. Her attorney, however is expected to seek a suspended sentence.

Montgomery, a former Memphis land developer, was indicted on an involuntary manslaughter charge in Jan. 1962, shortly after the State Supreme Court overturned Mrs. Sells' first conviction on a similar charge.

From that time until he voluntarily surrendered himself last Feb. 15, after a Missouri extradition warrant was issued for him, Montgomery stayed out of Memphis. He maintained his innocence throughout the entire time and said the fight was a matter of principal.

The defense said the two-year statute of limitations in the case had run out before Montgomery was indicted, but state attorneys maintained the statutory period was suspended when he moved his family to Sikeston, in Jan. 1961.

An all-male jury heard five days of testimony, they deliberated for more than six hours before returning their verdicts in the widely followed case.

Following his acquittal, Montgomery told newsmen he would seek a statewide office in Missouri "in the next two years". He said he would either be a candidate for governor or senator.

Hearnes Elected President of CPA Group

KENNETT-- Robert Hearnes of Charleston, brother of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, was elected president of the Southeast Missouri Chapter of Certified Public Accountants in a meeting held at the Kennett Country Club.

Other officers elected at the annual organizational meeting of the group were: Jimmy Landrum of Poplar Bluff, president-elect; David Alberts of Poplar Bluff, secretary; and Gerald Hamm of Poplar Bluff, treasurer.

The executive - director of the Missouri Society of CPA, Donald E. Breimer, was present for the meeting and addressed the chapter.

3 Area Men Qualify For President's Club

Terry C. Conn and Keith Duncan of Sikeston, and John M. Leigh of Parma, have qualified for membership in Kansas City Life Insurance Company's President's Club and been extended a personal invitation from the company's President, Joseph R. Bixby, to attend the 1966 President's Club Seminar to be held at Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, California, June 8 through 11.

The 1966 meeting marks the 22nd annual Seminar held for the professional benefit of the company's prominent field representatives.

To become a member, an agent must meet high production requirements, and his progress in the life insurance business and his service to his community also are factors. The attainment of President's Club membership is considered an outstanding achievement throughout the company and the life insurance industry.

Less than 10 per cent of the company's 2,800 licensed agents in 41 states and the District of Columbia qualify for the President's Club each year.

Nine From First Baptist Attend Meeting

DETROIT -- After two days of the pastor conferences and Woman's Missionary Union meeting at which time most of the leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention brought messages that filled the hearts of the 7,000 or so that attended these first two days, the convention officially opened Tuesday night. It is being held in the beautiful Cobo Hall, overlooking the Detroit River and the city of Windor, Canada.

There were no processions as the dark suited crowd trickled in for nearly an hour filling all but the upper regions of Cobo Hall for the first night session.

They settled down in brightly colored chairs facing a 40-foot white curtain which will be used later for play silhouettes and dramas. The voices of some 11,000 or 12,000 messengers on the opening night, all in one great accord, acclaimed, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name, Let Angels Prostrate Fall."

A gold throated tenor from Nashville, Tenn., Robert L. Snead sang, "Don't You Hear the Angels Singing. 'Tis a Glory Hallelujah Jubilee." This was as inspiring as was Miss Jo Ann Shelton as she brought 15 minutes of glorious spiritual songs in the afternoon's Pastors Conference. Miss Shelton will be leaving next week to join the Billy Graham London Crusade.

Messengers heard speeches from outgoing president Wayne Dehoney of Jackson, Tenn., and Dr. Roberts of the Ohio Southern Baptist Convention. Dehoney outlined plans for a cooperative "Crusade of the Americas" in 1969.

A delay in acting on a move to change the name of Southern Baptist to a less regional one was asked by the executive committee in a session Tuesday.

A new president will be elected Wednesday and speakers will include Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, Bill Moyers, special assistant to President Johnson.

The nine messengers seated at the convention from First Baptist church, Sikeston, Mo., report that they are enjoying all these wonderful messages and inspiring reports. For many it's their first time to this national convention.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. James W. Hackney and his family, who usually attend these every year stated, "I'm thrilled to have five or six of my laymen and their wives here as messengers to this great convention."

Those attending besides the Rev. and Mrs. Hackney are their children, Carol and David and Mr. and Mrs. Lenzie Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Johnson and John W. Davis.

Maj. Everett Wiss Returns From 70-Day Airlift

Major Everett Wiss, airforce reserve, returned Friday from a 70-day tour of active duty with the 85th Military Airlift Squadron at Travis AF Base, Fairfield, Calif.

This tour provided Major Wiss with first-hand experience in the Military Airlift Command (formerly Military Air Transport System), & took him to such places as Honolulu, Wake Island, Guam, The Phillipine Islands and Okinawa.

His regular assignment is with the 442nd Military Airlift Wing (Reserve) at Richards-Gebaur A F Base, Grandview, Mo., as a transport pilot. The 442nd is equipped with the C-124 "Glovemaster", four-engine heavy transport plane and has global capabilities. The Reserve unit supplements the "regular" airlift forces in support of our armed forces throughout the world, but especially in Southeast Asia.

While on duty at Travis AFB, Maj. Wiss made two round trips to Okinawa. On his last trip the plane was grounded at Guam awaiting typhoon "Irma" to leave the Phillipines area so the mission could continue. During this time he visited with the Rev. Dave Griffin family. Rev. Griffin is a Baptist missionary on Guam and brother-in-law of the J.D. Harper's of Sikeston.

In February this year, Major Wiss participated in an airlift mission to Saigon, Viet Nam, and on June 2 will depart on a mission to Bermuda.

SAINT LOUIS BLUE SHIELD

65+ COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

A special plan of medical-surgical and health benefits protection to enable people over age 65 to complement and complete the Supplementary Medical Insurance Benefits of the Federal Medicare Program Part B.

COVERAGE FOR THOSE OVER AGE 65

Blue Shield's Complementary Program is the ideal way for people over 65 who subscribe for Part B benefits under the Federal Medicare plan to complete their medical protection.

Blue Shield Complementary takes up where Medicare Part B leaves off—and it builds directly on the government Part B program benefits, so that you know where you stand in paying your doctor and other covered health service bills.

Medicare Part B requires each eligible patient to pay a $50 deductible amount out-of-pocket each year for the services included in the program. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that $50 in connection with any and all of the services covered by the Blue Shield protection you select.

Medicare pays only 80 per cent of reasonable charges for services covered under Part B provisions — requiring that the patient pay the other 20 per cent. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that 20 per cent also, for all services included in the program you choose.

In short, Blue Shield Complementary completes Medicare, and provides the ideal way for those over 65 to assure that the reasonable charges they may incur for covered services in case of illness or accident will be paid in full.

AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Protection for the dependents of persons over age 65 is equally important. For those dependents not eligible for Medicare—a spouse under age 65, or unmarried dependent children under age 19—Blue Shield continues to make available its regular programs of medical-surgical protection. Enrollment in the Blue Shield Complementary Program is provided in individual (one-person) memberships, following the pattern of Medicare, while enrollment in regular Blue Shield plans includes the customary individual and family memberships.

The Blue Shield Complementary Program is divided into two parts— a basic plan, and an optional rider to cover additional services. The basic plan is available alone, or in combination with the rider. The rider, however, is available in combination only.

BLUE SHIELD COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

Medicare Part B Provides	Blue Shield Complementary
DEDUCTIBLE Patient pays first $50 each calendar year toward charges for any and all services included under Part B.	Pays first $50 each calendar year toward charges for services included under Blue Shield basic complementary program.

HOSPITAL OUT-PATIENT SERVICES 80 per cent of reasonable costs of hospital services furnished in conjunction with physicians' services rendered to an out-patient, including such drugs as cannot be self-administered.	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs.
OUT-OF-HOSPITAL PSYCHIATRIC CARE 80 per cent of reasonable costs of expenses of out-patient psychiatric care, including physicians' charges and hospital services. (Expenses taken into account for any one calendar year are limited to 62½ per cent of the total amount incurred, or $312.50, whichever is lesser).	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs up to the maximums set by the Medicare Program.
HOME HEALTH VISITS 80 per cent of reasonable costs for up to 100 home visits each calendar year by nurses, physical therapists and similar health personnel providing services in accordance with a plan established by a physician. (Prior hospitalization not required.)	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs up to 100 visits in a calendar year.
OTHER SERVICES AND SUPPLIES 80 per cent of reasonable costs of other services and supplies specified in the law, including necessary ambulance service; surgical dressings, splints and casts; rental of medical equipment such as hospital beds, wheelchairs and iron lungs for use in the patient's home; prosthetic devices (other than dental) which replace all or part of an internal body organ, and braces and artificial limbs and eyes.	Pays the remaining 20 per cent of reasonable costs for the specified services and supplies.

Best of all, dues for Blue Shield Complementary non-group coverage are low:

For the base Complementary Program, only $2.50 per month per person.

And you can add the Optional Complementary Rider for only $3.50 per month per person in addition.

Montgomery Cleared Of Involuntary Manslaughter

Millionaire Joel A. Montgomery, 46, Saturday was found not guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda Wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, the driver of his car on the fatal night, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to 30 days at the Shelby County Penal Farm.

The Criminal Court jury deliberated six hours and eight minutes before reaching the verdicts.

Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, sought an immediate hearing on a petition for a suspended sentence, but Criminal Court Judge Perry H. Sellers said the petition must be filed later.

Exec. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer, chief prosecutor, said after the court adjourned, he will recommend that the state join in the petition. Mrs. Sells, a pretty divorcee, remains free on $250 bond.

Leaving the courts building, Mr. Montgomery, Sikeston, Mo., banker who fought extradition in the case for four years, shed tears.

He said he plans to run for governor or United States senator in Missouri within the next two years. "Our hat's in the ring," he said.

"I have no hard feelings (about the case)," Mr. Montgomery said. "There is no time for that. . . There has been no question about it. My feelings have been expressed many times. This is a complete vindication. I have maintained my innocence from the beginning.

Mrs. Sells cried when the verdict about her was read, but they appeared to be tears of happiness and relief. She smiled through her tears as she spoke to Mr. Schaeffer. In her first trial in 1960, she was sentenced to not more than three years in prison, but that sentence was reversed in December, 1961.

Maximum possible sentence is one to five years.

Mr. Montgomery was indicted in the widely publicized case on Jan. 26, 1962, more than two years after the accident. He was a Memphis land developer at the time of the wreck at Monroe and Wellington, but before the indictment, he moved to Missouri.

Mr. Dwyer and Asst. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley contended the statute of limitations did not apply since Mr. Montgomery moved out of Tennessee.

"I think the statute of limitations is the reason the jury acquitted me," Mr. Montgomery said. "I think the only reason they said the little girl was guilty was because she admitted going 40 to 45 mules per hour."

Some sources said the statute of limitations weighed heavily in the jury's decision, but the jurors themselves declined to talk about their verdict.

The jury foreman, J. A. Duffy of 4983 Welchshire, said he did not want to discuss the case because he had been locked up five days and wanted to forget it as soon as possible. He said he had not wanted to serve on the jury, but "It was my duty."

"We have no apologies," Mr. Dwyer said. "As we said to the jury, we would not be critical of them. They have spoken and we abide by their decision. We presented every fact and every bit of evidence we had. We now move on to the next case."

Mr. Schaeffer had to file a motion for a new trial for Mrs. Sells to remain free. Because of technicalities, Judge Sellers set a hearing on the motion for June 30. The request for a suspended sentence might be heard at that time or later.

"I feel fine," said Montgomery defense attorney Don G. Owens after the verdict.

David E. Blanton of Sikeston, another Montgomery attorney, said, "If there had been a more thorough investigation in the beginning, I don't think there would ever been an indictment against him."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- Prosecutors in the Joel A. Montgomery Manslaughter trial, which ended here Saturday, said following his acquittal that they felt a four - year extradition battle to have Montgomery extradited from Missouri was not in vain.

"We felt we accomplished quite a bit in our legal request to have him returned to stand before the bar of justice as Mrs. Betty Lou Sells did seven years ago," Exec. Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer said.

"We were successful in having Montgomery returned to this jurisdiction where he faced a jury of his peers," Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. James C. Beasley added.

"We feel we presented all the evidence and the state received a full, fair and impartial hearing as did the defense."

Montgomery, 46 - year -old wealthy Sikeston, Mo., banker and businessman, was acquitted in the 1959 traffic death of Miss Glenda wiles.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, 28, driver of Montgomery's car at the time of the accident, was convicted and given a 30-day sentence at the Shelby County Penal Farm. Her attorney, however is expected to seek a suspended sentence.

Montgomery, a former Memphis land developer, was indicted on an involuntary manslaughter charge in Jan. 1962, snortly after the State Supreme Court overturned Mrs. Sells' first conviction on a similar charge.

From that time until he voluntarily surrendered himself last Feb. 15, after a Missouri extradition warrant was issued for him, Montgomery stayed out of Memphis. He maintained his innocence throughout the entire time and said the fight was a matter of principal.

The defense said the two-year statute of limitations in the case had run out before Montgomery was indicted, but state attorneys maintained the statutory period was suspended when he moved his family to Sikeston, in Jan. 1961.

An all-male jury heard five days of testimony, they deliberated for more than six hours before returning their verdicts in the widely followed case.

Following his acquittal, Montgomery told newsmen he would seek a statewide office in Missouri "in the next two years". He said he would either be a candidate for governor or senator.

Hearnes Elected President of CPA Group

KENNETT-- Robert Hearnes of Charleston, brother of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, was elected president of the Southeast Missouri Chapter of Certified Public Accountants in a meeting held at the Kennett Country Club.

Other officers elected at the annual organizational meeting of the group were: Jimmy Landrum of Poplar Bluff, president-elect; David Alberts of Poplar Bluff, secretary; and Gerald Hamm of Poplar Bluff, treasurer.

The executive - director of the Missouri Society of CPA, Donald E. Breimer, was present for the meeting and addressed the chapter.

3 Area Men Qualify For President's Club

Terry C. Conn and Keith Duncan of Sikeston, and John M. Leigh of Parma, have qualified for membership in Kansas City Life Insurance Company's President's Club and been extended a personal invitation from the company's President, Joseph R. Bixby, to attend the 1966 President's Club Seminar to be held at Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, California, June 8 through 11.

The 1966 meeting marks the 22nd annual Seminar held for the professional benefit of the company's prominent field representatives.

To become a member, an agent must meet high production requirements, and his progress in the life insurance business and his service to his community also are factors. The attainment of President's Club membership is considered an outstanding achievement throughout the company and the life insurance industry.

Less than 10 per cent of the company's 2,800 licensed agents in 41 states and the District of Columbia qualify for the President's Club each year.

Nine From First Baptist Attend Meeting

DETROIT -- After two days of the pastor conferences and Woman's Missionary Union meeting at which time most of the leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention brought messages that filled the hearts of the 7,000 or so that attended these first two days, the convention officially opened Tuesday night. It is being held in the beautiful Cobo Hall, overlooking the Detroit River and the city of Windor, Canada.

There were no processions as the dark suited crowd trickled in for nearly an hour filling all but the upper regions of Cobo Hall for the first night session.

They settled down in brightly colored chairs facing a 40-foot white curtain which will be used later for play silhouettes and dramas. The voices of some 11,000 or 12,000 messengers on the opening night, all in one great accord, acclaimed, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name, Let Angels Prostrate Fall."

A gold throated tenor from Nashville, Tenn., Robert L. Snead sang, "Don't You Hear the Angels Singing. 'Tis a Glory Hallelujah Jubilee." This was as inspiring as was Miss Jo Ann Shelton as she brought 15 minutes of glorious spiritual songs in the afternoon's Pastors Conference. Miss Shelton will be leaving next week to join the Billy Graham London Crusade.

Messengers heard speeches from outgoing president Wayne Dehoney of Jackson, Tenn., and Dr. Roberts of the Ohio Southern Baptist Convention. Dehoney outlined plans for a cooperative "Crusade of the Americas" in 1969.

A delay in acting on a move to change the name of Southern Baptist to a less regional one was asked by the executive committee in a session Tuesday.

A new president will be elected Wednesday and speakers will include Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, Bill Moyers, special assistant to President Johnson.

The nine messengers seated at the convention from First Baptist church, Sikeston, Mo., report that they are enjoying all these wonderful messages and inspiring reports. For many it's their first time to this national convention.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. James W. Hackney and his family, who usually attend these every year stated, "I'm thrilled to have five or six of my laymen and their wives here as messengers to this great convention."

Those attending besides the Rev. and Mrs. Hackney are their children, Carol and David and Mr. and Mrs. Lenzie Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Johnson and John W. Davis.

Maj. Everett Wiss Returns From 70-Day Airlift

Major Everett Wiss, airforce reserve, returned Friday from a 70-day tour of active duty with the 85th Military Airlift Squadron at Travis AF Base, Fairfield, Calif.

This tour provided Major Wiss with first-hand experience in the Military Airlift Command (formerly Military Air Transport System), & took him to such places as Honolulu, Wake Island, Guam, The Phillipine Islands and Okinawa.

His regular assignment is with the 442nd Military Airlift Wing (Reserve) at Richards-Gebaur A F Base, Grandview, Mo., as a transport pilot. The 442nd is equipped with the C-124 "Glovemaster", four-engine heavy transport plane and has global capabilities. The Reserve unit supplements the "regular" airlift forces in support of our armed forces throughout the world, but especially in Southeast Asia.

While on duty at Travis AFB, Maj. Wiss made two round trips to Okinawa. On his last trip the plane was grounded at Guam awaiting typhoon "Irma" to leave the Phillipines area so the mission could continue. During this time he visited with the Rev. Dave Griffin family. Rev. Griffin is a Baptist missionary on Guam and brother-in-law of the J.D. Harper's of Sikeston.

In February this year, Major Wiss participated in an airlift mission to Saigon, Viet Nam, and on June 2 will depart on a mission to Bermuda.

Motor Company Receives Award

The Sikeston Motor Company, Incorporated, has been selected as one of the nation's outstanding Ford dealerships and will receive Ford Motor Company's Distinguished Achievement Award.

The Distinguished Achievement Award is presented "in recognition of progressive management . . . modern sales and service facilities . . . sound merchandising practices . . . high quality standards . . . and continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners."

Pediatrics Course At Harvard University

Dr. Joseph C. Blanton

Ninety physicians from the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone convened in Boston from May 16 through 20 for an intensive postgraduate course in pediatrics. The course is offered at the Massachusetts General Hospital under the auspices of Courses for Graduates, Harvard Medical School.

"Pediatrics 1" presents a panaoramic survey of recent advances in preventative, diagnostic, and therapeurtic pediatrics designed for physicians who care for infants, children, and adolescents. The program includes a variety of lectures, case presentations, panel discussions, and clinical seminars, and relates recent progress in the basic sciences to practical pediatrics. Attention is given to evaluation of psychological, intellectual and physical development, and prevention and treatment of abnormalities and considered.

Directing the course were Dr. Nathan B. Talbot, Charles Wilder Professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and Head of the Department of Pediatrics and Chief of Children's Service, at the Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. Thomas C. Peebles, Instructor in Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School; Dr. John D. Crawford, associate Professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and [illegible] Metabolic - Endocrine Unit, Children's Service, Mass. sachusetts General Hospital; Dr. William H. Hendren, Clinical Associate in Surgeroy, Associate Visiting Surgeon, Massachusetts General Hospital. Also assisting were various specialists in the medical and surgical department of the Harvard Medical School and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

"Pediatrics 1" is one of the the many post-doctoral courses offered during the year by Harvard in cooperation with its affiliated teaching hospitals. The belief that a doctor's medical education should continue throughout his lifetime influenced the Harvard Medical School to institute the graduate teaching program 94 years ago (1872) to help practising physicians keep pace with the ever widening horizons in the fields of medical practice and research.

A naturalized citizen of the United States has the same rights as a native-born citizen, except that he may not become president.

Dexter Has New Teachers

DEXTER -- So far, the Dexter Schools have employed nine new teachers for next year, according to T. S. Hill, Superintendent. Five of these are replacements for teachers who are quitting and four are for new positions. These new teachers and assignments are as follows:

Mrs. Neva Settles, Elementary; Mrs. Patricia Taylor, Elementary; Mr. Earnie Yates, Jr High Social Studies; Miss Linda Langley, Sr. High Girls' P. E.; Mrs. Norma Leach, Jr. High Music; Mr. Loyd Williams, Sr. High Social Studies; Mrs. Donna Telle, Jr. High Girls' P.E. and Elementary P. E.; Mr. Tom Telle, Sr. High Social Studies and Head Football; Mr. Wayne Crippen, Sr. High Mathematics and Ass't Basketball.

Two additional teachers are still needed. One is needed for the elementary schools and one is needed to teach social studies in the senior high and assist with football.

Wayne Crippen has been employed to teach in the Senior High School and to assist with basketball. He is a graduate of Cape College and has been teaching mathematics and assisting with basketball in the Kirkwood school system for the past seven years.

In addition to his undergraduate work in mathematics, Mr. Crippen has done three summers of graduate work in mathematics. While in high school and college, he lettered in basketball and was one of the regular players at Cape.

Mr. Crippen is married to the former Rebecca Taylor.

SUMMER PROGRAMS

The Dexter schools will conduct several summer programs. If the Head Start Program is approved it will be conducted again. An application was submitted in February of this year but has not been approved as yet. A tremendous amount of red tape is involved in one of these programs which delays the process of approval. Also, there are more restrictions to the program this year. For example, the income of farm families has to be lower than that of non-farm families in order for their children to qualify for the program. A non-farm family of three can qualify with an income of $2500 but a farm family of three is limited to $1750.

A reading program will be conducted this summer for a few select students. This will be an experimental program as well as one to help the participating students.

Also, a physical development program will be conducted this summer. This program is designed to help those students who are deficient physically.

Jobs Provided By Youth Corps

Summer jobs for 1,279 Missouri young people will be provided under 13 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects approved by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

The young workers, 16 through 21, will be selected from among those eligible for Economic Opportunity Act programs. The U. S. Labor Department will provide $592,590 for the 13 projects, and local sponsors will pay the other ten percent of the cast.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps is a major part of the Nation's war on poverty. It provides part, or nearly full-time job opportunities designed to allow young people to return to school, or acquire the work experience necessary to hold jobs.

Projects approved for Southeast Missouri include:

Holcomb Reorganized School District R-3, Holcomb, Missouri, 32 enrollees, federal portion 12,310.

Motor Company Receives Award

The Sikeston Motor Company, Incorporated, has been selected as one of the nation's outstanding Ford dealerships and will receive Ford Motor Company's Distinguished Achievement Award.

The Distinguished Achievement Award is presented "in recognition of progressive management . . . modern sales and service facilities . . . sound merchandising practices . . . high quality standards . . . and continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners."

Pediatrics Course At Harvard University

Dr. Joseph C. Blanton

Ninety physicians from the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone convened in Boston from May 16 through 20 for an intensive postgraduate course in pediatrics. The course is offered at the Massachusetts General Hospital under the auspices of Courses for Graduates, Harvard Medical School.

"Pediatrics 1" presents a panaoramic survey of recent advances in preventative, diagnostic, and therapeurtic pediatrics designed for physicians who care for infants, children, and adolescents. The program includes a variety of lectures, case presentations, panel discussions, and clinical seminars, and relates recent progress in the basic sciences to practical pediatrics. Attention is given to evaluation of psychological, intellectual and physical development, and prevention and treatment of abnormalities and considered.

Directing the course were Dr. Nathan B. Talbot, Charles Wilder Professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and Head of the Department of Pediatrics and Chief of Children's Service, at the Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. Thomas C. Peebles, Instructor in Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School; Dr. John D. Crawford, associate professor of Pediatrics, Harvard Medical School, and Chief, Metabolic - Endocrine Unit, Children's Service, Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. William H. Hendren, Clinical Associate in Surgeroy, Associate Visiting Surgeon, Massachusetts General Hospital. Also assisting were various specialists in the medical and surgical department of the Harvard Medical School and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

"Pediatrics 1" is one of the the many post-doctoral courses offered during the year by Harvard in cooperation with its affiliated teaching hospitals. The belief that a doctor's medical education should continue throughout his lifetime influenced the Harvard Medical School to institute the graduate teaching program 94 years ago (1872) to help practising physicians keep pace with the ever widening horizons in the fields of medical practice and research.

A naturalized citizen of the United States has the same rights as a native-born citizen, except that he may not become president.

Dexter Has New Teachers

DEXTER -- So far, the Dexter Schools have employed nine new teachers for next year, according to T. S. Hill, Superintendent. Five of these are replacements for teachers who are quitting and four are for new positions. These new teachers and assignments are as follows:

Mrs. Neva Settles, Elementary; Mrs. Patricia Taylor, Elementary; Mr. Earnie Yates, Jr High Social Studies; Miss Linda Langley, Sr. High Girls' P. E.; Mrs. Norma Leach, Jr. High Music; Mr. Loyd Williams, Sr. High Social Studies; Mrs. Donna Telle, Jr. High Girls' P.E. and Elementary P. E.; Mr. Tom Telle, Sr. High Social Studies and Head Football; Mr. Wayne Crippen, Sr. High Mathematics and Ass't Basketball.

Two additional teachers are still needed. One is needed for the elementary schools and one is needed to teach social studies in the senior high and assist with football.

Wayne Crippen has been employed to teach in the Senior High School and to assist with basketball. He is a graduate of Cape College and has been teaching mathematics and assisting with basketball in the Kirkwood school system for the past seven years.

In addition to his undergraduate work in mathematics, Mr. Crippen has done three summers of graduate work in mathematics. While in high school and college, he lettered in basketball and was one of the regular players at Cape.

Mr. Crippen is married to the former Rebecca Taylor.

SUMMER PROGRAMS

The Dexter schools will conduct several summer programs. If the Head Start Program is approved it will be conducted again. An application was submitted in February of this year but has not been approved as yet. A tremendous amount of red tape is involved in one of these programs which delays the process of approval. Also, there are more restrictions to the program this year. For example, the income of farm families has to be lower than that of non-farm families in order for their children to qualify for the program. A non-farm family of three can qualify with an income of $2500 but a farm family of three is limited to $1750.

A reading program will be conducted this summer for a few select students. This will be an experimental program as well as one to help the participating students.

Also, a physical development program will be conducted this summer. This program is designed to help those students who are deficient physically.

Jobs Provided By Youth Corps

Summer jobs for 1,279 Missouri young people will be provided under 13 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects approved by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

The young workers, 16 through 21, will be selected from among those eligible for Economic Opportunity Act programs. The U. S. Labor Department will provide $592,590 for the 13 projects, and local sponsors will pay the other ten percent of the cast.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps is a major part of the Nation's war on poverty. It provides part, or nearly full-time job opportunities designed to allow young people to return to school, or acquire the work experience necessary to hold jobs.

Projects approved for Southeast Missouri include:

Holcomb Reorganized School District R-3, Holcomb, Missouri, 32 enrollees, federal portion 12,310.

The following participated: Damon Dale, Barbara Dumey, Ned Wirth, Mary Jane Terrell, Jane Bowman, Charles Matthews, Pat Moore, Mary Nell Van Bibber, Barbara Lennox, Graham Sadler, Elizabeth Matthews, Shirley Altom, Janet Stewart, Louise Joyce, Barbara Guthrie, Daphne McNeeley, Peggy Thomas, Janet Stewart, Dot Matthews, Jimmy Harris, Alice Martin, Bill Huters and Peggy Lair.

On May 29th the following pupils played: Bob and Bill Gillespie, Paul Northington, Jimmy Malone, Nancy Bowman, Jimmy Matthews, Marjane Malcolm, Burt Rowe, Tommy Kendig, and David Bailey.

Malone Theatre, today, "My Reputation" with Barbara Stanwyck. Tomorrow, "Man from Oklahoma" with Roy Rogers. Rex Theatre, today, double feature, "Bathing Beauty" with Esther Williams plus "Walking Dead" with Boris Karloff.

For Today From The Upper Room

When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. (Acts 2;1)

PRAYER: Hear us, O God, as we pray for a Pentecost in our day. Give us the willingness to give time to prayer that we may be remade into vessels fit for Thy use. We ask in the name of our Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . .Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: We are two Ohio teachers whose students are between 10 and 12 years of age. The questions they ask about sex and marriage indicate that they are getting absolutely no information at home.

On occasion we have telephoned mothers and suggested that they discuss various aspects of puberty and the beginning of life with their children. We feel that home is the logical place to learn about these matters. Some mothers expressed shock and disgust that their children should be thinking about "such nasty things." One mother told me, "You can be sure I will punish Johnny if he tries to get me to talk to him about such filth."

If parents refuse to discuss these matters with their children where are the youngsters supposed to learn? What can we do to help them? -- TROUBLED

Dear Troubled: Fortunately, sex education is at long last being permitted in public schools -- even in Chicago.

Ohio is one of the more enlightened states in this regard. I am ashamed to say Illinois has been among the most backward. I know of some Chicago teachers who heroically have given their students some decent sex education at the risk of getting fired.

Of course, home is the best place to learn about life and sex, but if kids can't get the answers at home, school is the second best place.

Teachers who are asked questions about sex and marriage should answer them frankly and honestly. And they should have the support of their principals and their board of education. They are doing the parents' job and they should receive thanks -- not criticism.

Dear Ann Landers: Periodically I receive chain letters. It seems these letters run in streaks. I won't get one for months, then suddenly I'll receive five or six in one week. I have always considered chain letters a nuisance and have torn them up.

Two weeks ago our teenage daughter received a chain letter which closed with these words: "If you keep this chain going you will have good luck. If you break this chain your luck will be very bad."

Gladys showed the letter to me and asked my advice. I told her to use her own judgment but I let her know that I have always thrown them out. Gladys decided to do the same.

Don't ask me why, but ever since that day, the poor girl has had one disappointment after another. She is convinced that the chain letter she destroyed is responsible for the jinx. Will you please say something in your column to set her straight? -- NOT SUPERSTITIOUS

Dear Not: Of course there is no relation between the chain letter and your daughter's run of bad luck, but it's much easier (and conveniently face-saving) to blame disappointments on a chain letter rather than to accept personal responsibility for failure. You probably can't sell this notion to Gladys NOW but as time goes on and she becomes more rational and mature (hopefully), she will see evidence on the other side which will persuade her.

Confidential to Baboon Legs: I sympathize with you and I agree with you. A 15-year-old girl should be allowed to "do something" as a matter of good grooming. Either a depilatory cream or shaving will not hurt you.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed, envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In 1965 our Government collected about $2,500,000 from the taxpayers for using a few of our national parks.

This was only a fraction of the $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 they expected to grab, having included all the camping areas at the Corps of Engineer lakes.

I thought we were promised free recreation on these lakes when they were built. After all our tax money paid for them.

Is this the way our Senators and Representatives repay us for voting them into office, or is it another way for LBJ to have more control?

If our Government did not give so much money to our enemies, such a Nasser, this tax and others would not be needed.

These camping areas could be built and maintained by some of the able - bodied men on our relief rolls.

Armed Forces

INDIANTOWN GAP, PA. (AHTNC) -- Cadet William D. Myers, 21, son of Mrs. Alice M. Myers, 1455 Mill, New Madrid, Mo., will attend Reserve Officer Training Corps summer camp at Indiantown Gap, Pa., starting June 18. He is a student of Murray (Ky.) State College.

During the six-week encampment, he will receive advanced training in the military subjects he has been studying at school.

Cadets are trained in various subjects which will provide them with the skills necessary to command. On completion of the ROTC program, graduates may receive commissions as second lieutenants and may choose any branch of the Army.

A member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Scabbard and Blade Society, Myers is a 1962 graduate of New Madrid High School.

RENO, Nev. -- Staff Sergeant Ronald D. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hallison R. Mullen of Bernie, Mo., has completed the rigorous U. S. Air Force survival and special training course conducted by the Air Training Command at Stead AFB, Nev.

Sergeant Mullen, a communications technician, received combat-type escape and evasion training for survival under adverse climatic conditions and hostile environments.

The sergeant attended Dexter (Mo.) High School. His wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Gene Magee of Brandon, Fla. Mrs. Mullen's mother, Mrs. Vera Diaz, resides at 1007 E. Crawford, Tampa, Fla.

Ranney W. McDonough, who completed the requirements for graduation from the University of Missouri at Rolla, Rolla, Missouri, was commissioned on May 29, 1966 as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve during Commencement Exercises.

Together with 28 other students, Lieutenant McDonough was administered the Oath of Office by Colonel David L. Gundling, Professor of Military Science. The new lieutenants earned their commissions through successful completion of the four year course in Military Science and attainment of their Bachelor of Science Degrees.

Lieutenant McDonough, who majored in Civil Engineering was assigned to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton R. McDonough, who reside at Box 86, Morley, Mo.

PHU BAI, VIETNAM - Equipment Operator First Class Hubert A. McClain, USN, son of Mrs. Florence McClain of 822 Agnes St., Sikeston, Mo., is serving in Vietnam with the Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 7, at Phu Bai, Vietnam.

Prior to deployment to Vietnam, the SeaBees underwent intensive training by the Army at Fort Devens, Mass., and by the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 Years Ago
May 31, 1916

J. P. Ranney happened to a painful accident last Monday. While loading cattle at his farm in McMullin he fell from a fence, breaking one or two ribs, which will necessitate his being indoors a few days.

W. E. Derris has a new candy refrigerator in one of his windows fronting New Madrid street. It is white enameled and has a capacity of 100 pounds of ice. It is a mighty pretty piece of furniture as well as a useful one.

40 Years Ago
May 31, 1926

Mrs. C. W. Lancaster and family visited at the homes of Clem Marshall, J. W. Marshall, and Jack Lancaster this week. They left Wednesday for St. Louis, where they will make their home in the future.

30 Years Ago
May 31, 1936

A spark from the flue caused slight damage to the J. A. Hess home on Park avenue early Saturday afternoon. The roof was scorched and wallpaper of one room was damaged by water.

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise announced Saturday the names of instructors who will teach in the new elementary school to be built on a lot north of the athletic field this summer. Miss Dorothea Miller, the principal, will have charge of the third grade classes; Miss Lillian Putnam will teach first grade; Miss Edna Howard, second grade; Miss Lucille Stubblefield, fourth grade; Miss Nell Yanson, fifth grade; and Miss Myrtle Dalton, the sixth grade.

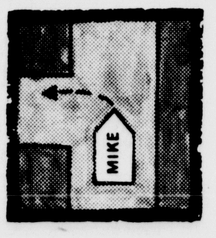

E. M. Brooks out on the farm known as the Milem Farm now owned by Joe L. Matthews, has laid by the biggest part of his corn crop and the balance is waist high. Now listen to this: With a tractor and one man in 14 hours straight running, 52 acres were plowed at a cost of six cents per acre.

Miss Caroline Hess' play school for children of preschool age will close today until autumn. Miss Hess has been assisted at the school by her sister, Mrs. A. H. Osburn of Dallas, Tex. These children, who have been enrolled are being invited to attend the school's last session this morning: Ann Hollenbock, Bill Baker, Cy Dowdy, Elizabeth Matthews, Betty Lou Ross, Charles Matthews, John Kendig, Marlin Graber, Mary Jane

For Today From The Upper Room

When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. (Acts 2:1)

PRAYER: Hear us, O God, as we pray for a Pentecost in our day. Give us the willingness to give time to prayer that we may be remade into vessels fit for Thy use. We ask in the name of our Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . .Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: We are two Ohio teachers whose students are between 10 and 12 years of age. The questions they ask about sex and marriage indicate that they are getting absolutely no information at home.

On occasion we have telephoned mothers and suggested that they discuss various aspects of puberty and the beginning of life with their children. We feel that home is the logical place to learn about these matters. Some mothers expressed shock and disgust that their children should be thinking about "such nasty things." One mother told me, "You can be sure I will punish Johnny if he tries to get me to talk to him about such filth."

If parents refuse to discuss these matters with their children where are the youngsters supposed to learn? What can we do to help them? -- TROUBLED

Dear Troubled: Fortunately, sex education is at long last being permitted in public schools -- even in Chicago.

Ohio is one of the more enlightened states in this regard. I am ashamed to say Illinois has been among the most backward. I know of some Chicago teachers who heroically have given their students some decent sex education at the risk of getting fired.

Of course, home is the best place to learn about life and sex, but if kids can't get the answers at home, school is the second best place.

Teachers who are asked questions about sex and marriage should answer them frankly and honestly. And they should have the support of their principals and their board of education. They are doing the parents' job and they should receive thanks -- not criticism.

Dear Ann Landers: Periodically I receive chain letters. It seems these letters run in streaks. I won't get one for months, then suddenly I'll receive five or six in one week. I have always considered chain letters a nuisance and have torn them up.

Two weeks ago our teenage daughter received a chain letter which closed with these words: "If you keep this chain going you will have good luck. If you break this chain your luck will be very bad."

Gladys showed the letter to me and asked my advice. I told her to use her own judgment but I let her know that I have always thrown them out. Gladys decided to do the same.

Don't ask me why, but ever since that day, the poor girl has had one disappointment after another. She is convinced that the chain letter she destroyed is responsible for the jinx. Will you please say something in your column to set her straight? -- NOT SUPERSTITIOUS

Dear Not; Of course there is no relation between the chain letter and your daughter's run of bad luck, but it's much easier (and conveniently face-saving) to blame disappointments on a chain letter rather than to accept personal responsibility for failure. You probably can't sell this notion to Gladys NOW but as time goes on and she becomes more rational and mature (hopefully), she will see evidence on the other side which will persuade her.

Confidential to Baboon Legs: I sympathize with you and I agree with you. A 15-year-old girl should be allowed to "do something" as a matter of good grooming. Either a depilatory cream or shaving will not hurt you.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed, envelope.

THESE LOVELY little ballerinas will appear Wednesday at 8 p.m. when the Bush Dance Studio presents a revue, "Let's Have a Ball." From left are Patty Eaker, Mary Tull, Laura Tull, Rebecca Williams and Debbie Critchlow. The revue will be at the junior high school auditorium and the public is invited.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In 1965 our Government collected about $2,500,000 from the taxpayers for using a few of our national parks.

This was only a fraction of the $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 they expected to grab, having included all the camping areas at the Corps of Engineer lakes.

I thought we were promised free recreation on these lakes when they were built. After all our tax money paid for them.

Is this the way our Senators and Representatives repay us for voting them into office, or is it another way for LBJ to have more control?

If our Government did not give so much money to our enemies, such a Nasser, this tax and others would not be needed.

These camping areas could be built and maintained by some of the able - bodied men on our relief rolls.

INDIANTOWN GAP, PA. (AHTNC) -- Cadet William D. Myers, 21, son of Mrs. Alice M. Myers, 1455 Mill, New Madrid, Mo., will attend Reserve Officer Training Corps summer camp at Indiantown Gap, Pa., starting June 18. He is a student of Murray (Ky.) State College.

During the six-week encampment, he will receive advanced training in the military subjects he has been studying at school.

Cadets are trained in various subjects which will provide them with the skills necessary to command. On completion of the ROTC program, graduates may receive commissions as second lieutenants and may choose any branch of the Army.

A member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Scabbard and Blade Society, Myers is a 1962 graduate of New Madrid High School.

RENO, Nev. -- Staff Sergeant Ronald D. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hallison R. Mullen of Bernie, Mo., has completed the rigorous U. S. Air Force survival and special training course conducted by the Air Training Command at Stead AFB, Nev.

Sergeant Mullen, a communications technician, received combat-type escape and evasion training for survival under adverse climatic conditions and hostile environments.

The sergeant attended Dexter (Mo.) High School. His wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Gene Magee of Brandon, Fla. Mrs. Mullen's mother, Mrs. Vera Diaz, resides at 1007 E. Crawford, Tampa, Fla.

Raaney W. McDonough, who completed the requirements for graduation from the University of Missouri at Rolla, Rolla, Missouri, was commissioned on May 29, 1966 as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve during Commencement Exercises.

Together with 28 other students, Lieutenant McDonough was administered the Oath of Office by Colonel David L. Gundling, Professor of Military Science. The new lieutenants earned their commissions through successful completion of the four year course in Military Science and attainment of their Bachelor of Science Degrees.

Lieutenant McDonough, who majored in Civil Engineering was assigned to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton R. McDonough, who reside at Box 86, Morley, Mo.

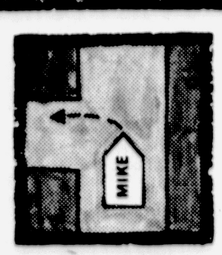

PHU BAI, VIETNAM - Equipment Operator First Class Hubert A. McClain, USN, son of Mrs. Florence McClain of 822 Agnes St., Sikeston, Mo., is serving in Vietnam with the Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 7, at Phu Bai, Vietnam.

Prior to deployment to Vietnam, the SeaBees underwent intensive training by the Army at Fort Devens, Mass., and by the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 Years Ago
May 31, 1916

J. P. Ranney happened to a painful accident last Monday. While loading cattle at his farm in McMullin he fell from a fence, breaking one or two ribs, which will necessitate his being indoors a few days.

W. E. Derris has a new candy refrigerator in one of his windows fronting New Madrid street. It is white enameled and has a capacity of 100 pounds of ice. It is a mighty pretty piece of furniture as well as a useful one.

40 Years Ago
May 31, 1926

Mrs. C. W. Lancaster and family visited at the homes of Clem Marshall, J. W. Marshall, and Jack Lancaster this week. They left Wednesday for St. Louis, where they will make their home in the future.

30 Years Ago
May 31, 1936

A spark from the flue caused slight damage to the J. A. Hess home on Park avenue early Saturday afternoon. The roof was scorched and wallpaper of one room was damaged by water.

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise announced Saturday the names of instructors who will teach in the new elementary school to be built on a lot north of the athletic field this summer. Miss Dorothea Miller, the principal, will have charge of the third grade classes; Miss Lillian Putnam will teach first grade; Miss Edna Howard, second grade; Miss Lucille Stubblefield, fourth grade; Miss Nell Yanson, fifth grade; and Miss Myrtle Dalton, the sixth grade.

E. M. Brooks out on the farm known as the Milem Farm now owned by Joe L. Matthews, has laid by the biggest part of his corn crop and the balance is waist high. Now listen to this: With a tractor and one man in 14 hours straight running, 52 acres were plowed at a cost of six cents per acre.

Miss Caroline Hess' play school for children of preschool age will close today until autumn. Miss Hess has been assisted at the school by her sister, Mrs. A. H. Osburn of Dallas, Tex. These children, who have been enrolled are being invited to attend the school's last session this morning: Ann Hollenbock, Bill Baker, Cy Dowdy, Elizabeth Matthews, Betty Lou Ross, Charles Matthews, John Kendig, Marlin Graber, Mary Jane

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1889, one of the nation's worst flood disasters occurred -- the Johnstown, Pa., flood. Between 2,000 man 3,000 persons died when heavy rains caused a dam to burst at South Fork, 12 miles above the city.

On this date

In 1926, the Sesquicentennial exposition opened in Philadelphia.

Ten years ago -- Biblical scholars announced they had deciphered two more of the Dead Sea scrolls discovered in Jordan in 1952. The two scrolls told of a fabulous treasure of gold and silver hidden in a secret place that probably was referred to in a scroll that was still undiscovered.

Five years ago-- In secret French - Algerian peace talks to France, the delegation from Paris and the rebel representatives from Algeria disagreed over the status of the oil-rich Sahara Desert.

One year ago-- A South Vietnamese political crisis over the replacement of four Cabinet ministers in Saigon ended. Chief of State Phan Khac Suu agreed to accept the appointment of four new minsters by Premier Phan Huy Quat.

FUNDS FOR TANEYCOMO STUDY APPROVED

WASHINGTON, D. C.-- The Department of the Interior budget for fiscal 1967 as passed by the House of Representatives and Senate includes a $10,000 increase in the annual budget for the cooperative fisheries unit at the University of Missouri at Columbia, Senators Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long said today. The annual budget for the cooperative fisheries unit will now total $40,000 as the two Missouri Senators had requested.

A portion of the increased appropriation will be used to study the problem of excessive plant growth on Lake Taneycomo, Missouri. Heavy plant growth, a growing problem on reservoirs throughout the country, has caused fishing, boating and swimming to decline in popularity, creating a threat to the economy in that well - known tourist resort.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1889, one of the nation's worst flood disasters occurred – the Johnstown, Pa., flood. Between 2,000 man 3,000 persons died when heavy rains caused a dam to burst at South Fork, 12 miles above the city.

On this date

In 1926, the Sesquicentennial exposition opened in Philadelphia.

In 1942, British Prime Minister Winston Church said Germany would be pounded city by city.

apparently fell in and the other tried to rescue him, probably Friday night.

A Ft. Leonard Wood soldier Harold E. Tomlinson, 20, drowned Sunday in the Gasconade River a mile north of Waynesville. He died only an hour after another soldier was rescued from the river at the same spot and revived with artificial respiration.

Terry Page, 31, of St. Louis, drowned Saturday while swimming in the Big River a mile south of Ware.

Nations Death Toll Reaches New High

The death toll on the nation's roads has soared to an unprecedented three-day Memorial Day figure and it may surpass the total fatalities recorded for any Memorial Day weekend regardless of duration.

As of Monday midnight, local time, 519 lives were lost on America's highways. The death count began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

In other accidents 43 persons perished in boating mishaps and 90 persons drowned. Ten of the drowning victims were recorded in South Carolina.

The highest previous traffic death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last year.

The National Safety Council forecast 540 persons would die during the 78-hour period. The council said Monday the current holiday period was similar to the Fourth of July weekend last year when 547 lives were lost.

Sunny skies and pleasant weather throughout most of the nation contributed to motorists' jamming thoroughfares as millions of Americans traveled to recreation areas, athletic events and family gatherings.

California, with more automobiles and miles of freeways than any other state, recorded the highest number of deaths as of midnight, 55.

The worst single recorded accident occured in Somerset, Ky., Saturday when five persons died in a three-car collision. Four of the victims were from a vacationing Ohio family.

The lowest three-day rate for a Memorial Day, since records were initiated, was in 1948 when 204 persons died.

The three-day Christmas holiday in 1965 stands as the most tragic highway period with 720 deaths recorded.

The Associated Press made a comparative record of traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. Friday May 13 to midnight Momday May 16 and recorded 376 deaths during the period.

The National Safety Council said 10,710 persons died during the first three months of 1966, a seven per cent increase over the similar period in 1965.

The total highway death toll in 1965 was a record 49,000.

Pearl Green Dies Sunday

MATTHEWS:-- Pearl Green, prominent farmer of Route 1, Matthews, died Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in Missouri Delta Community hospital.

In other accidents 43 persons perished in boating mishaps and 90 persons drowned. Ten of the drowning victims were recorded in South Carolina.

The highest previous traffic death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last year.

The National Safety Council forecast 540 persons would die during the 78-hour period. The council said Monday the current holiday period was similar to the Fourth of July weekend last year when 547 lives were lost.

Sunny skies and pleasant weather throughout most of the nation contributed to motorists' jamming thoroughfares as millions of Americans traveled to recreation areas, athletic events and family gatherings.

California, with more automobiles and miles of freeways than any other state, recorded the highest number of deaths as of midnight, 55.

The worst single recorded accident occured in Somerset, Ky., Saturday when five persons died in a three-car collision. Four of the victims were from a vacationing Ohio family.

The lowest three-day rate for a Memorial Day, since records were initiated, was in 1948 when 204 persons died.

The three-day Christmas holiday in 1965 stands as the most tragic highway period with 720 deaths recorded.

The Associated Press made a comparative record of traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. Friday May 13 to midnight Momday May 16 and recorded 376 deaths during the period.

The National Safety Council said 10,710 persons died during the first three months of 1966, a seven per cent increase over the similar period in 1965.

The total highway death toll in 1965 was a record 49,000.
